THE REPRESENTATIVE OF TWO VERY ANCIENT FAMILIES IN THE NORTH OF ENGLAND,

This Volume

IS

RESPECTFULLY INSCRIBED.

P R E F A C E .

THE First Volume of this Work is now completed, and an opinion may be formed of a project, which was deemed at its announcement so beset by difficulties, as to hold out little hope of a successful issue. Those difficulties have however passed away—the completion of the first volume is accomplished, and nothing formidable remains to impede the progress of the second. In these pages will be found the lineage of nearly four hundred families, enjoying in the aggregate probably a revenue of two millions sterling, and deriving, many of them, their territorial possessions from WILLIAM OF NORMANDY; invested however with no exclusive rank—designated by no exclusive title—and born to no exclusive privilege. To this grade in her social system—her independent country gentlemen—England is mainly indebted for her greatness abroad, and her prosperity at home. In this—and her free institutions, she differs from every other country in Europe.

It was the Author's intention to acknowledge his obligations to his principal correspondents individually; but, on referring to the list, he finds it so extensive, that it would be entirely out of place to present such a catalogue here. He begs of them, nevertheless, to be assured that he entertains the strongest sense of the great and valuable assistance he has received. Indeed he is convinced that, could he adhere to his original determination, he should by simply so doing propitiate a more than ordinary degree of favor. He cannot, however, forbear recording the debt he owes to Sir David William Smith, bart. of Alwicks; to William Henry Allan, esq. of Durham; to Michael Jones,

* This gentleman, through the alliance of his ancestor, ROWLAND MYNORS, esq. with Theodosia, daughter of Sir Percival Willoughby, knt. of Wollaton, proves Founder's kin to All Souls' Oxford. The descent is thus traced;

BEATRIX CHICHELEY, daughter of John Chicheley, chamberlain of London, born in 1425, wedded Sir William Peche, knt. of Lullingston, Kent, and had (with a son Sir John Peche, knight banneret) a daughter,

ELIZABETH PECHÉ, who m. John Hart, esq. of the Middle Temple, and had a son,

SIR PERCYVAL HART of Lullingston, chief sewer and knight harbinger to HENRY VIII., who m. Frediswilde, daughter and co-heir of John Lord

The following extract from ORDERICUS VITALIS (who wrote nearly 600 years ago a History of Normandy, published by Monsieur du Chesne) may throw some light on the origin of the great house of BASKERVILLE.

"Baldricus Teutonicus married the daughter of Richard, surnamed de Benefacta, Lord of Clare and Tunbridge in England, by Roesia, his wife, sister to Walter Giffard, the second Earl of Buckingham after the Conquest, and daughter of Walter Giffard, Count of Longueville, in Normandy, and first Earl of Buckingham, in England, who was son of Osborne de Bolebec by Avelina his wife, sister to Gunnora, wife of Richard, the first of that name, Duke of Normandy. Baldrick by his said wife had six sons and as many daughters; the sons were NICHOLAS DE BASCHEVILLA, now Bacqueville; Fulke de Anjou; Robert de Courcy; Richard de Nova Villa or Nevill; Baldrick de Balgenzais, now Beangeny or Boysgeney; and Wigenus, or Wigman of Apulia. NICHOLAS, the eldest, married one of the Dutchess Gunnora's nieces, and by her had two sons, William Martell and Walter de St. Martin, who were ancestors of the Warrens, Earls of Warren and Surrey, and of the Mortimers, Earls of March, &c. &c."

THE RUSSELLS are of considerable antiquity in Cumberland:—in many of the early entries in the church registers of Millam (which the Rev. Henry Dixon, officiating minister, has recently with much care investigated) they are described as Russells de Duddon Bridge, and de Ar-

Bray, and had a son, Sir George Hart, of Lullingstone, and a daughter,

CATHERINE HART, who espoused Thomas Willoughby, esq. of Blore Place, and left a son and successor,

SIR PERCIVAL WILLOUGHBY, knt., who m. Bridget, eldest daughter and co-heir of Sir Francis Willoughby, knt. of Wollaton, and sister to Margaret, wife of Sir Robert Spencer, created in 1603, Baron Spencer of Wormleighton. By this lady Sir Percival had, with other issue,

FRANCIS (Sir), ancestor of LORD MIDDLETON. THEODOSIA, m. to ROWLAND MYNORS, esq. of Treago, great-great-great-grandfather of the present nabie; by an intermarriage with the ancient family of Taylor, they acquired the estate of ROWENLANDS, to which they removed between the years 1652 and 1657, and they continued to abide there until 1803, when in consequence of the demise issueless of the elder brother, the property passed to William Russell, esq. of Brancepeth Castle, who having himself realised a very considerable fortune in the county of Durham, alienated the acquisition, and it is now in the possession of R. Postlewaite, esq. of Braughton in Furness.

Unfortunately the early registers are so defective, that no very continuous pedigree can be made out before the year 1598, and the baptismal records commence with 1600.

JOHN RUSSELL,* esq. of Arnabie, dying in 1608, was buried at Millam, and s. by his son,

MATTHEW RUSSELL, esq. of Arnabie, who had issue,

MATTHEW, his heir.

Richard, who d. 1st December, 1638.

Elizabeth.

Margaret.

The elder son and heir,

MATTHEW RUSSELL, esq. of Arnabie, born 19th March, 1615, intermarrying with the Taylor family, acquired the estate of Rowenlands, and dying 27th January, 1684, had a son and successor,

MATTHEW RUSSELL, esq. of Rowenlands, b. 15th February, 1657-8, who had (with two daughters, Elizabeth and Bridget) two sons, viz.

ROBERT, his heir.

Matthew, b. 2nd August, 1685, who settled at Sunderland as a merchant in 1700, and upon his demise issueless in 1760, devised half his fortune, which was very considerable, to his nephew William, late of Brancepeth Castle. In Sunderland churchyard a beautiful monument is erected to his memory.

Matthew Russell d. 28th February, 1695, and was s. by his elder son,

ROBERT RUSSELL, esq. of Rowenlands, b. 8th October, 1682, who had issue,

MATTHEW, his heir.

WILLIAM, successor to his brother.

Robert, b. in September, 1737, who went out to India as a merchant and there died.

James, b. 6th March, 1744, d. in August, 1745.

Robert Russell died 22nd March, 1757, and was s. by his son,

MATTHEW RUSSELL, esq. b. 31st March, 1733, who died without issue at Rowenlands in January, 1803, and was s. by his next brother,

WILLIAM RUSSELL, esq. of Brancepeth Castle (as stated in the body of the work). This gentleman, who sold the estate of Rowenlands, was distinguished for liberality and benevolence. Among many similar instances may be mentioned an hospital at Cornsay in the county of Durham, which he built and endowed, for a considerable number of aged and infirm persons of both sexes, with a chapel for divine service, and a school attached for a large establishment of boys and girls. During the war in 1803, he raised a corps of volunteer infantry, consisting of two full companies, which he armed, clothed, and completely equipped at his own expense; he was also chiefly instrumental in raising the Usworth troop of yeomanry cavalry, and in the distresses on the termination of the war, he received and maintained the poor, coming from all quarters, in barracks constructed for the purpose, where every comfort was provided, while he kept alive their habits of industry, by engaging such as were able in various works on his extensive estates. Mr. Russell was s. at his decease by his son, MATTHEW RUSSELL, esq. of Brancepeth Castle, vice-lieutenant for the county of Durham (as stated in the body of the work). On leaving Trinity College, Oxford, this gentleman accepted a company in the Durham militia, and was subsequently major of the regiment. In 1801 he was returned member for Saltash (one of his father's boroughs) and continued to serve in parliament until his death in London, 8th May, 1822. He rebuilt the greater part of Brancepeth Castle, and it is now one of the most noble edifices in the north of England. Probably few individuals have ever been so justly, deeply, and universally lamented. Mr. Russell's only son and successor, the present WILLIAM RUSSELL, esq. of Brancepeth Castle, also vice-lieutenant of the county Palatinate, was returned in two successive parliaments for the county of Durham, and proved himself a zealous and disinterested promoter of the reform, by the patriotic gift of his boroughs of Bletchingley and Saltash, consisting of three seats.

Estates.—Brancepeth, Brandon, Hardwicke, Willington, Westparks, Newton, Newton-cap, Blakestone, Fulthorpe, and Thwaites, in the county of Durham, and Baysdale in the county of York.

CANDLER OF CALLAN.—Edward Candler, esq. the brother of the present representative of the family, has been appointed a deputy lieutenant for the county of Northampton.

* His brothers were Robert, m. 10th June, 1598, to Elizabeth Cooke.
Jeffery, who d. 2nd February, 1603-4.
Peter, who d. 27th December, 1607.

The family Estates are—Morton Pinkney and Culworth, both in Northamptonshire; with lands in Norfolk and Yorkshire.

ROUS OF COURTYRALA.

P. 119, col. 1, l. 9, for "Penguite," read "Penguite."

FLOOD OF FLOOD HALL.—Alterations in the account of this family.

FLOOD, JOHN, esq. of Flood Hall, in the county of Kilkenny, a magistrate and deputy lieutenant for that shire, m. Miss Saurin, eldest daughter of the Rt. Hon. William Saurin, (brother to the Bishop of Dro-more), late attorney-general for Ireland, and niece to the Marquess of Thomond.

Lineage.

This family descends, it is presumed, from Sir Thomas Fludd, knt. of Milgate, who was receiver of Kent, Sussex, and Surrey, and treasurer to the army sent (temp. ELIZABETH) to aid Henry IV. of France. In the subsequent reign, a member of the Kentish house, (who was the first to write his name FLOOD), rose high in favour with King JAMES, and had several grants of lands in divers parts of the kingdom. He styled himself in writing "Flood," while the other branches were written Fludds. Hence derived

FRANCIS FLOOD, esq. of Burnchurch, in the county of Kilkenny, a major in the army, who m. Anne, only daughter and heiress of Colonel Henry Warden, M. P. of Ipswich, in Suffolk, and niece to Agmondesham Cuffe, esq. of Desart, father of the first Baron Desart. By this lady he had issue,

- i. WARDEN, of Flood Hall, as stated in the body of the work.
- ii. John,
- iii. Charles,
- iv. Henry,
- v. George,

vi. Francis, of Paulstown Castle, in the county of Kilkenny, who m. Miss Hatton, daughter of Henry Hatton, esq. of Great Clonard, M. P. for the shire of Wexford, by his wife Lady Anne Jane Gore, daughter of Arthur Earl of Arran, by whom (who m. for her second husband John James, first Marquess of Abercorn) he had issue,

- i. Warden, LL.D. judge of the high court of admiralty of Ireland, member in the Irish parliament for many years, where he gave efficient support to his distinguished relative, HENRY FLOOD. He m. Miss O'Donovan, sister of General O'Donovan of that ancient family in the county of Cork, and aunt to Sir

William Wrixon Becher, bart. and had issue,

Warden, as in the body of the work.

Francis, a captain in the army, killed in action.

Henry of Paulstown Castle, who m. in 1815, Anna Maria, dau. of Henry Lennon, esq.

Donovan, a captain in the army, who served in Holland. He wedded Miss Vignau, niece of the Comtesse De la Motte, and left issue, Warden, captain 51st.

Marianne.

Marianne, as stated in the body of the work.

2. Hatton, a colonel in the 1st dragoon guards who served in Holland. He d. unmarried.

3. Francis, a major in the army, and high sheriff for the county of Kilkenny in 1778.

4. Henry, a major in the army, who m. and had issue,

John, of Viewmount, as stated in the body of the work.

Frances, m. to Dr. Reed, M.D. of the county of Carlow.

vii. Richard, who d. unmarried.

viii. Anne, m. to the Venerable Henry Candler, D.D. archdeacon of Ossory and rector of Callan.

The remainder of the account, as given in the work, is correct, excepting that the mother of the present Mr. Flood, of Flood Hall, was Miss Aldcorth, daughter of Richard Aldworth, esq. of Newmarket, in the county of Cork, M.P. and not Miss Bury, as erroneously stated at p. 125.

MOUBRAY OF COCKAIRNY.—SIR ROBERT MOUBRAY has been made a COMPANION OF THE ROYAL HANOVERIAN GUELPHIC ORDER. Sir Robert's great grandfather JOHN MOUBRAY, esq. of Cockairny, who d. in 1732, left two sons, viz.

ROBERT, his successor at Cockairny, (see page 129).

John, who had two sons and three daughters, viz.

John, whose only child, Ann-Cockerall Moubray, wedded James-Trail Hall, esq. of Dublin, barrister-at-law, and has issue.

William.

Margaret, who m. Walter Ross, esq. and left a son,

John-Ross, whose only child, Agnes, espoused Charles Mackintosh, esq.

Magdalen.

Jean, m. to James Campbell, esq.

Sir Robert's grandfather, ROBERT MOUBRAY, esq. of Cockairny, who d. in 1779, had issue,

John, who died, captain royal marines.
ROBERT, M.D. who s. to Cockairny, and dying in 1795, was s. by his elder son, the present possessor.

James.

George, lieut. royal navy, who m. Miss Toby, and had issue.

Elizabeth, m. to John Black, esq.

Mary, m. to Alexander Sutherland, esq.
 and had issue.

DARELL OF CALEHILL.

DARELL, family of.—The following additions to the account already given of this ancient house are extracted from an old pedigree of the family.

William de Orell, a gentleman of the north parts of Normandie, soe called of a caste and familie of that countrie, and soe by contraction, the vowels e and o are changed to a, by which Darell is pronounced for De Orell, the which came in with the Conqueror, being for his good service done in the north, as well in pacifying the rebellious men in Yorkshire, as in resisting the insurgent Scots that came to help them, considered not only in being dubbed a knight in the city of Yorke, after the burning of it, but also endowed with the possession of a Saxon called Etheldred, of Broadsworth, an ancient seat twelve miles west of Yorke, the which Sir William had issue, William, made knight by Henry I.
 and constable of the castle of Yorke, which familie increased much by marriages, and the last of the familie in Yorkshire was called Sir George Darell, whose daughter and heire Sir Guy Dawney, of Cowick, married. Marmaduke, the sonne of Valentine, ye sonne of Sir William Darrell, of Broadsworth, was general under the Lord
 Scroope, baron of Upsall, who served Richard I. in Acon, where, by ye way, this Marmaduke achieved great fame by killing of ye prince and ruler of ye Isle of Cyprus, and therefore, in perpetuum Rei memoriam, ye lion which he bare before uncovered, was now crowned, and having no crest, had to his cognizance ye saracen's head issuing out of a crowne attired after the countrie manner—que acta fuerunt in great-great grandson of this marriage,

- Sir Thomas Preston, the third baronet, had been a Roman Catholic priest until his brother's death; but on that event he married as stated in the text; after his lady's death, however, he resumed his sacerdotal character and returned to its duties; when he settled the Westmoreland estates upon his two daughters, and went beyond the seas, (to Flanders, where he died circa 1710), having previously settled the Lancaster estate, the manor and abbey of Furness, upon the Jesuits. The legality of this grant was subsequently litigated, and the estate, by the issue of a trial, adjudged to be forfeited to the crown, which seized upon it in consequence, and granted leases, and eventually the fee simple, to the Prestons of Holker, who had been mainly instrumental in bringing to light the illegal settlement made by Sir Thomas Preston. But it must be remembered that the Prestons of Holker were not the right heirs of Sir Thomas, nor could they ever have been while a male descendant of the Prestons of Cockerham was in existence.
(It may as well be stated here, that there is in WEST'S Furness an extremely incorrect and imperfect pedigree of the Prestons of the manor of Holker, which entirely omits the Cockerham branch; whose existence is distinctly proved by a pedigree in the Harl. MSS. 1549, fol. 146, as well as by a pedigree in the Herald's office.)

ANDERTON OF EUXTON.

The following extract from the Mercurius Politicus of August the 16th, a republican paper, describing a visit of King Charles II. to the Andertons of Euxton, shows the violent spirit of the times.

"August 14, 1650. This day Charles Stuart lodged at Euxtonburgh, six miles on this syde of Preston, being Sir Hugh Anderton's house, who was prisoner at Lancaster, but sett at liberty by the Scotts. This Anderton is a bloody papist, and one that, when Prince Rupert was at Bolton, boasted much of being in blood to the elbows on that cruell massacre. The next night theyr king lodged at Brine, six miles from Warrington, being Sir William Gerard's house, who is a subtile jesuited papist. This dissembling Scott trusts none so well in Lancashire for his hostes as the papists."

INTERESTING NEW WORKS.

HISTORY OF THE NOBILITY AND GENTRY.

I.

DEDICATED, BY PERMISSION, TO THE KING.

MR. BURKE'S PEERAGE AND BARONETAGE OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE, FOR 1834.

The fourth edition, in two volumes (comprising all the New Creations), beautifully printed, and illustrated with upwards of 1,500 engravings, among which is a fine likeness of his Majesty, after Sir Thomas Lawrence's celebrated drawing, price 2*l.* 10*s.* bound in morocco cloth.

This new edition comprises three times the number of families that have ever before been presented to the public in any one publication of a similar description. It embraces every family in England, Ireland, and Scotland, invested with hereditary honours, and every individual in the remotest degree allied to those families; so that its collateral information is now considerably more copious than that of any similar work hitherto published.

"This popular work justly deserves to be considered as a History of the British Nobility. It is enriched by a variety of personal anecdotes, never before published, relative to many illustrious houses, in addition to numerous authentic details connected with their lineage, and communicated to the author by the noble inheritors of the titles. The volumes, containing nearly 1,400 pages of letter-press, are moreover illustrated with upwards of 1,500 heraldic plates, and are printed in double columns, with so remarkably clear and beautiful type as to comprise a quantity of matter equal to no less than twelve octavo volumes."—John Bull.

II.

THE EXTINCT AND DORMANT PEERAGE.

By JOHN BURKE, Esq.

Beautifully printed in double columns uniformly with the Peerage and Baronetage, price 1*l.* 8*s.* bound.

This work comprises the whole of the Peerages which have been suspended or extinguished since the Conquest, particularising the members of each family, in each generation, and bringing the lineage, in all possible cases, through either collaterals or females, down to existing houses; it connects, in many instances, the new with the old nobility; and it will, in all cases, show the cause which has influenced the revival of an extinct dignity in a new creation. It should be particularly noticed, that this new work appertains nearly as much to extant as to extinct persons of distinction; for though dignities pass away, it rarely occurs that whole families do.

Mr. Coke has represented the county of Norfolk for several years in parliament. He succeeded to the estates at the decease of his father in 1776.

Lineage.

The family of COKE, from which Mr. Coke derives through female descent, and which he now represents, is deduced by CAMDEN, from

WILLIAM COKE, of Doddington, in the county of Norfolk, mentioned in a deed, anno 1206, who was father, by his wife Felice, of GEOFFREY COKE, of Doddington, from whom descended

SIR EDWARD COKE, the celebrated lawyer. This eminent person, the son of Robert Coke, esq. of Milcham, in the county of Norfolk, and Winifred, his wife, daughter, and one of the heirs of William Knightley, of Morgrave-Knightley, in the same shire, was born at the seat of his father, and at ten years of age sent to the grammar-school at Norwich, whence he removed to Trinity College, Cambridge, where he studied for four years, and was in some years afterwards chosen high-steward of that university. From Cambridge he removed to Clifford's-Inn, and, the year after, he was entered a student in the Inner-Temple, whence he was called to the bar, and being chosen reader in Lyon's-Inn, acquired so much celebrity, that he very soon attained considerable practice. About this period he married Bridget, daughter and co-heir of John Paston, esq. of Huntingfield Hall, in the county of Suffolk, third son of Sir William Paston, of Paston, with whom he acquired a fortune of thirty thousand pounds. An alliance, too, that brought him honours and preferments as well as wealth. The cities of Coventry and Norwich soon after elected him their recorder. The county of Norfolk returned him to parliament, and the House of Commons placed him in the speaker's chair. In the 35th of Elizabeth (1592), Mr. Coke was appointed Solicitor, and the next year Attorney-general. In 1603 he received the honour of knighthood from King James I. at Greenwich, and in three years afterwards was elevated to the bench as chief of the court of Common Pleas, from which he was advanced, in 1613, to the dignity of CHIEF JUSTICE OF ENGLAND (being the last person who bore that title), and sworn of the privy council. His lordship incurred subsequently, however, the displeasure of the court; and while in disgrace, hearing that a noble lord had solicited from the crown a portion of the lands belonging to the church at Norwich, which he had recovered, and settled thereon, he cautioned the peer to desist, or that he would resume his gown and cap, and come into Westminster Hall once again, to plead the cause of the church. Between his paternal property, the great marriage-portion he had with his wife, and his valuable offices and lucrative practice at the bar, Sir Edward Coke realized an estate so ample, that each of his sons possessed a fortune equal to that of an elder brother. Camden, in his Britannia, says, "that he was a person of admirable parts, than whom, as none ever applied himself closer to the study of the law, so never did any one understand it better. Of which he fully convinced England, by his excellent administration for many years together, whilst attorney-general, and by executing the office of Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas with the greatest wisdom and prudence; nor did he give less proof of his abilities in his excellent Reports, and Commentaries upon our Laws, whereby he has highly obliged both his own age and posterity." His lordship d. 3rd September, 1633, at the advanced age of eighty-three. A noble monument was erected to his memory at Tittleshall church, Norfolk, with his effigies habited in judge's robes, lying at full length, under a canopy supported by two marble pillars, on the top of which are four large figures, and between the pillars two marble tables, with these inscriptions:—

He was several times imprisoned, and had his lands confiscated. Upon the restoration, however, he obtained restitution, and was appointed by the king governor of Chester Castle. In Pennant's Wales is recorded a gallant exploit of this stout cavalier. During the battle between Poyntz and Sir Marmaduke Langdale, on Rowton Heath, Colonel Shakerley was commissioned to carry the intelligence of an advantage of the Royalists to the king, in Chester, then beleaguered, and to avoid a troublesome circuit, he crossed the Dee in a tub, his horse swimming at the side; and offered to carry back the king's commands in a quarter of an hour, in the same manner. CHARLES delayed, Poyntz rallied, and the royal cavalry were destroyed, which put an end to his Majesty's project of joining Montrose, who was then in force in Scotland. WILLIAM RAWLIN DE ARCHES, who dying without male issue, his estates passed to his only daughter and heiress,

MAUD DE ARCHES, who conveyed those, (since denominated the manor of Arches,) with other territorial possessions to her husband, John Stowe, of Burford, in the county of Oxford, whose name occurs in the list of Berkshire gentry of 1433. The only daughter and heiress of this marriage,

WILLIAM CONGREVE, the celebrated
DRAMATIST, b. in 1672.

This distinguished person is spoken of in terms of admiration by every English writer who has had occasion to mention his name.
Steele made him the patron of his Miscellany, and Pope inscribed to him the translation of the ILIAD. Placed by circumstances beyond the pecuniary anxieties of an author's profession, he is said to have affected contempt for the profession itself. The anecdote of his telling VOLTAIRE when he came to visit him, that he desired to be considered as a gentleman SOLELY, and not in the light of an author, is one of the mortifying proofs that the highest gifted minds are not always the strongest. The latter years of Congreve's life were rendered miserable by sickness and infirmity. Catarrhs in his eyes produced at length total blindness, and repeated attacks of gout prematurely undermined his

This family, one of the most eminent in the county of Stafford, was settled at CON-GREVE soon after the CONQUEST, and thence derived its surname.

RICHARD CONGREVE, esq. of Congreve, was one of the thirteen Staffordshire gentlemen upon whom King CHARLES II. intended to have conferred the order of the royal knighthood, were the institution of such a degree of knighthood persevered in. He m. Anne, daughter of Sir Thomas Fitz-Herbert, of constitution. He sought relief from the waters at Bath, but the accident of being overturned in his carriage, left a permanent pain in his side, and, probably, accelerated his death, which occurred in January, 1729, in the sixtieth year of his age. The remains of the poet were interred with great solemnity in Westminster Abbey, and Henrietta, Duchess of Marlborough, erected a monument to his memory. To this lady, who is said to have entertained a most romantic regard for him, he bequeathed the great bulk of his fortune. Congreve's occasional poems are so far below mediocrity, that we have not deemed it necessary at all to allude to them. As a dramatist, his fame is imperishable, and he stands, if not at the head, in the very first class of writers of comedy. Not so much, however, for his humorous and natural portraits, as for those of eccentricity. His wit, indeed, flashes upon us almost to annoyance, and it is often difficult to distinguish the false humour of his foibles from the genuine sallies of his lively characters. We shall conclude these observations with Congreve's literary character, from the pen of Doctor JOHNSON. "Congreve has merit of the highest kind; he is an original writer, who borrowed neither the model of his plot, nor the manner of his dialogue. He formed a peculiar idea of comic excellence, which he supposed to consist of gay remarks and unexpected answers, but that which he endeavoured he seldom failed of performing. His scenes exhibit not much of imagery or passion; his personages are a kind of intellectual gladiators—every sentence is to ward or strike; but they are the work of a mind replete with images, and quick in combination."

Mr. Congreve was s. by his elder son,

JOHN CONGREVE, esq. of Congreve, who m. Mary, daughter of Thomas Nichols, esq.

EDMUND-RODNEY-POLLEXFEN, b. 7th September, 1825.
Baldwin-John-Pollexfen, b. 11th March, 1830.
William-Pollexfen, b. 12th January, 1832.

Mr. Bastard, who represented the county of Devon in several parliaments, succeeded to the estates upon the demise of his father, in 1816.

Lineage.

The family of BASTARD has been seated in Devonshire ever since the CONQUEST. Robert Bastard appears in Domesday Book to have had grants of Eford Meavy, Stonehouse, Blackford, Badestone, Haraldesore, Cumbe, Dunestantone, and Bicheford, all in the county of Devon. His descendants have intermarried with the heiresses of Crispin and of Killiowe, in the county of Cornwall, and into the families of Fitz-Stephen, Besilles, Duzarell, Gilbert, Reynell, Hele, and Bampfyde, and have at different periods served as sheriffs of the county. Their seat for many generations was at Garston, near Kingsbridge, until about the end of the seventeenth century.

WILLIAM BASTARD, esq. by marriage with the heiress of Pollexfen, of Kitley, acquired that estate, which has since been the family residence. His son,

POLLEXFEN BASTARD, esq. of Kitley, m. Lady Bridget Poulett, daughter of John, first Earl Poulett, and was s. at his decease in 1733, by his eldest son,

WILLIAM BASTARD, esq. of Kitley. In 1779, a powerful French fleet appearing in the Channel, great alarm was excited for the safety of the Dock Yard and Arsenal at Plymouth, on account of a large number of French prisoners confined there, for the removal of whom no troops could be spared from the garrison, already insufficient for the defence of the place. Mr. Bastard, as a reward for his services in conducting these prisoners to Exeter, assisted only by the gentry and peasantry of the neighbourhood whom he had collected on the occasion, was created a baronet by his late Majesty. The title was gazetted in 1779, but has never been assumed. He m. Ann, daughter of Thomas Worsley, esq. of Hovingham, in the county of York, and had issue,

He m. Sarah, widow of — Wymondsold, esq. of Lockinge, in the county of Berks, by whom he acquired the estates belonging to that family, but dying without issue in 1816, he was s. by his brother,

EDMUND BASTARD, esq. sometime M.P. for Dartmouth, who m. Jane, daughter and heiress of Captain Pownoll, R. N. of Sharp-ham, Devon, and had issue,

EDMUND-POLLEXFEN, present proprietor, John, a captain in the Navy, and M.P. for Dartmouth, who inherited the Pownoll estates, and resides at Sharp-ham. He m. Frances, daughter and co-heiress of Benjamin Wade, of the Grange, in the county of York, esq.

Philomen-Pownoll, in holy orders, m.

William (Sir). Of this gentleman the following quaint anecdote is related.

“Having one day lente HENRY VIII. his signet to seale a letter, which having powdered eremites on the seale, why how now, Wise, quoth the king, what, hast thou lice here? And if it like your majestie, quoth Sir William, a louse is a rich coate, for by giving the louse, I part names with the French king, in that he giveth the floure de lice. Whereat the king laughed heartily to heare how prettily so byting a taunt (namely proceeding from a king) was so daintily turned to so pleasante a conceite.”

wards called RED CASTLE), raised a body of the Welsh, and regularly besieged it, his niece and her husband being at that time residing therein; whereupon the king directed his precept to Roger de Mortimer, then justice of Wales, to march thither for their relief and protection. Again, however, they were disturbed by the said Gryffin, who had summons to appear before the king, to answer for his proceedings: and to render John Charlton and his wife more secure in their title, they had a royal charter in the 7th of EDWARD II. confirmatory of all their lands and castles in NORTH WALES, SOUTH WALES, and Powys; in which year (26th July, 1313) John Charlton was summoned to parliament as BARON CHARLTON, and from that period to 25th July, 1353. Mr. Peter has been, for many years, a deputy warden and lieutenant, and one of the chairmen of the Court of Quarter Sessions, of the county of Cornwall.

Lineage.

This family has been for several centuries resident, and possessed of lands, in the west of England. According to Risdon and other antiquaries, the Lady Alice Pole, in the reign of Henry III. gave the manor and castle of Compton, in Devonshire, "to one of the family of Peter, whose posterity afterwards took the name of the place." Another branch settled at Torr-Newton, in the adjacent parish of Torr-Brian, of which was,

JOHN PEETER OR PETRE, who lived in the reigns of Richard II. and Henry IV. By his wife Alice he left issue two sons,

1. JOHN, his successor.

2. Nicholas, who succeeded to his mother's estates in Dorsetshire, and residing at Bakebeare, in that county, was M. P. for Shaftesbury in the 28th of Henry VI. and d. s. p.

JOHN PETER, the elder brother, inherited his father's estates in Devonshire, and left issue by his wife, a son named

WILLIAM PETER, who, as it appears from an inquisition taken in the 12th of Edward IV. was seised of Torr-Newton, Bakebeare, and other lands in the counties of Devon, Dorset, and Hants, and was at that time twenty-four years of age. By his wife Joan, he had several children, among whom were

1. JOHN, who inherited Torr-Newton and other estates in Devon, and who, by Alice, daughter of John Collins, esq. of Woodlands, in the same county, was father of Sir William Peter or Petre, principal secretary of state in the reigns of HENRY VIII., EDWARD VI., MARY, and ELIZABETH, and ancestor of the Lords PETRE, of Writtle, in the county of Essex.

2. WILLIAM.

WILLIAM PETER, the younger son, succeeded to his father's estates at Milton in Hampshire, and Bakebeare in Dorsetshire, and further increased his patrimony by his marriage with Joan, the only daughter of Sir Roger Arundel, of Calwoodley, in the county of Devon, by which lady he had issue three sons,

1. Roger, who d. young.
2. William, who succeeded his father, but d. s. p. in the 37th Henry VIII.
3. JOHN.

The third son,

JOHN PETER, resided at Bowhay, near Exeter, and was one of the representatives of that city in the first parliament of PHILIP and MARY. He married his cousin Wilmot, daughter of John Peter, esq. of Torr-Newton, and sister to Sir William Petre, and died in 1579, at a very advanced age, leaving a numerous progeny of sons and daughters, amongst whom were

1. John, who was M. P. for Dartmouth in the 1st of PHILIP and MARY (the same parliament in which his father represented Exeter), and d. s. p. in the life-time of his father.
2. Otho, who succeeded his father in his Devonshire estates, and was seated at Bowhay.*

3. THOMAS.

THOMAS PETER, the third son, to whom his father had made gift of divers lands in Cornwall (which lands had been acquired by William Peter in marriage with Joan Arundel), espoused Agnes, daughter of Thomas Godolphin, esq.† (by his second wife, a daughter of — Granville), and was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT PETER, esq. who was bred a soldier, and served with credit under Sir Edward Poynings at Havre, and in the Low Countries. In the 13th of Elizabeth he was M. P. for Fowey, in the 14th, for Penryn, and in the 28th of the same reign, for Dartmouth. He m. Thomasine, daughter of John Kestell, of Kestell, in the county of Cornwall, esq. and left issue,

HENRY PETER, esq. who was M. P. for Fowey in the first parliament of James I. and who m. in 1609, Deborah, daughter of John Treffry, esq. of Place. Henry Peter d. in 1619, leaving issue, a son,

THOMAS PETER, esq. b. in 1610, who m. in 1632, Elizabeth, only daughter and heiress of Henry Michell, esq. of Harlyn, in the county of Cornwall, which place had been acquired by the Michells, in the reign of Henry VII. in marriage with an heiress of the Tregoyes, a family, which, according to Carew, ranked amongst the English nobility, in the time of WILLIAM the Conqueror. Having been an active royalist in the civil wars, between Charles and his Parliament, ter and heiress, Catherine, m. her cousin Allen, first Earl Bathurst.

2. Frances, m. to Sir Benjamin Bathurst.

Upon Otho Peter (a member of this branch of the family) the following curious epitaph is to be seen in Exminster Church, near Exeter.

DYMOKE, OF SCRIVELSBY.

The King's Champion.

DYMOKE, HENRY, Esq. of Scrivelsby Court, in the county of Lincoln, The Honorable THE KING'S CHAMPION, b. 5th March, 1801; succeeded to the estates and the hereditary championship at the decease of his father, the Reverend John Dymoke, on the 3rd Dec. 1828, having previously executed the official duties of champion as deputy for that gentleman at the coronation of his late Majesty King GEORGE IV. Mr. Dymoke m. 14th January, 1823, Emma, daughter of William Pearce, esq. of Weasenhall, in Norfolk, and Holm Cottage, Richmond, Surrey, by whom he has an only daughter, EMMA-JANE, b. 11th February, 1826.

This gentleman is the seventeenth of his family who has inherited the ancient office of CHAMPION.

Lineage.

This family ranks in point of antiquity, male and female, with the most ancient in the kingdom. It derives the singular office of CHAMPION from the celebrated baronial house of MARMYUN, or MARMYON, with the feudal MANOR OF SCRIVELSBY, to which the championship is attached.

At the time of the Norman Conquest,

ROBERT DE MARMYON, Lord of Fontney, in Normandy, having by grant of King William the castle of Tamworth, in the county of Warwick, with the adjacent lands, expelled the nuns from the abbey of Polesworth, to a place called Oldbury, about four miles distant. "After which," (writes Sir William Dugdale,) "within the compass of a twelvemonth, as it is said, making a costly entertainment at Tamworth Castle, for some of his friends, amongst whom was Sir Walter de Somerville, Lord of Whichover, in the county of Stafford, his sworn brother, it happened, that as he lay in his bed, St. Edith appeared to him in the habit of a veiled nun, with a crosier in her hand, and advertised him, that if he did not restore the abbey of Polesworth, which lay within the territories belonging to his castle of Tamworth, unto her successors, he should have an evil death, and go to hell. And, that he might be the more sensible of this her admonition, she smote him on the side with the point of her crosier, and so vanished away. Moreover, that by this stroke being much wounded, he cried out so loud, that his friends in the house arose; and, finding him extremely tormented with the pain of his wound, advised him to confess himself to a priest, and vow to restore the nuns to their former possessions. Furthermore, that having so done, his pain ceased; and that in accomplishment of his vow, accompanied by Sir Walter de Somerville, and the rest, he forthwith rode to Oldbury; and, craving pardon of the nuns for the injury done, brought them back to Polesworth, desiring that himself, and his friend Sir Walter de Somerville, might be reputed their patrons, and have burial for themselves and their heirs in the abbey—the Marmions in the chapter house—the Somerviles in the cloyster. However some circumstances in this story (continues Dugdale,) may seem fabulous, the substance of it is certainly true; for it expressly appeareth by the very words of his charter, that he gave to Osanna the prioress, for the establishing of the religion of those nuns there, the church of St. Edith, of Polesworth, with its appurtenances, so that the convent of Oldbury should remain in that place; and likewise bestowed upon them the whole lordship of Polesworth: which grant King Stephen afterwards confirmed." The castle and manor of Tamworth, in Warwickshire, and the manor of Scrivelsby, in the county of Lincoln, were granted by the Conqueror to this Robert de Marmion, to be held by grand serjeanty, "to perform the office of champion at the king's coronation," (the Marmions, it is said, were hereditary champions to the Dukes of Normandy, prior to the conquest of England). Robert Marmion was succeeded at his decease by his son and heir,

ROBERT DE MARMYON, Lord of Fontney, in Normandy, where he possessed a fortified castle, which was besieged by Geoffrey, of Anjou, in the 4th of King Stephen, and demolished. This Robert having a great enmity to the Earl of Chester, who had a noble seat at Coventry, entered the priory there in the 8th of Stephen, and, expelling the monks, turned it into a fortification, digging at the same time divers deep ditches in the adjacent fields, which he caused to be covered over with earth, in order to secure the approaches thereto; but the Earl of Chester's forces drawing near, as he rode out to reconnoitre, he fell into one of those very ditches, and broke his thigh, so that a common soldier, presently seizing him, cut off his head. He was s. by his son,

ROBERT DE MARMION, who, in the 31st Henry II., being constituted sheriff of Worcestershire, continued in that office until the end of the four-and-thirtieth year of the same reign. He was also justice itinerant in Warwickshire, and some other counties, and again sheriff of Worcestershire in the 1st of Richard I. In five years afterwards he attended that monarch into Normandy, and in the 15th of King John he was in the expedition then made into Poitou. This feudal lord died about the year 1217, leaving issue, by different mothers,

ROBERT, his successor.

Robert, jun., who had the estate of Wittingham and Coninsby, in the county of Lincoln.

William, of Torington.

He was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT DE MARMION, who appears to have sided with the French, when they seized upon Normandy in the beginning of King John's reign, for the murder of Arthur, Duke of Brittany; but afterwards to have made his peace, for in the 5th of Henry III. he had livery of Tamworth Castle and his father's other lands. He is supposed to have returned to Normandy in twelve years afterwards, and to have died there in 1241, when he was s. by his son,

PHILIP DE MARMION, who was sheriff for the counties of Warwick and Leicester, from the 33rd to the 36th of Henry III.—in the latter of which years he was questioned for sitting with Richard de Mundevill, and the rest of the justices, for gaol delivery at Warwick, having no commission so to do. The next year he attended the king into Gascony; upon his return whence he was taken prisoner by the French at Pontes, in Poitou, with John de Plesssets, then Earl of Warwick, notwithstanding they had letters of safe conduct from the king of France. In the 45th of the same reign this feudal lord had summons to be at London with divers of the nobility, upon the morrow after Simon and Jude's day; in which year the defection of many of the barons began further to manifest itself, by their assuming the royal prerogative, in placing sheriffs throughout different shires. In this period of difficulty Philip de Marmion, being of unimpeachable loyalty, had, by special patent from the king, the counties of Suffolk and Norfolk committed to his custody, with the castles of Norwich and Orford: a well-judged confidence, for through all the subsequent fortunes of Henry III. he never once swerved from his allegiance. He was present at the battle of Lewes—and his fidelity was rewarded after the royal victory of Evesham, by some valuable grants for life, and the governorship of Kenilworth Castle. He m. Joane, youngest daughter, and eventually sole heiress of Hugh de Kilpec, of Kilpec Castle, in Herefordshire, by whom he had four daughters, his co-heirs, viz.

Joane, m. to William Morteyn, and died s. p. in 1294.

Margery, m. to Ralph Cromwell, and had an only daughter and heiress, Joane, m. to Alexander, Baron Freville, whose grandson,

SIR BALDWIN DE FREVILLE, Lord Freville, claimed the championship in the 1st Richard II. by the tenure of Tamworth Castle, but the matter was decided against him, in favour of Sir John Dymoke.

Maud, m. to Ralph Botiller, and d. s. p.

JOAN,* who had the manor of Scrivelsby, m. Sir Thomas de Ludlow, knt. and had issue,

John de Ludlow, who d. s. p.

* Banks, in his History of Marmyun, says, that this lady was by a second wife, Mary.

MARGARET DE LUDLOW, sole heiress of her brother, with whom we shall proceed as wife of SIR JOHN DYMOKE.

MARGARET DE LUDLOW, upon the decease of her brother, became sole heiress (Banks makes her granddaughter of Sir Thomas de Ludlow and Joan Marmyon), and inherited the manor of SCRIVELSBY, in Lincolnshire; she espoused

SIR JOHN DYMMOK,* knt. and this gentleman thus acquired, with that baronial estate, the office of KING'S CHAMPION. In the 46th and 47th of EDWARD III. Sir John Dymoke represented with William Marmyon, the county of Lincoln in parliament, and in the 1st Richard II. he was again one of the knights for Lincolnshire. At the coronation of this monarch he executed the office of KING'S CHAMPION, and was the first person so officially employed at the coronation of an English prince.† Sir John d. in the 4th of the same reign, leaving Margaret, his wife, surviving, who d. in the 2nd HENRY V. at which time, THOMAS, her son and heir, was sixty years of age and upwards. The said

SIR THOMAS DYMMOK was one of those eminent persons who, immediately prior to the coronation of King HENRY IV. was made a Knight of the Bath, at the Tower. On the coronation day he performed the office of † His right was, however, disputed by Sir Baldwin Freville, then Lord of Tamworth, who exhibited before the court of claims his pretensions to be KING'S Champion, and to the service appertaining to that office, by reason of his tenure of Tamworth Castle, viz.

"To ride completely armed upon a barbed horse into Westminster Hall, and there to challenge the combat with whomsoever should dare to oppose the King's title to the crown."

Which service the Barons Marmyon, his ancestors, Lords of that castle, had theretofore performed. But Sir John Dymoke counter-claimed the same office as Lord of Scrivelsby. Whereupon the constable and marshal of England appointed the said Sir John Dymoke to perform the office at that time.

CHAMPION as deputy to his mother, then living. And again at the coronation of the renowned HENRY V. he executed the duties of the same office, in the same manner, on behalf of his mother. Sir Thomas m. Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Sir Richard Hebdon, knt. (by his wife, the daughter and heir of Rye) and dying in the last year of HENRY V. was s. by his son,

SIR PHILIP DYMMOK, then twenty-two years old and upwards, who officiated as CHAMPION at the coronation of HENRY VI. Upon this occasion a mandate was made by the King to the keeper of his wardrobe, to deliver to the said Philip Dymmok (then not knighted) such furniture, &c. as his ancestors had been accustomed to have upon these occasions. This Champion espoused Joane, daughter of Sir Christopher Conyers, of Stokeburn, and d. in the 23rd HENRY VI. leaving his son, and successor,

SIR THOMAS DYMMOK, then twenty-seven years of age and upwards. This Champion made a conspicuous figure in the reign of EDWARD IV. His connection, however, with the Lords Welles, and a suspicion that he favoured the Lancastrian interest, led him to a premature death upon the scaffold (refer to Burke's Extinct and Dormant Peerage, article WELLES). The elder son and heir,

* The WATERTONS were a Lincolnshire family of distinction, and were frequently sheriffs of that county.

SIR ROBERT DYMOKE was of very tender years at the time of his father's unhappy death. But he had no sooner arrived at maturity, than the King, as if to compensate for the fate of his father, admitted him to have livery of all his inheritance, as well of those lands which came through the late Champion, as of those other estates which had devolved upon him through his mother, the co-heiress of Welles and Waterton, without any account to be taken, either as to their value and extent, or of such fine as the King might be entitled to claim due to the crown upon such occasions.* Sir Robert officiated as Champion at the coronations of RICHARD III. HENRY VII. and HENRY VIII. He was a military man, and one of the principal commanders at the siege of Tournay, where, after the surrender of the city, he was constituted King's treasurer. He was a KNIGHT BANNERET, and was sheriff of Lincolnshire in the 2nd RICHARD III. 18th HENRY VII. and 1st Henry VIII. This distinguished champion espoused, first, Anne, daughter of Alexander Cressnore, by whom he had three daughters. He m. secondly, Jane, daughter and co-heir of John Sparrow, of London, by whom he had a son,

Sir Robert d. 13th April, 1544, and was buried at Scrivelsby. He was s. by his son,

SIR EDWARD DYMOKE. This gentleman was sheriff of the county of Lincoln, in the life-time of his father, anno 1536; an office which he also filled in the 1st EDWARD VI. and 2nd and 3rd of PHILIP and MARY, in which reigns, as well as in that of Queen ELIZABETH, he was repeatedly returned one of the county representatives to parliament. "Sept. 18. A colonel's guard mounted at Whitehall, and were placed at all the avenues to the abbey, hall, &c.; at night Westminster Hall was illuminated, and John Dymoke, esq. put on his armour and tried a grey horse (which his late majesty rode at the battle of Dettingen) before their Royal Highnesses the Duke of York and Prince Henry, the Duke of Devonshire, &c.; several other horses were walked and rode up and down the hall; and Earl Talbot also tried the horse he intended to ride on the coronation day."

THE REV. JOHN DYMOKE, rector of Scrivelsby, prebendary of Lincoln, &c. Mr. Dymoke espoused, 19th July, 1799, Amelia-Jane-Alice, daughter of Captain Elphinstone, of the British

* In July, 1814, Lewis Dymoke, esq. uncle of the present champion, presented a petition to the crown, praying to be declared entitled to the BARONY OF MARMYON, of Scrivelsby, in virtue of the seizure of the manor of Scrivelsby; which petition was referred to the attorney-general, who having reported thereon, the same was referred to the House of Lords, where evidence was received at the bar, and the claimant's counsel summoned up, when the attorney-general was heard in reply, and tendered some documents on the part of the crown; but the claimant died before the judgment of the house was given.

"With respect to this claim," says Nicolas, "it is to be observed, that though the manor of Scrivelsby was held by the service of performing the office of king's champion by Robert de Marmyon, in the reign of William the Conqueror, he was not by seizure thereof a baron, but by seizure of the barony and castle of TAMWORTH, which he held of the king in capite by knights' service; so that, if at this period baronies by tenure were admitted, the possessor of the manor and lordship of Tamworth, (which in the division of his property fell to the share of Joane, his eldest daughter, wife of William Mosteyn, and on her death s. p. to Alexander Freville, husband of Joan, daughter and heir of Ralph Cromwell, by Maura, the next sister of the said Joan de Mosteyn,) would possess the claim to the barony enjoyed by Robert de Marmyon, he having derived his dignity from that barony instead of from the seizure of the manor of Scrivelsby. Moreover, if Philip Marmyon, the last baron, had died seized of a barony in fee, Lewis Dymoke was not even a co-heir of the said Philip, though he was the descendant of one of his daughters and co-heirs."

Seat—Scrivelsby Court, county of Lincoln.

The chief part of Scrivelsby Court, the ancient baronial seat, was destroyed by fire sixty or seventy years ago. In the part consumed was a very large hall, on the pannels of the wainscoting of which was depicted the various arms and alliances of the family through all its numerous and far-traced descents. The loss has been, in some degree, compensated by the addition which the late proprietors made to those parts which escaped the ravages of the flames. Against the south wall of the chancel, in the parish church of Scrivelsby, is a very handsome marble monument, ornamented with a bust of the Hon. Lewis Dymoke, champion at the coronation of the two first sovereigns of the House of Brunswick. On the north side of the chancel is a marble tablet to the memory of the Hon. John Dymoke, who performed the duties of champion at the coronation of King GEORGE III. On the floor of the south side of the communion table is a plate of copper, on which is an inscription to the memory of Sir Charles Dymoke, kn. who was champion at the coronation of King JAMES II. At the eastern end of the aisle are two tombs, on one of which is the figure of a knight in chain armour, cross-legged, on the other that of a lady with a lion at her feet. By the side of these is the tomb of Sir Robert Dymoke, who was champion at the coronations of RICHARD III. HENRY VII. and HENRY VIII. On the floor of the aisle is also a stone which once contained a brass figure, with corner shields, and an inscription, all of which are now gone.

Calveley, of Lea. He espoused Katherine, daughter and heiress of William, son of Adam de Over Tabley, and upon this marriage one-third part of Over Tabley was settled on Sir Thomas De Anyers and his wife. His eldest son,

THOMAS DE ANYERS, of Over Tabley, m. Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Richard Aston, of Aston, and widow of Thomas Boydell, jun. of Gropenhale, and left at his decease, in 1431, with other issue, a son and successor,

The matter was not, however, fully settled until the award of William Hill, prebendary of Lichfield, 23rd HENRY VIII. when William Daniell, of Longdon, in Staffordshire, who claimed as next heir to Daniell, of Lymme, as son of William, brother of John Daniell, late of Cherry Tree Hurst, conveyed all his right in those lands to Thomas De Anyers, esq. grandson of this Thomas.

His estates were left, by will, in the first instance strictly entailed upon strangers, of whom the first were his great nephews, the sons of Charles Duckenfield, esq. of Moberly, in Cheshire, by whom the name and arms of Daniell were taken, the entail cut off, and the estates sold. Thus the surviving descendants of Sir Samuel's great uncle, Colonel William Daniell, were deprived of their inheritance, although Colonel William Daniell, in order to repair the injury the Tabley estates had sustained, had left from his own dau. his possessions in Staffordshire to Sir Samuel Daniell's father.

The family of SHAFTO is of great antiquity in the north of England. Some little incidental proof of the rank which the old lords of Shafto held on the border may be gathered from song and tradition. At the "Raid of the Redswire," in 1575, a hostile meeting between the Scotch and English Wardens, one of the war-cries of the latter was, "A Schaftan and a Fenwick." The Scots had the honour of the day, and amongst the many English who were taken prisoners or wounded,

" Young Henry Schaftan he is hurt,
A souldier shot him with a bow."*

He gave to the archbishop and chapter of York, from the abovementioned quarry in Theves-dale, the stone of which the noble edifice, the Minster, was erected. He also made and founded St. Leonard's Chapel, in his castle at Haselwood, which, on the foregoing account, was made extra-parochial by the archbishop: the king's charter for the chapel is dated 29th April, 1286, Edward I.: the confirmation is dated 5th June, 1452, being the 31st of Henry VI. Sir Thomas Vavasour, the lineal descendant of this baron, so distinguished himself, with others of the nobility, by raising forces and equipping vessels to defend Queen Elizabeth against the Spanish armada, that the queen, in reward of this zeal, and out of particular regard for one of her maids of honor, who was a Vavasour, and acknowledged by her majesty as her kinswoman, would never suffer the chapel at Haselwood to be molested, where the Roman catholic rites still continue to be celebrated. STRICKLAND, OF SIZERGH.

STRICKLAND, THOMAS, esq. of Sizergh, in the county of Westmorland, b. 15th March, 1790; m. in November, 1824, Mademoiselle Ida de Finguerlin Bisahengen, youngest daughter of the Baron Finguerlin Bisahengen, and has a son and heir, WALTER, b. at Paris, 5th September, 1825.

Mr. Strickland inherited the estates upon the demise of his father.

Lineage.

We shall begin the detail of this ancient family with an extract from Nicholson and Barn's History of the Antiquities of Westmorland and Cumberland.

"In Helsington there hath been a family at Sizergh Hall, much more ancient than any of the names of Bindlow or Bellingham, as lords of the manor. Which family came from Strickland, (or rather Stirkland,) which was the pasture ground of the young cattle (called stirks or steers) in the parish of Morland, in this county, in which part they had considerable possessions, as well as at Sizergh and other adjacent places, generally holden under the barons of Kendal. It is somewhat extraordinary, that amongst the pedigrees of almost all the other ancient families in this county we have met with no satisfactory account of this family; but the indulgence of the late worthy owner of Sizergh Hall, Charles Strickland, esq. we have been enabled to make out a regular and authentic deduction of this family from the clearest and most undeniable evidence, viz. the family writings."

The first of the name of Strickland met with is in the reign of King JOHN, when Gilbert Fitz Reinfred having been compelled, on account of his involvement with the rebellious barons, to give hostages for his future conduct, which hostages were the sons, daughters, and heirs of the principal mense lords holding under the barons of Kendal, amongst whom was the son and heir of SIR WALTER DE STIRKLAND. In the time of Hugh, bishop of Carlisle, who came to the see towards the beginning of the reign of King HENRY III., this Sir Walter had license to keep a domestic chaplain in his family, within the parish of Morland, so as it should be of no prejudice to the mother church. Sir Walter Stirkland granted to the church of St. Mary's, York, and to the prior and monks of Wederhal (which was a cell of the said abbey) four acres of land, in the territory of Stirkland moulter free.

The son of this Sir Walter was

ADAM DE STIRKLAND, whose son,

SIR ROBERT DE STIRKLAND, granted by deed, dated at his manor of Great Stirkland, on the eve of St. John the Baptist, 23rd HENRY III. to William his son, and Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Ralph Deincourt, knt. on their marriage, his whole manor of Great Strickland. This Sir Ralph Deincourt had an only son, Ralph, at whose decease, without issue, the inheritance devolved upon the above Elizabeth Strickland. Sir Robert was s. by his son,

SIR WILLIAM DE STRICKLAND, who, in the 4th EDWARD I. was under-sheriff of the county of Westmorland. He confirmed in the 20th EDWARD I. the grant made by his great grandfather, to the abbot of St. Mary's, York, and the monks of Wedeshal, and was s. at his decease by his son,

SIR WALTER DE STRICKLAND, who in the 28th EDWARD I. was with the king at the siege of Carlaverok, and in the 1st and 6th of EDWARD II. was knight of the shire for Westmorland. In the 15th of the same reign, he was appointed sheriff of the county of Westmorland. In two years afterwards he was again knight of the same shire. In the 9th of EDWARD III. Sir Walter obtained a grant to inclose his wood and demesne lands at Sizergh, and to make a park there, and to hold the same so inclosed to him and his heirs for ever.

This Sir Walter, on the marriage of his son, Thomas, with Cecilia, daughter of Robert de Wells, settled the manor of Hackethorp and his lands in Overwinder, &c. on the issue of that marriage, with remainder to John and Ralph, his other two sons. He appears to have had issue,

THOMAS, his successor.

John, who was knight of the shire for Westmorland 1st EDWARD III., and to whom Sir Walter granted 7th of the same reign, all his lands of Whentell, with remainder to his son Thomas.

Ralph.

In the 17th EDWARD III. Sir Walter again represented the county in parliament, and was s. upon his demise by his eldest son,

SIR THOMAS STRICKLAND, who in the 35th of EDWARD III. obtained a patent empowering him to impark his woods at Helsington, Levesnes, and Hackethorp, containing three hundred acres, for his good services done in France. In the same year, Katharine de Ross, daughter of Sir Thomas Strickland, and widow of John de Ross, of Kendal Castle, assigns over to her father (Sir Thomas) the ward and marriage of her daughter, Elizabeth de Ross, who was afterwards married, in the 8th RICHARD II., to Sir William del Parr.

In the 36th EDWARD III. there is an indenture of covenant between Sir Thomas Strickland and Ranulph de Dacre, lord of Gillesland, concerning the marriage of Walter, his son and heir, with Margaret de Latham, niece of Ranulph. In four years after, Sir Thomas made a settlement of lands, at Siggeswick and Levens, upon his younger sons, John, Peter, and Thomas, for life, with remainder to his own right heirs. Sir Thomas had a fifth son, William, who was consecrated bishop of Carlisle, 24th August, 1400, and who d. at Rome in 1419.

Sir Thomas d. in 1377, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR WALTER DE STRICKLAND. This gentleman had no issue by his first wife, Margaret de Latham. He espoused, secondly, Isabella, daughter of John de Olney, which John, in the 5th of RICHARD II., settled upon the issue of that marriage a tenement in London, known by the name of Great Place, situate in the parish of St. Mary-at-Hill. In the 14th of RICHARD II. Sir Walter was escheater for the king on the inquisition post mortem of Thomas de Ross, and, in four years after, was a knight of the shire for Westmorland. He was s. by his eldest son,

SIR THOMAS DE STRICKLAND, who in the 5th of HENRY V. conveyed his whole estate to trustees, that if he should die in his voyage to serve the king, they should enfeoff Mabel his wife therein, during her widowhood; and if she should die before his son Walter should come of age, then they were to receive the profits during his nonage, delivering the same to William de Tunstale and John de Wessington. In the 5th of HENRY VI. Sir Thomas entered into articles of agreement with Nicholas de Crofte, esq. wherein both parties become bound under the penalty of £400. for the solemnization of a marriage between Walter Strickland, Sir Thomas's son and heir, with Douce, daughter of the said Nicholas, when he the said Nicholas should attain his fourteenth year.

In the 7th Henry VI. Sir Thomas represented the county of Westmorland in parliament.

In the 9th of the same reign Sir Thomas went to London, and joined the solemn cavalcade that was to attend the young king to Paris, in order to his coronation.

In the 10th Henry VI. Pope EUGENIUS IV. granted to Sir Thomas, and Mabel, his se for a domestic chapel and porch, which Bull is yet extant, with lead very fair, about the breadth that more than double the thick-half-a-crown, with a cross on one underneath EVGENIVS PPIII. reverse, two faces of venerable old above, the letters SPASPE. Sir as s. by his son,

R STRICKLAND, esq. In the 15th of this gentleman had a grant of keeper of the park of Calgarth. Next year the king appointed him general of all his rents in and about with a fee of £10 per annum, and when upon duty. And afterwards of these, the king granted to annager and herbage of the said fishing of Windermere, and all and tenements in the hamlets of site and Undermelbeck, for term paying to the king five marks

18th of Henry VI. this Walter to the king the demand of one marks, due to the said Walter, crown, for taking of Henry Talbot, notorious traitor of our Lord HENRY King of England, by virtue of the son of the said late king; in consequence of the king's granting to him the master of the king's dogs called

In consequence of this alliance and his marriage settlement, Mr. Ward assumed by sign manual, the additional surname and arms of PLUMER. He was educated at Christ Church, Oxford; called to the bar, and appointed in 1805, one of the Welsh judges, but retired from the profession to become under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. He was afterwards, from 1807 to 1811, a Lord of the Admiralty; Clerk of the Ordnance from 1811 to 1823; and finally Auditor of the Civil List, until the abolition of that office in 1831.

Mr. Plumer-Ward is now (1832) High Sheriff for the county of Herts. He is distinguished in the literary world as the author of the History of the Law of Nations, and of TREMAINE, DE VERE, &c. &c.

* The eminent house of SWINBURNE is amongst the most ancient in the kingdom deriving from the fewer of the nobility of Europe, and bearing no less than eighty-six quarterings in its shield. It enumerates as lineal progenitors, the early kings of France, many emperors, dukes of Normandy, the Plantagenets, kings of England, the Percies, (including Horspur) the Nevilles, all the Greys, the Willoughbys D'Eresby, the Warrens, Howards, Cliffords, Vescis, Mortimers, Fitzhughs, Fitzalans, Fitzwalters, Ratcliffs; the Bohuns, Vauxes, Dacres of the North, Widvilles, De Ross, De la Poles, Mowbrays, Beauchamps, &c. &c. Of the twenty-five barons who wrenched MAGNA CHARTA from John, it is a fact worthy of observation, that eighteen were direct ancestors of the Swinburnes.

Lineage.

This branch of the family of WARD has long borne the same ARMS as the noble house of WARD, Viscounts Bangor, as SETH WARD, Bishop of Salisbury, in the time of CHARLES II., as Chief-baron SIR EDWARD WARD, as the WARDS of Pomfret, and as JOHN WARD of Squirries, Kent; but nothing positive has, as yet, been ascertained regarding its foundation, prior to the year 1704, owing to the fact of

JOHN WARD, esq. having died in the garrison of Gibraltar, where he had previously served at the taking of that celebrated fortress, under Admiral Rook and the Prince of Hesse. He left an only son, an infant, under guardianship,

JOHN WARD, esq. born in the garrison, and who resided almost all his life in Spain. He was a merchant there, and only settled in England in 1782, having previously espoused a Spanish lady, by whom he had issue,

FAMILY OF PLUMER.

The PLUMERS came from Old Windsor, about the year 1660, upon acquiring Gilston and Blakesware in Hertfordshire. HENRY, his successor.

Anne, of Peel, in Lancashire, d. in 1692.

He espoused, secondly, Anne, daughter of George Bowden, esq. of Bowden, in the county of Chester, and had several other children. The name of this Henry Bradshawe is the first to the Cheshire petition, addressed to the two houses of parliament, 6th July, 1646, praying for the establishment of the presbyterian religion. He acted as a magistrate under the parliamentary government, and had a commission in the army, being major in Colonel Dukenfield's regiment, under the appointment of Lord Fairfax, and he had also a lieutenant-colonel's commission in Colonel Ashton's regiment of foot. At a later period he was nominated to the command of the militia of Macclesfield Hundred, and was at its head at the battle of Worcester, where he was wounded. In 1652, Colonel Bradshawe was one of the court martial which sat on the trial of the Earl of Derby and other royalists at Chester. In 1660, the survivors of the persons who constituted that court, including Bradshawe, were summoned to appear before the lords' committee, appointed to consider of the privileges of the peerage of this kingdom, to whom the petition of the Countess of Derby had been referred. On this occasion it appears that Colonel Henry Bradshawe was confined in the house of Thomas Lee, a messenger of the black rod, from the 17th July to the 14th August, 1660, on which day the said Colonel Bradshawe, Henry Bradshawe, of Gray's-inn, and Cromwell Meverell, of Tideswell, in Derbyshire, were bound in £500 to Alexander Thane, gentleman usher of the black rod, for the said colonel's appearance. There were at Marple several forms for an apology or answer of Colonel Bradshawe to the charge against him, the substance of all which amounted to this:—"that being an officer under General Cromwell, he was by him commanded to be present at a court martial at Chester, for the trial of the Earl of Derby, and that not knowing what danger he might incur if he should absent himself, was sometimes, though not constantly, present at the managing the said trial, but never subscribed any warrant for the earl's execution: that he knew not by what authority his lordship was removed from Chester, but on the contrary laboured as much as he could to save the earl's life, and at the instance of the succeeding Earl of Derby, he presented a petition to Colonel Macworth, president of the court, for sparing the earl's life, and did earnestly press it, and should not have been present at the last court, but that he had engaged himself to deliver that petition; that being sent for by the late earl he did immediately attend him, and at his lordship's desire wrote to his brother, John Bradshawe, then president of the council of state, to use his utmost endeavours for sparing the earl's life; that he never had any thing which belonged to the said earl, his countess, or any of theirs: that he was a poor man, indebted, with a small estate, and a poor wife and eleven children, all unprovided, to maintain. Wherefore, intending for the future so to demean himself as becomes an obedient subject, he humbly craved the benefit of his majesty's most gracious pardon, and their lordship's favourable construction of the premises, and that his errors might be imputed to his much lamented ignorance and mistake." Henry Bradshawe obtained his release, as appears by a receipt for £40, dated 14th August, 1660, and signed Alexander Thane, being in full of fees due to him as usher of the black rod, from Colonel Henrie Bradshawe during his confinement; and by another signed Cromwell Meverell, dated 23rd February, 1660, for the colonel's pardon suing out, and thirty shillings paid to the master of the black rod as a gratuity on the delivery in of his bail book. On the 15th March following the said Henry Bradshawe was buried at Stockport: and was s. by his son,

HENRY BRADSHAWE, esq. of Marple and Wyberslegh, who purchased Bradshawe Hall, in the county of Lancaster, in 1683. He m. Magdalen, daughter and co-heiress of Thomas Barcroft, esq. of Barcroft, in the same shire, and had issue,

ROGER ROUS, of Edmerstone, who espoused Julian, daughter of William Hill, of Uggeite and Fleet, in Cornwall, and eventually co-heiress of her brother, John Hill, and had issue,

RICHARD, his successor.

John, who inherited from his mother Halton, and other lands in Cornwall, but dying s. p. bequeathed those estates to his nephew, Sir Anthony Rous, of Edmerstone.

His elder son,

RICHARD ROUS, of Edmerstone, m. Eleanor, daughter of Sir Edmund Mervyn, of Chill, Wilts, one of the judges of the common pleas, and had, with two other sons,

THE ANTHONY ROUS, of Edmerstone, his successor, who inherited his father's estates in Devonshire, as well as Halton, and the other landed possessions of his uncle, John Rous.

Sir Anthony was a man of great talents and virtues. He was twice sheriff of Cornwall, in the 19th and 42nd of Queen Elizabeth, was one of the burgesses elected to serve in parliament for East Looe in the 27th year of that reign; and in the 1st year of King JAMES I. was one of the knights of the shire for Cornwall. He was also provost of Eton college. He d. in the lifetime of the PROTECTOR, and was honoured with public obsequies.*

5. Arthur.

* The following account of his funeral and character is taken from the Mercurius Politicus, a newspaper of the day:—"Monday, the 24th, being the day appointed for the interment of the corpse of the Right Hon. Francis, Lord Rouse, it was performed in this manner: the lords of his Highness's privy council met at his house at Acton, as also divers of the commissioners of the admiralty, and of the officers of the army, with many other persons of honour and quality. His Highness was also pleased to send several of his gentlemen in coaches with six horses to be present at the solemnity; three heralds likewise, or officers at arms, gave their attendance. The corpse was placed in a carriage, covered with a pall of black velvet, adorned with escocheons, and drawn with six horses in mourning furniture. The lords of the council followed it, and the rest, in their order towards Eaton college, by Windsor, where the deceased lord, having been provost, desired he might be interred. A sermon was preached after the burial by Mr. Oxenbridge, one of the fellows, and so the ceremony ended. He needs no monument besides his own printed works to convey his name to posterity; the other works of his life may be termed works of charity, wherein he was most exemplary, as the poor in many parts now with tears will tell you. He chose to lay his bones in his college, because the society had his heart, being men of the same Christian temper with himself; and in his testament he prayed that God would please to continue it (as it is) a famous nursery of piety and learning. I shall add no more but this, that his death was an extraordinary loss to his Highness and good men in particular, and the whole nation in general." Other historians (Clarendon, Wood, &c.) give, however, a very different character of this personage.

6. Elizabeth, m. to John Northcote, esq. THE RIGHT HON. WARDEN FLOOD, of Flood Hall, was chief justice of the court of King's Bench in Ireland. His lordship espoused Miss Whiteside, and dying in 1764, was s. by his son,

THE RIGHT HONORABLE

HENRY FLOOD, of Farmley, in the county of Kilkenny. This eminent person, so celebrated in the eventful history of his native country, was born in 1732, and educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and at Christ Church, Oxford. In the latter university under the care of Mr. Markham, afterwards archbishop of York. In 1759, Mr. Flood obtained a seat in the Irish House of Commons, but during that session took no part in its debates. In 1761, he was re-elected, and became almost immediately afterwards leader of the opposition. The repeal of POYNING'S LAW* first engaged his great powers, and he ultimately succeeded in having the obnoxious clauses of that statute abrogated. His next patriotic effort was the introduction of a bill for limiting the duration of parliaments, which had previously subsisted in Ireland, for the life of the king. This measure he advocated in vain in the administrations of the lords lieutenant, Northumberland and Hertford; but his perseverance and eloquence eventually triumphed, and the OCTENNIAL BILL passed into a law under the government of Lord Townshend. This was the first victory of importance achieved by the friends of freedom in Ireland:—within a very short period the glorious and bloodless revolution of 1782 followed. In 1775, Mr. Flood was sworn of the Privy Council in both kingdoms, and constituted Vice Treasurer of Ireland. In 1781, the Spirit of Liberty, invigorated from the opposite shores of the Atlantic, roused a feeling in Ireland which concession alone could assuage. England was embarrassed, enfeebled, almost prostrate. Ireland was armed, united, and resolved; Mr. Flood saw the crisis, and seized it,—emancipating himself from the trammels of office, he assailed the Minister in the House of Commons, with all the vehemence of his eloquence—all the weight of his patriotism—all the energy of his character—and demanded a restoration of his country's rights. The government cowering before its powerful assailant, and sensible of the instability of its position, relinquished, without procrastination, what could no longer be retained without peril. The patriots, BURGH and GRATTAN, flew across the house upon this memorable occasion, and embraced the orator, the former exclaiming, "this is the man whose integrity the highest office in the land could not warp." In 1785, Mr. Flood was returned to the British House of Commons, and continued a member until the dissolution of that parliament. He died in December, 1795. The history of his country, should that history be ever written with impartiality, will do ample justice to the intrepidity, the disinterestedness, and patriotism of this eminent man, and when it records the illustrious characters which adorned the close of the eighteenth century, it will place upon its brightest page the immortal name of FLOOD.

Amongst his contemporaries HENRY FLOOD enjoyed the most splendid reputation. "Here," said Mr. Curran, speaking of him in a celebrated debate, "all the wisdom of the state is collected, exploring your weakness and your strength, detecting every ambuscade, and pointing to the hidden battery that was brought to bear upon the shrine of freedom." Upon his resignation of the treasurership, Mr. Montgomery "called the attention of the house to a right honorable gentleman (Mr. Flood), the best, the most noble, the most indefatigable, the most sincere, that had ever sacrificed private interest to the advantage of his country." In the debate that ensued, Mr. Flood rose and spoke at considerable length, defending his political conduct, and concluding with the following characteristic sentiment; "My ambition has been when out of office not to be factious, and when in office not to be venal."

We cannot close this notice of Flood, without alluding, at least, to the personal dispute which occurred between him and his co-patriot, HENRY GRATTAN. The discussion of Poyning's law first caused a misunderstanding between these celebrated persons, and a subsequent debate upon the repeal of the 6th GEORGE I.* produced an altercation between them, unparalleled within the walls of parliament, for vituperation, bitterness, and personality. In 1782, Mr. Grattan obtained a simple repeal of that declaratory act, a course which Mr. Flood maintained in two very powerful speeches was no security against England's preferring at any future period a similar pretension founded upon the PRINCIPLE of the measure. Acting upon this opinion he procured a law renouncing the claim for ever. The dispute to which we allude occurred in 1783, and Mr. Flood, in the course of the debate, entered into a long and interesting narrative of his whole political life.

The question of parliamentary reform, Mr. Flood advocated for the first time in the Irish House of Commons, in 1781, with his accustomed force and eloquence. In 1794, he addressed a British parliament upon the same important subject; and his speech upon that occasion was published in 1831, with his reply to Mr. Windham. They are admirable oratorical efforts, and at the time of delivery called forth the highest eulogy from Mr. Pitt.

Had HENRY FLOOD not been one of the most eminent statesmen and orators of the period in which he lived, his translations of Demosthenes, Æschines, and some of the Odes of Pindar, would have stamped him a man of genius, and insured him a place in the temple of fame. Mr. Flood's style of eloquence is described as of the very first order, replete with knowledge, ardent, vigorous, acute, and argumentative; and it is stated, that while he hurried away his auditory by the force of his great reasoning faculties, he delighted every person of taste and judgment, by a certain felicity of diction, which added infinite grace and beauty to his delivery. He sometimes prostrated his adversary by a single word, thus resembling the great Lord Chatham, whose attributes as an orator and statesman he held in the highest veneration.

HENRY FLOOD espoused, 13th April, in 1762, the Lady Frances-Maria Beresford, daughter of Marcus, first Earl of Tyrone, but died without issue. He devised his ex-

Lineage.

ROGER DE ALBINI espoused Amicia de Mowbray, sister of Robert de Mowbray, Earl of Northumberland, and had two sons,

1. WILLIAM, from whom derived the Earls of ARUNDEL, the male line of which eminent house expired in 1243, while the female line, now represented by the Duke of Norfolk, continued the family. (See Burke's Extinct Peerage).

2. NIGEL, of whom we are about to treat.

The second son,

NIGEL DE ALBINI, possessor of one hundred and twenty knight's fees in Normandy, and one hundred and forty in England, m. in 1118, Gundred de Gournay, only child of Gerard de Gournay, by Edith, daughter of William, Earl of Warren and Surrey, by Gundred, daughter of WILLIAM the Conqueror. Their eldest son,

ROGER, by special command of King HENRY I. assumed the surname of MOWBRAY, and the arms of that family. This Roger was one of the chief commanders at the memorable battle fought in 1138 with the Scots near Northallerton, known in history as the BATTLE OF THE STANDARD, and adhering to King Stephen, in his contest with the empress, was taken prisoner with that monarch, at the battle of Lincoln. In 1148 he accompanied Lewis, KING OF FRANCE, to the Holy Land, and there acquired great renown by vanquishing a stout and hardy Pagan in single combat. His grants to the church were munificent in the extreme; and his piety so fervent, that he again assumed the cross, and made a second journey to the Holy Land, where he was taken prisoner, but redeemed by the Knight Templars. He d. soon after in the East, and was interred at Sures. Some authorities say that he returned to England, and living fifteen years longer was buried in the Abbey of Riland. This potent personage wedded Alice, de Gant, and had two sons,

NIGEL.

Robert.

NIGEL DE MOWBRAY, the elder son, assuming the Cross, set out for Palestine, but d. on the journey, leaving by his wife, Mabel, daughter of Edmond, Earl of Clare, four sons, viz.

1. WILLIAM, ancestor of the Mowbrays, Dukes of Norfolk; also of the Howards, Dukes of Norfolk, and the other branches of that puissant house.

2. Philip.*

3. Robert.*

4. Roger.

The second son,

PHILIP DE MOWBRAY, espoused Galiena daughter of Waldeve, Earl of Dunbar, and with her acquired considerable property, particularly the Baronies of Barbougale, Dalmeny, and Inverkeithing. The first mention of this Philip in the records of Scotland occurs in a charter dated 1208. He was ambassador to England in 1215 and 1220, to treat of the marriage of King ALEXANDER II. with the Princess Joan. He had two sons. 1. Roger; and 2. Nigel.

ROGER DE MOWBRAY, the elder son, in a charter to the church of Soltray, confirmed to the Abbey of Jedburgh the donation of the church which Waldeve, the son of Cos-

* Regarding the seniority of these two sons much discussion has arisen. Sir William Dugdale, in his Baronage (I. 124.) arranges the matter thus. 1. William. 2. Robert. 3. Philip. 4. Roger. And says, "Of which Robert I find he tooke to wife a countess of Scotland, who had a fair inheritance there, from whom descended the Mowbrays of that kingdom." But in the Baronage Dugdale refers for his authority to the Monasticon II. 193, which is in these words, "Tunc Rogeri de Mowbray primogenitus fuit Nigelus de Mowbray, qui ei successit, qui habuit in uxore Aliciam de Gant. Hic Nigellus cepit in uxore filiam Edmondi Comitis de Clara, nomine Matildam, et genuit ex ea quatuor filios, scilicet Robertum, Philippum, Rogerum, et Nigellum. Ille vero porro Robertus frater Nigelli, feoffatus fuit in Scotia nobilitate quendam Baronissam, quam cepit in uxore tota terra patris sui et post mortem uxoris in ecclesiam intravit, et multas in manus suas ecclesias in Anglia, in Normannia, et in Scotia. Here Robert, the son of Nigel, is the ancestor to ille; Robert, the brother of Nigel, not occurring previously in the Monasticon, where Dugdale notices Robert, Philip, and Roger, as the sons of Nigel, without mentioning the name of Robert. Had Robert de Mowbray married a countess in her own right their descendants would have been Earls. The succession of the Earls of Scotland, at that early period, is clearly dated by Lord Hales in the Sutherland case. None appears as connected with Robert de Mowbray, who occurs no where in the records of Scotland."

rick, "my grandfather" (avus meus) de to that abbey.

GALFRID DE MOUBRAY, the next on record, one of the magnates Scotiae, from 1287 to 1294, espoused the second daughter of John Cumyn, Justiciary of Scotland, brother of Black John Cumyn, who m. Margaret, sister of John Baliol, King of Scotland. He had issue.

1. William. } both d. s. p.
2. John. }
3. Roger, who, engaging in a conspiracy against King ROBERT in 1320, d. in prison before trial, when his great possessions of Barnbogle and Dalmeny, in the county of Linlithgow, Inverkeithing, in Fife; Cessford and Eckford, in Roxburghshire; Methven, in Perthshire; Kellie, in Forfarshire; Kirk Michael, in the county of Dumfries, the office of Standard Bearer of Scotland, and hostilages were forfeited to the crown.
4. PHILIP (SIR), of whom presently.
5. Galfrid.

The fourth son,

SIR PHILIP DE MOUBRAY, fell with King

Edward at the time in question. William de Mowbray, eldest son of Nigel, executed two charters, inserted in Dugdale's Monasticon II. 190, confirming to the Abbey of Newburgh all the donations made thereto by Roger de Mowbray his grandfather, and Nigel de Mowbray his father, three of the witnesses to which are, "Robert de Mowbray, my uncle, Philip de Mowbray, my brother, Robert de Mowbray, my brother." Here Philip takes precedence of his brother Robert, indicating that he was his elder brother, consequently second son of Nigel. Philip de Mowbray also makes at that period a conspicuous figure in the records of Scotland, where he married Galiena, daughter of Waldev, the potent Earl of Dunbar, with whom he got great possessions in that kingdom. He must have been a person of high birth and consideration, from his thus obtaining in marriage a daughter of one of the most powerful of the Scottish nobility, and from his being employed in important negotiations with England; and no family of consequence of the name of Moubray existed in North Britain at that period, except that of Nigel de Mowbray. From these premises the legitimate conclusions are, that Philip de Mowbray, and not Robert, was second son of Nigel, and that he was ancestor of the Moubrays of Scotland; it is also apparent that the Scottish Countess and Baroness of Dugdale were one and the same person, Galiena, daughter of Waldev, Earl of Dunbar, spouse of Philip de Mowbray.

EDWARD BRUCE at the battle of Dundalk, in 1318. He m. Eve, Lady of Redcastle, in Forfarshire, and had one son and a daughter, viz.

JOHN (SIR), of Redcastle, who was slain at Annan in 1332, on the part of Edward Baliol. His estates were forfeited, and granted to Sir William de Douglas, knt. the grant bearing, that John had succeeded to these estates by hereditary succession to Sir Philip de Moubray, his father,

And

PHILIPPA DE MOUBRAY, designed daughter and heiress of Sir Philip de Moubray in a regal charter 3rd August, 1364. This lady espoused Sir Bartholomew de Loen, a foreign knight, probably of the house of Heynberg, in Guelderland, related to the Dukes of Gueldres, who were connected in marriage with the kings of England and Scotland. Philippa and her husband had Barnbogle, Dalmeny, and Inverkeithing, restored to them by royal charter of 28th May, 1346; and they occur frequently in original instruments down to 1375.

Their only child,

DAVID, assumed, as a matter of course, the distinguished name of his maternal ancestors---MOUBRAY, his father being a foreigner, without property and connexion in Scotland. He was contracted in marriage to the Lady Janet Stewart, daughter of Robert, Earl of Fife and Monteith (afterwards Duke of Albany, and regent of Scotland, son of King ROBERT II.) in 1372, by indenture under which, the estates were provided to the issue of that marriage. In 1401, the lands of Barnbogle, Dalmeny, and Inverkeithing, were the property of

JOHN DE MOUBRAY, indicating that he was son and heir of that marriage. He was subsequently knighted, and a strong proof that he was grandson of the DUKE OF ALBANY, Regent of Scotland, occurs in his forcibly dispossessing Margaret, Lady of Cragy, of her lands of Luckald, in the barony of Dalmeny, "wickedly, contrary to God and all justice," as the record bears, and transmitting them to his son, as none but a near connexion of that unprincipled and powerful governor of the kingdom durst have ventured to act with such flagrant injustice. He was dead before 1st February, 1426, when

PHILIP DE MOUBRAY, of Barnbogle, is described as son and heir of the deceased Sir John de Moubray, knt. Lord of Barn-

bogle, in an instrument of appellation to Pope MARTIN V. of that date. The parliament of Scotland decided, 17th March, 1429--30, that the lands of Luckald should be restored to Margaret, Lady of Cragy, and that she should be replaced in the same as freely as she had been before she was despoiled of them by the deceased John de Moubray, knt. and which lands were unjustly detained from her by Philip de Moubray, who was amerced, and found liable to prosecution for expenses and damages. Philip de Moubray occurs in charters and other documents down to 1477.

PHILIP MOWBRAY, his son, had a charter of the barony of Dalmeny, on his father's resignation, 6th February, 1450--1, and occurs in an indenture 25th January, 1461--2. He wedded Isabel Stewart, and had a son,

SIR DAVID MOUBRAY, of Barnbogle, who was served heir of Philip, his father, 9th March, 1466--7, and last occurs in 1494. He was father of

1. JOHN, of Dalmeny, who predeceased his father, leaving a son,

SIR JOHN MOUBRAY, of Barnbogle, who d. in 1519, leaving an only daughter and heiress,

BARBARA MOUBRAY, who espoused Robert Bartoun, son of Sir Robert Bartoun, of Over-Bartoun, high treasurer of Scotland. In 1527, Robert Bartoun was ordained, by act of parliament, to change his name to MOUBRAY, because "the same has been an old and honourable house, and done our Sovereign Lords predecessors good service in their wars and otherwise." The eldest son of this marriage,

JOHN MOUBRAY, of Barnbogle, was father of

LUTTRELL, OF DUNSTER CASTLE.

LUTTRELL, FOWNES JOHN, esq. of Dunster Castle, in the county of Somerset and Nethway House, Devonshire, member of parliament for Minehead, b. 26 August, 1787, s. to the estates at the decease of his father, in 1816.

Lineage.

The family of LUTTRELL, or LOTERELL, was established in England by one of the chiefs in the Norman Conquest, whose name is to be found in the Roll of Battel Abbey.

In the reigns of HENRY I. and King Stephen, Sir John Luttrell held, in capite, the manor of Hoton Pagnel, in Yorkshire, which vested in his male descendants until the time of HENRY V. when it devolved upon an heiress, who espoused John Scott, feudal lord of Calverley, and steward of the household to the Empress MAUD.

The estates of Sir Geoffry Luttrell, knt. in the counties of Derby, Leicester, Nottingham, and York, were confiscated in the reign of RICHARD I. for his adhesion to John, Earl of Morton, but they were restored upon the accession of that prince to the throne, as King JOHN. Sir Geoffry subsequently accompanied the king into Ireland, and obtained from the crown a grant of Luttrellstown, in that kingdom. The descendants of Sir Geoffry were afterwards feudal barons of Irnham, and one of those barons, ROBERT DE LUTTRELL, had summons to parliament, on the 24th June, and 2nd November, 1295. (See Burke's Extinct and Dormant Peerage.)

JOHN LUTTRELL (youngest son of Andrew

Luttrell, of East Quantockshead, living EDWARD I.) acquired by grant from the crown, in the 11th Edward III., lands and rents in Chilton, in the county of Devon, which shire he represented in parliament in the 37th of the same monarch. He m. two wives, by the first, ROSE, seems to have had no issue; by the second, Joan, he had a son, his successor.

SIR ANDREW LUTTRELL, of Chilton, had married in the lifetime of his father, Lady Elizabeth Courtenay, second daughter of Hugh, EARL OF DEVON, and wife of Sir John Vere, knt. son of Aubrey de Vere, EARL OF OXFORD, an alliance which connected the Luttrells with the ROYAL HOUSE OF PLANTAGENET. The son of this marriage

SIR HUGH LUTTRELL, resided at Dunster Castle, which his mother, Lady Elizabeth, had purchased from the family of Mohun. He was member of parliament for Somersetshire in the reign of RICHARD II. and successively for that county and Devonshire in the reign of HENRY IV. Sir Hugh gained a victory at law against Edward Plantagenet, EARL OF YORK, and the other heirs of John de Mohun, of Dunster,* by which he obtained possession of the honours and lands of Dunster, lordship of Carhampton, in the county of Somerset. He was afterwards ranger of Blackmore Forest, in Dorsetshire, a privy-councillor to King HENRY VI. one of the commanders under that monarch, at the reduction of Harfleur, Normandy, anno 1415, and at the me-

SIR JOHN LUTTRELL, who had been made a Knight of the Bath at the coronation of HENRY IV., anno 1399.† This gallant person espoused, first, Joan, daughter of Sir John Mallet, of Enmore, but had no issue. He m. secondly, Margaret, daughter of John, Lord Audley. He died the year after his father, possessed of the castle, church, and manor of Dunster, lordship of Carhampton, town of Minehead, with several manors in the west, held of the crown, as was entire barony of forty-nine knights' fees. He was likewise seized of the manor of Quantock, with four other knights' fees in Somersetshire, and was s. by his son,

SIR JAMES LUTTRELL, who was made a KNIGHT-BANNERET at the battle of Wakefield, in 1463, and fell fighting under the standard of Lancaster, in 1471. He was subsequently attainted by King EDWARD IV. and his castle of Dunster, lordship of Carhampton, &c. granted to Sir Edward Herbert, knt. first Earl of Pembroke. He left by his wife, Elizabeth, daughter and heiress of Sir William Courtenay, eldest brother of Sir Edward Courtenay, of Hacombe, a son and successor,

SIR HUGH LUTTRELL, who is mentioned by Hellingesbed and other historians amongst the persons of note in the west, who joined the EARL OF RICHMOND at his landing, and was afterwards instrumental in quelling the Devonshire insurrection. When the successful issue of BOSWORTH placed the crown upon RICHMOND'S head, as HENRY VII., the estates of Sir Hugh Luttrell were immediately restored, and he was subsequently created a Knight of the Bath, at the coronation of the queen, in 1487. He espoused, first, Margaret, daughter of Robert Hill, and half-sister (maternally) of Lord Daubeney,

* From a younger son of this Sir Hugh and Catherine Beaumont, ROBERT LUTTRELL, who died in the 15th HENRY VI. seized of the castle and lands of Luttrellstown, in the county of Dublin, descended the well known Irish family of Luttrell, which were the extinct EARLS OF CARHAMPTON.

† THE ORDER OF THE BATH was then first instituted, and consisted of forty-six knights, amongst whom were three of the king's sons.

K.G., and secondly, Walthera, widow of Thomas Drelne. He was s. in 2nd of HENRY VIII. by his son by his first wife,

Sir Andrew was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN LUTTRELL, who in the 36th HENRY VIII. was with the Earl of Hertford in Scotland, and present at the taking of Edinburgh and Leith, when he received the honor of knighthood. Two years afterwards he was under the same nobleman at Boulogne, and had the command of a hundred men. In the reign of EDWARD VI. he was likewise distinguished in arms, and was made a Knight-Banneret, for his conduct at the taking of Yester, in the first year of that monarch. He m. THOMAS LUTTRELL, esq. M.P. for Minehead. This gentleman, in order to preserve the estates which he thus inherited clear of his nieces portions and of his brother's debts, sold all the lands in Devon and Suffolk, but those were amply replaced by the estates acquired on his marriage with Margaret, only daughter and heiress of Christopher Hadley, esq. of Withycombe, and great granddaughter of Philippa, daughter of Sir Humphrey Audley, by Elizabeth, widow of Sir James Luttrell. In consequence of this consanguinity it was necessary to procure a special bull, in the 5th of Philip and Mary, from Pope PAUL V. to sanction the marriage. Mr. Luttrell d. in 1570, Margaret, his wife surviving, who was afterwards m. to John Strode, of Parham, esq. and again to Richard Hill, esq. He was s. by his eldest son,

This gentleman served in all the wars in Flanders, throughout the reign of King WILLIAM, and in Queen ANNE'S time was colonel of the royal regiment of marines. CAROLINE WYNDHAM, m. 27th December, 1810, the Hon. Windham-Henry Quin, elder son of Valentine, Lord Adare, to whom she conveyed Dun-

This eminent person was born in London, 3rd May, 1750. In his seventh year was placed at Eton, and became conspicuous amongst his companions for ability and courage. In 1766, he went to the university of Glasgow, and the next year entered Oxford as a gentleman commoner. At this period of his life, he felt so much interest in public affairs, that he was never to know who was prime minister. His débüt, as a public speaker, was at a public meeting in Norwich, and he there acted, with great energy, the subscription in progress to sustain the American cause. In 1782, he obtained a seat in parliament, as representative for Norwich, and, as at Eton, he was soon distinguished by his talents and intrepidity. In 1783, he was appointed chief secretary to the lieutenant of Ireland. Upon the division amongst the whigs, in 1793, Windham attached himself to Burke, and the next year he was constituted secretary-at-war, with the unusual distinction of a seat in the cabinet. From this time he held office until the retirement of Mr. Pitt, in 1801, at whose decease in 1806, he resumed the station of secretary-at-war, joined to that of colonial secretary, under the Grenville administration. With the whigs he retired, and ever afterwards sat upon the opposition bench. His death, which took place in 1810, arose from the following circumstance. While passing, in the preceding year, by the end of Conduit-street, (the 8th July,) he saw a house on fire, with his characteristic intrepidity, proceeded towards the spot, in order to afford assistance in his power. He found flames rapidly advancing towards the entrance of the Hon. Mr. North, whose valuable library he determined, if possible, to save from destruction. He laboured at the task which he thus imposed upon himself, for no less than four hours, during a heavy rain, and amidst the playing of several engines. He laboured, however, not in vain, for most of the books were preserved; but he sustained a serious injury in the hip, by falling under the weight of some heavy volumes; of the accident he took little notice, until an indolent encysted tumour had been formed, when, upon taking surgical advice, he found that it was necessary for him to submit to a painful and dangerous operation. The tumour was accordingly operated upon and removed, 17th May, 1810, but unfavourable symptoms followed, and he expired on the 4th of the following June. "Windham generally acted," (says a recent writer,) "as though he cared for no opinion but his own. He dealt largely in paradoxes, was often false in his philosophy, and occasionally advocated nonsense; yet he had the credit of being an enlightened man, and of always speaking as he thought. A Quixote against what he deemed the prejudices of the great: he frequently startled the dull ear of some stately associate, by asserting that it was essential for the support of our national intrepidity, to encourage cock-fighting, bull-baiting, and pugilism. It was his ambition to realize and embody in himself the popular idea of a thorough Englishman; his eloquence was bold and forcible; his opinions masculine, generous, and tolerant. He had a most fervid affection for the pastimes of our ancestors; and declaimed with equal zeal and eloquence to prove the necessity of their perpetuation. His popular predilections were so nicely balanced by his loyalty, that he enjoyed the raven Castle, &c. and he assumed the additional surname of WYNDHAM. His father was subsequently created Earl of Dunraven and Mountearl, and he inherited those honours himself at the decease of that nobleman, 24th August, 1824.

8. Hugh (Sir), of Silton. This gentleman was called to the degree of serjeant-at-law 1st June, 1660, constituted one of the barons of the exchequer in 1670, and subsequently transferred to the bench of the common-pleas.

9. WADHAM (Sir), of whom we are about to treat.

The youngest son,

SIR WADHAM WYNDHAM, of Norrington, in the county of Wilts, was one of the judges of the court of king's bench, in 1660. He m. Barbara, daughter of Sir George Clarke, knt. of Walford, Northamptonshire, and had, with several other children, rare felicity, as a public man, of being in high favour with the people, without rendering himself at all odious to the sovereign. He was much beloved in private life, his character being amiable, and his conversation varied, sportive, intelligent, and conciliating. So decidedly high did he rank in public estimation, that the immediate neighbourhood of his residence was thronged with carriages during his illness, containing anxious enquirers as to the state of his health; his house was crowded with friends during the consultations of his medical attendants. All classes exhibited the most lively sympathy for his sufferings; and the king himself repeatedly desired to be informed of the progress of his malady; emphatically declaring that the expiring senator was a genuine patriot and a truly honest man." Mr. Wyndham d. unmarried.

According to an old pedigree

“The family of the Kynnersleys is very ancient, being seated long before the Conquest in com. Hereford, in a castle soe called at present. In Doomesday Booke it is recorded, that when the Conqueror was possessed of his newe kingdome of England, hee sent his Comiss^{rs} throughout y^e remote parts thereof, to know howe every man held his lands. In which tyme there was an ould gentleman that lived and was owner of Kynnersley Castle, in com. Hereford: by name John de Kynnersley, and by title a knight (if any knights were before the Conquest). This ould gentleman was blind, he had then liveing with him twelve soones, whom with himself he armed, and stood in his castle gate, his halberd in his hand, attending the coming of sheriffs and other comiss^{rs} from y^e king, who being arrived, demanded of him by what tenure he held his castle and lands; y^e old kn^t replied by his armes, shewing to them his halberd.”

Sir Rowland espoused Margaret, daughter and eventually co-heiress of Richard Fitz-Alan, Earl of Arundel; upon which marriage, Lady Margaret being related to the king, Sir Rowland had given to him a thousand by the year," for the maintenance of them and their heirs, of which grants says Leland, the town of Ludlow forms part.

Some years afterwards, the Lenthalls lost their possessions, in Herefordshire, to the Cornwalls, Barons of Burford, and settled at Latchford and Great Haseley, in Oxfordshire, (which manors and estates they acquired in the reign of EDWARD IV. by marriage with the heiress of the Pipards,*) which they remained seated for many generations.

In 1603, these estates were possessed by

SIR EDMUND LENTHALL, who was one of those fined, under an act of parliament passed in the reign of JAMES I., for retaining persons of quality from residing so much of the year in London. Sir Edmund dying without issue, the line of the family was continued by his brother,

* A member of this ancient family, having lately distinguished himself in the Scottish war, was summoned to parliament, as a baron, on the 6th February, 1299, to the 24th July, 1302. Extinct and Dormant Peerage.

The ancestor of this ancient and distinguished family,

SIR ROWLAND LENTHALL, of Hampton Court, in the county of Hereford, was high in favour with King HENRY IV. to whom he was master of the robes. He was one of the lords-marchers, and for some time ambassador to the Parisian court. Sir Rowland accompanied HENRY V. to France, and having a command at the Battle of AZINCOURT, made so many prisoners in that celebrated conflict, that he completed, with the produce of their ransom, the new buildings at Hampton Court. In that mansion was preserved a picture, engraved by Vertue, and said to be an undoubted original of HENRY IV.; pendant from the neck is a chain and medallion, on which are depicted the arms of the Fitz-Alans, Earls of Arun-

WILLIAM LENTHALL, esq. having studied the law with eminent assiduity, and having attained high distinction in that learned profession, was, in 1637, admitted a bencher of Lincoln's-inn, made recorder of London, and master of the rolls. In 1639, he was returned member for Woodstock, and when the long parliament met, on the 3rd November, 1640, he was chosen speaker, which important office he continued to hold after the king's death, and until the dissolution of that assembly. In the first parliament called by CROMWELL, as protector, he had no seat; but in the second, he was returned for two places, the city of Gloucester, and the county of Oxford, and was again elected speaker. He subsequently was appointed chamberlain of Chester, chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster, and keeper of the great seal. In the single parliament assembled by Richard Cromwell, he sat in the upper house by the title of William, Lord Lenthall, and so great was his influence and weight at the restoration, that General Monk assured King CHARLES, that he could not have brought about that desirable event without Mr. Lenthall's concurrence. This eminent lawyer and statesman m. Elizabeth, daughter of Ambrose Evans, esq. of Lodington, in the county of Northumberland, by whom he left surviving issue, BOWES, OF BRADLEY.

THOMAS, esq. of Bradley Hall, in the county of Durham, b. 29th of 1738.

Lineage.

gentleman, being a lineal descendent of the elder branch of the Bowes's, of Bradley Castle, is representative of that family, which, for a long period, has been one of the most powerful and distinguished in the county of Durham, renowned for the strenuous loyalty of its members, and the many important services which they had rendered to the crown and to the country. The name, according to GROSE, thus originated: "About the time of the CONQUEROR," says that indefatigable antiquary, "here was a town which, the tradition of the inhabitants states, was burned. It then belonged to the earls of Brittany and Richmond; the castle was built, as Mr. Horseley thinks, out of the ruins of the Roman fortress by Alan Niger, the first earl of that title,* who is said, in a manuscript belonging to the dissolved monastery of St. Mary's at York, placed therein, William, his relation, with five hundred archers, to defend it against some insurgents, in Cumberland and Westmoreland, confederated with the Scots, giving him for the device of his standard, the arms of Brittany, with three bows and a bundle of arrows, from whence both the castle and its commander derived their names, the former being called Bowe Castle, and the latter William de Arcubus." Of this person CAMDEN also makes mention, "Near this stands Stretlham, for a long time the seat of the famous and knightly family of the Bowes, or de Arcubus, who have often done great service to their king and country in times of extremity, their pedigree is from William de Arcubus, &c."

SIR WILLIAM BOWES, knt. captain of five hundred archers, and governor of Bowes Castle, was great-great-grandfather of

SIR ADAM BOWES, knt. justice in oyer of the liberties of Durham, and steward of Richmondshire, living in 1345, who m. Alice, sole heiress of Sir John Trayne, knt. lord of Streatlam, by his wife Agnes, heiress of Ralph de la Hay, Lord Percy, of Stainton le Strata, to whom Barnard Baliol gave with his niece Agnes the lordship of Streatlam, &c. By this great heiress Sir Adam had, with junior issue,

ROBERT, his successor.

Sir Adam was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

SIR ROBERT BOWES, knt. lord of Streatlam, who, in the 29th EDWARD III. entailed all his estates upon his issue male. He m. Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Lilburne, of Lilburne, in the county of Northumberland, but dying without issue, his possessions descended to his brother,

SIR WILLIAM BOWES, a gallant warrior, who received the honour of knight-banneret at the BATTLE OF POICTIERS. He espoused Maud, daughter and heiress of Jordan Dawden, and with her acquired Dawden, Seaham, Ryhope, Seaton, &c. with the advowson of Dawden church. Sir William was s. at his decease by his son,

SIR ROBERT BOWES, who was made a knight-banneret at the siege of Rouen, in Normandy, and was one of the victims to the indiscretion of Thomas, duke of Clarence, at the battle of Bangey Bridge, where he fell, with several other illustrious personages, in the year 1419. He m. Jane, daughter and co-heiress of Sir Robert Conyers, of Sockburn, knt. and had, with other issue, a son and successor,

SIR WILLIAM BOWES, who was knighted

at the battle of Vernoile in 1424. This eminent warrior was chamberlain to DUKE OF BEDFORD, whilst regent of France, and was constituted by that prince governor of the castle of Gallyard, in Normandy. He continued abroad twenty years, and sent home a model and plan for rebuilding his castle of Streatlam, to which he returned on his return, and resided there to his old age, being commonly known as "old William Bowes." He m. Joan, daughter of Ralph, Lord Greystock, and acquired by the alliance the manor of Newburn, Durham.

SIR WILLIAM BOWES, his son and successor, was warden for many years of the Middle March against Scotland, and sheriff of Northumberland. He m. Maud, daughter of Henry, Lord Fitzwalter, baron of Ravensworth, and had issue

Sir Ralph Bowes was s. by his eldest son, another

1. Elizabeth, m. to John Blackiston, esq. of Blackiston.
2. Dorothy, m. to Sir Cuthbert Collingwood, of Eslinton, in the county of Northumberland.
3. Anne.

Sir George dying thus without male issue, was succeeded by his uncle,

SIR ROBERT BOWES, knt. who was master of the rolls, privy councillor to King HENRY VIII. and warden of the Middle Marches.

He m. Dorothy, daughter of Sir James Metcalfe, knt. but dying without surviving issue, the family estates devolved upon his brother,

RICHARD BOWES, of Aske, who m. Elizabeth, daughter and co-heir of Sir Roger Aske, of Aske, knt. and had, with several daughters, GEORGE (Sir).

Robert, ambassador to Scotland with his elder brother, Sir George. He m. Eleanor, daughter of Sir Richard Musgrave, of Hartley.

The elder son,

SIR GEORGE BOWES, knt. became heir-apparent of the family, and to him descended the Dawdon estates, with other possessions, in the eastern part of the county of Durham. He was made knight-marshal by special commission, for his signal services to Queen ELIZABETH. When the Earls of Westmoreland and Northumberland reared the Standard of revolt in the North, Sir George was the only person of great influence that opposed the insurgents, having, for that purpose, fortified himself in Barnard Castle. He was in many commissions for treaties with Scotland, and had other marks of confidence and trust. Sir George m. twice; first, Dorothy, daughter of Sir William Malster, of Studley, near Ripon, in the county of York, and had issue,

WILLIAM, his successor.

Robert, killed in the Keswick mines, in 1610.

George, of Biddick, who m. Magdalen, daughter of Sir Edward Bray, and had issue,

1. GEORGE, successor to his uncle.
2. Robert, of Beddick, who m. in 1620, Joan, daughter of Robert Hutton, D. D. prebendary of Durham, and had several children.

Elizabeth, m. to Sir Charles Wandersford, of Kirtlington, in the county of York.

Anne, m. to Sir John Conyers.

The knight marshal espoused, secondly, Jane, daughter of Sir John Talbot, of Albrighton, in the county of Salop, knt. and had several children. It appears that, by a strange will or entail made by Sir George about the year 1590, the estate of Streatlam, with the great bulk of his property, passed to SIR TALBOT BOWES, his son by the second marriage; and thus his eldest son, by his former wife, was deprived of his birthright, and only inherited from his father the estate and lordship of BRADLEY HALL, which had been acquired by a grant from the crown 14th of Elizabeth. The younger branch, having in this manner become possessed of the immense estates of Sir George, continued for a long time to be one of the most considerable families of the county palatine, until the property finally came to (the descendant of the second marriage)

GEORGE BOWES, esq. of Streatlam, whose only daughter and heiress,

MARY-ELEANOR, espoused, first, John, ninth Earl of Strathmore, who thereupon assumed the surname of BOWES, and had, with other issue,

1. JOHN, who succeeded, as tenth Earl of Strathmore, and was enrolled among the peers of the United Kingdom by the title of BARON BOWES, of Streatlam Castle, 18th July, 1815. His lordship m. in 1820, Miss Mary Milner, of Staindrop, in the county of Durham, but dying the day after his nuptials, the Scottish peerage devolved upon his brother, while the principal part of his fortune, including Streatlam, passed by will to his son, (illegitimate) son of

Dying thus, Sir William was s. by his nephew,

Mr. Tremayne, who has represented Cornwall in Parliament, inherited the estates from his father, the Reverend Henry Hawkins Tremayne.

Lineage.

From the MANOR of TREMAYNE, in the parish of St. Martin, on the banks of Helled-Haven, this family derived at a very remote period its designation, and in the reign of EDWARD III. we find residing there PERYS TREMAYNE, who, by his wife, Dame Opys Treskewys, was father of

JOHN TREMAYNE, to whom, having no issue himself, succeeded his brother,

PERYS TREMAYNE, who m. Onera Tremayne, and was grandfather of

THOMAS TREMAYNE. This was the last resident of the family at Tremayne. He espoused Isabella, daughter and sole heiress of Trenchard, of Collacombe, in the parish of Lamerton, and removed in consequence to that estate, where his descendants flourished for more than three centuries, enjoying the highest degree of reputation. By the heiress of the Trenchards he had issue, NICHOLAS, his successor.

Thomas, in holy orders, rector of Aulton Giffard, in Devonshire, and canon of St. Peter's, Exeter.

The lady (Isabella Trenchard) surviving her husband, remarried with Sir John Dammerel, and acquired so much influence over her second lord, that he settled upon her and her heirs by Tremayne (she had no children by Dammerel) NORTH HUISH, SYDENHAM-DAMMEREL, with other lands, and appointed

WELD, OF LULWORTH.

WELD, His Eminence Cardinal THOMAS, of Lulworth Castle, in the county of Dorset, b. 22nd January, 1773. This distinguished prelate, prior to taking orders in the church of Rome, espoused (in 1796) Lucy, daughter of the Honorable Thomas Clifford, by whom he had an only daughter, MARY-LUCY, m. in 1818, to Hugh-Charles, present LORD CLIFFORD, of CHUDLEIGH, and died in May, 1831, leaving issue.

Upon the decease of his wife, Mr. Weld became a Roman Catholic clergyman, and was soon afterwards promoted to a bishopric. He obtained a cardinal's hat in 1829. His Eminence has for several years devoted his time, and large fortune entirely to the wants and services of the unfortunate, and has justly acquired the highest reputation for piety and benevolence. Mr. Weld is the first Englishman who has had a seat in the CONCLAVE since the pontificate of CLEMENT IX. He inherited his paternal estates at the decease of his father in 1810.

Lineage.

The family of WELD is presumed to derive from EDRICK, surnamed WILD, or SYLVESTER, who was nephew to Edric, Duke of Mercia, husband of Edina, daughter of King ETHELRED. From him descended WILLIAM WELD, who settled at Eaton, in the county of Chester, and marrying Anne, daughter of Nicholas de Whitnall, was s. by ROBERT, WILLIAM WELD, who wedded Margaret, daughter of William Bostock, and was grandfather of

EDWARD WELD, who espoused Margaret, daughter of Thomas Cotgrave, of the county of Chester. The grandson of this marriage, JOHN WELD, marrying Joanna, daughter of John Fitz Hugh, of Congleton, had three sons, viz.

1. ROBERT, of Eaton, who m. Elenora, daughter of Robert Oldton, of Wetten

Mr. Weld "lived," says Hutchins, "in great credit and hospitality at Lulworth, maintaining a good correspondence and harmony with the neighbouring gentry and clergy, nor did difference of opinion create reserve or distance; although he ever behaved as a peaceful subject, he was ordered into custody in 1745, on account of his name being mentioned in a treasonable anonymous letter dropped near Poole; but his immediate and honourable discharge is the most convincing proof of his innocence." He d. 8th December, 1761, and was s. by his eldest son.

EDWARD WELD, esq. of Lulworth, b. in 1741; m. first, in 1763, Juliana, daughter of Robert, Lord Petre; and espoused, secondly, in 1775, MARY-ANNE, youngest daughter of WALTER SMYTHE, esq. of Brambridge, in the county of Hants, but had no issue. He d. in 1775, and his widow married THOMAS FITZHERBERT, esq. of Swinerton, whom she survived, and has since held a distinguished place in society as MRS. FITZHERBERT. Mr. Weld was s. by his only surviving brother,

Mr. Weld conferred upon the Jesuits, lands at Stonyhurst, in Lancashire, where they established the celebrated Roman catholic college, so well known under that name. He d. suddenly there in 1810, deeply and universally lamented, and was s. by his eldest son, the present CARDINAL WELD.

* Within the ground of Lulworth Mr. Weld afforded an asylum to the MONKS OF LE TRAPP, when those austere brothers were driven from France by the revolution. The following account of this monastery is extracted from the "Monthly Magazine" of October, 1800, and from the "Gentleman's Magazine" of 1813. "I paid a short visit in the course of last summer to Lulworth Castle, the seat of Mr. Weld. At eight o'clock, of a pleasant morning in the beginning of July, I left Dorchester, in company with two other gentlemen, one of whom had previously visited the monastery, and kindly undertook the office of guide. After a ride of about eleven miles over downs, covered with flocks of sheep, we declined on the right into a small valley, overhung with woods. The view at the extremity of this valley is beautifully terminated by the English Channel, and in its centre stands LULWORTH CASTLE, an antique Gothic edifice, consisting of four round towers, connected by as many curtains. As strangers are permitted to see the inside of this castle, we alighted at the principal entrance, on each side of which are two Latin inscriptions; the one commemorating the extended toleration granted to the Roman catholics in 1780, the other recording a visit from his majesty KING GEORGE III. with which Mr. Weld was honoured. After gratifying ourselves by an inspection of the edifice, we proceeded through the fields for about a mile, before we reached the monastery. This building is constructed of very rude materials, and in a very rude manner. The grounds attached are about one hundred acres, which are cultivated by the monks, with the assistance of a carter and his boy. The community rise at one o'clock in the morning, winter and summer; the choir brothers then begin their devotions, and continue in the chapel until nine, when each goes to some manual labour, in the garden, on the roads, or the grounds, until eleven, when there is a short service, which lasts about half an hour. Then to labour again until half past one, when they return to prayers for half an hour, and are then summoned to their frugal meal. After this meal is over, the only one which they have during the four-and-twenty hours, they return thanks to God, and adjourn to the chapter room, where they continue to read or meditate until the day is nearly over, when they once more go to prayers, and retire to their dormitories about eight o'clock, having spent the whole day in abstinence, mortification, labour, silence, and prayer. Every succeeding day, like the former, continually hastening the grave that lies open. The severity of this rigid order requires no common devotee; perpetual silence restrains them in the greatest enjoyment of life, perpetual abstinence, mortification, and penance, poverty and prayer, seem more than human nature is capable of undergoing, and unless the minds of the religious were buoyed up by the fervour of their devotions, they could not keep themselves alive. They abstain wholly from meat, fish, and fowl, and, during Lent, from butter, milk, eggs, and cheese. They seem, nevertheless, perfectly content. The monks observe perpetual silence, scarcely even look at each other, and never speak but to the prior, and then only upon urgent occasions. They never wander from their convent without permission of their superior, but go each morning cheerfully to such work as they are directed to perform. As we passed these poor, humble, unoffending monks at their work, they received us with courtesy and humility, but never spoke. The most perfect silence and tranquillity reigned throughout this little vale, with nothing to interrupt it but the convent bell, and the dashing of the waves upon the shore: even the winds of heaven are restrained from visiting this place too roughly, for the down protects it from their fury."

In 1615, when King JAMES I. came to hunt in the park and Isle of Purbeck, he was hospitably entertained at the castle of Lulworth, as were also, in 1665, King CHARLES II., and the Dukes of York and Monmouth, whose names the apartments they occupied still record. During the civil wars, it was frequently used as a check upon Corfe Castle. In 1789, GEORGE III. with his queen, and the three eldest princesses, visited Lulworth Castle by sea from Weymouth. In 1791, the same royal party repeated their visit by land. In the next year, their majesties, with the Prince of Wales, and five of the princesses, sailed from Weymouth in the Juno frigate, in order to visit again the Castle; the sea, however, running high, none of the nautical party attempted to land, except the PRINCE OF WALES, who effected it at the expense of a severe drenching. Lineage.

OSBORNE DE BOLEBEC, a noble Norman, in the time of ROBERT, father of WILLIAM the bastard, had two distinguished sons,

1. WALTER (Gualtier of the Norman Chronicles) Comte de Longueville, who assumed, for what reason has not been ascertained, the surname of Gyffarde. This gallant person acquired great renown in the armies of WILLIAM, achieving several signal victories for Normandy, in the war between that country and France. When the duke, upon the accession of Harold to the English throne, sired to invade this island, many deemed most of the Norman nobles cautiously back from proffering being wearied and impoverished by the continued struggles in which WILLIAM had been engaged since his father's death. But a few staunch friends, amongst the foremost of whom was this Walter and his brother, coming nobly forward with their men, ships, &c. the laggards thereby warmed to the undertaking and the expedition was accordingly set on foot. In the subsequent success of his chief, the Comte de Longueville largely participated; he obtained no less than ONE HUNDRED AND SEVEN LORDSHIPS in the conquered country, and was constituted 1 OF THE COUNTY OF BUCKINGHAM the line of this nobleman, see British Extinct and Dormant Peerage.

The second son,

OSBORNE GYFFARDE, having likewise acquired great renown in placing England under the yoke of

Norman, had of course his portion of the spoil, and the fertile county of Gloucester was allotted as the locality of his reward. Here he held the extensive manors of Brimsfield, Rochemtune, Alderberie, and Stocbe; upon the first named of which he settled, and there subsequently a great castle was built, (temp. STEPHEN) which continued to be the residence of the family until it was destroyed by the army of Edward II. in the Baronial war, anno 1322. This Osborne died about the year 1086, and was s. by his son,

He was s. by his son,

THOMAS GIFFARD, of Chillington, who m. Joyce, daughter of Sir Robert Fraunceys, of Whiston, and had as her dowry the estate of Whiston, which is still in possession of the family. This Thomas was sheriff of Staffordshire, in 1411. At his decease he left an only child,

This Sir John Giffard was five times sheriff of his native county; and to him HENRY VIII. granted the dissolved monastery of the Black Ladies at Brewood in 1539. WALTER, his heir.

John, of Black Ladies, who m. Miss Catherine Hawkins, of the county of Kent, and the grandson of this marriage, Peter Giffard, esq. of Black Ladies, eventually succeeded to the estates and representation of the family.

Mr. Giffard adhered with desperate fidelity to the falling fortunes of the CHARLESSES, and several of his family took an active part in the escape of the younger after the fight of Worcester. Boscobel was a lodge of the Giffards, the Pendrels being merely housekeepers, &c. and the tried loyalty of that celebrated family ought rather to be attributed to their attachment to their landlords and feudal superiors, than to any abstract sense of duty to the king. For this zealous devotion to his unhappy sovereign, the whole of Mr. Giffard's property was sequestered by the Drury House Commissioners, and at the advanced age of seventy he was himself obliged to seek a place of concealment. He lived, however, to witness happier days, and received (tardily though) from the restored monarch a royal grant, reinstating him in the whole of his noble possessions. A few months after this act of justice he executed a deed, by which he surrendered every thing to his son WALTER, reserving only for himself a small farm, and such maintenance (with two servants) as, saith the deed, "was becoming to a gentleman of his quality." He did not long, however, enjoy the calm this arrangement seemed to promise. He lived but to see his family replaced in the wealth, influence, and honour, which were their heritage, and died, "full of days," the 25th June, 1663. His successor, Catharine.

Ellen.

Mr. Senhouse succeeded his father in 1814, and served the office of sheriff for the county of Cumberland, in 1826.

Lineage.

The family DE SEWYNHOUSE, DE SEVENHOUSE, or DE SENHOUSE, derives its surname from Hall Sevenhouse, or Sephouse, a district of Cumberland. The first of its members upon record,

WALTER DE SEWYNHOUSE, had a grant of the fifth part of the township of Bolton, in the parish of Gosforth, from Alan de Coup-land, and likewise a grant of other lands in the same parish from William de Wayberthwaite. These grants are both without date, but both are witnessed by Sir Adam de Lamplugh, knt. who lived in the times of Kings RICHARD I. and JOHN. Walter was s. by his son,

WALTER DE SEVENHOUSE, who was witness to a deed, also without date, with Sir Richard le Fleming, knt. who died about the close of HENRY III.'s reign. This Walter was s. by his son,

NICHOLAS DE SEVENHOUSE, who was s. by his son and heir, another

NICHOLAS DE SEVENHOUSE, who held the hamlet of Newton, or Seascale, in the parish of Gosforth, of Thomas de Multon, of Egremont, as appears by the office of escheat after the death of the said Thomas, bearing date 15th EDWARD II. Nicholas de Sevenhouse became possessed of the hamlet of Newton in right of his wife, a daughter and heiress of De Ponsonby, whose arms quartered with those of De Sevenhouse, engraven on stone, are at present to be seen on the manor hall of Seascale. He was s. by his son, NICHOLAS DE SEWYNHOUSE or DE SENHOUSE, who had a grant of certain lands in Bolton from James de Wayberthwaite, bearing date 6th RICHARD II. and grants of certain other lands within the lordship of Bolton Fell from William de Wayberthwaite, formerly rector of Wayberthwaite, all dated in the 14th of the same reign. He married, as it would seem, a daughter and co-heiress of Alan de Coupland, of Coupland and Seaton, in the county of Cumberland, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM DE SEVENHOUSE, who m. a daughter and co-heir of Lucy. Amongst the archives of the family of Senhouse is still preserved a deed of conveyance from Alice de Lucy, daughter and co-heir of Richard de Lucy, of Egremont, by Ada de Morville, his wife, to her second son, Sir John de Lucy, high sheriff of the county of Cumberland for two years, 31st EDWARD I. and knight of the shire for the same county 34th of the same reign, from whom, by his wife Christian, descended the wife of this William Sevenhouse, which William was s. his decease by his son,

THOMAS DE SENHOUSE, whose name appears in the return of gentlemen of county of Cumberland, made in the 1st HENRY VI. It is related that in a wa- alteration with a monk of Calder Abb relative to his claim of a right to fish in river Calder, this Thomas de Sevenho was so highly exasperated that he hur the monk over the battlements of the brid For this summary act of extra-judicial p cess he was obliged to compound by heavy fine imposed upon his estates.

This Jo Senhouse received an ample pardon,

* SIR SIMON SENHOUSE, prior of Carlisle, sec son of Thomas de Sevenhouse, by the daughte Hudleston. This reverend and learned pen caused the principal apartment in the tower of priory to be curiously painted with the pater crest, motto, and badge, as well as the motto his mother's (the Hudleston) family, toget with numerous emblematic devices, and pi ejaculations in prose and verse. He had lik the legends of Saint Anthony, Saint August and Saint Cuthbert, painted in the aisles of cathedral at Carlisle. He lies buried unde marble tomb in the north side of the cathed church.

 ble nature as he had previously committed, and he was appointed, also by letter patent, dated 7th ELIZABETH, escheator of the counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland. He d. in 1568, leaving four sons,

THOMAS, who inherited all the patrimonial estates of the family, and acquired himself, in the 6th of ELIZA-BETH, the advowson and right of patronage of the rectory and parish church of Gosforth. He m. Dorothy, daughter of John VAUX, esq. of Cat-terlen, in Cumberland, and was s. by his son,

JOHN SENHOUSE, esq. of Seascale Hall, who m. Mary, daughter of William Fleming, esq. of Rydal, in Westmoreland, and d. in 1636, leaving issue,

1. JOHN, of Seascale, who m.
 Anne, daughter and co-heir of John Bimpson, esq. of Shevington, in Lancashire, by his wife, the sister and co-heir of Sir Edward Wrightington, knight, of Wrightington, in the same county. This John's name, under the denomination of
 "John Senhouse, esq. of Eccleston," was inserted, 28th October, 1652, in the additional bill for the sale of lands and estates forfeited to the commonwealth. His eldest son, John, d. in the lifetime of his father without issue. His second son,

WRIGHTINGTON SENHOUSE of Seascale Hall, who was to have been one of the Knights of the Royal Oak, in 1660, was father of

JOHN SENHOUSE, of Seascale Hall, high sheriff of Cumberland, 3rd of ANNE, who m. Elizabeth,
 dau. of John Bellingham, esq. of Levens, in Westmorland. This John sold all the patrimonial estates, and his descendants became EXTINCT in the male line about the middle of the last century.

2. Joseph, founder of the Hall Bolton family, which became EXTINCT in the male line about a hundred years ago.

- ii. Peter, of Ellenborough Hall, who was admitted to the freedom of the city of London in 1562. To this Peter, his aunt, Anne Bardsey, granted one half of her moiety of the manor of Alneburgh, otherwise Nether Hall.
 He d. unmarried, and bequeathed his estates to his brother John.
- iii. JOHN, of whom presently.
- iv. Richard, incumbent of Claughton, in Lancashire.

The third son,

JOHN SENHOUSE, succeeded his elder brother Peter, in his half moiety of the manor of Ellenborough, and inherited from his mother her moiety of the same. He had saved that lady's life, at the imminent risk of his own, from the certainty of being drowned in the river Derwent. He inherited, likewise, his aunt Bardsey's half moiety, and thus became eventually sole proprietor of Alneburgh, or Ellenborough, otherwise Netherhall. This John is the person whom Camden mentions in his Britannia, as having collected with great industry, numerous Roman stones, altars, lavers, statues, with inscriptions, which he had placed with much taste in his houses and buildings; and as having entertained, in 1599, the celebrated antiquary himself, and Sir Robert Cotton, of Conington, with great civility. He was steward of all the lordships, manors, lands, &c. which formerly belonged to the monastery of Holme-Cuttram, in the county of Cumberland. He m.
 Anne, daughter of John Ponsonby, esq. of Hail Hall, and had, with other issue,

1. PETER, his successor.
2. Simon, who was murdered near Dovenby, by Skelton, of Armathwaithe.
 Skelton and himself are said to have paid their addresses to the same lady, who gave the preference to Simon, and thereby so enraged Skelton, as to excite him to so base an act of unmerited vengeance.
3. Richard, in holy orders, D.D. fellow of St. John's, Cambridge, afterwards dean of Gloucester, and consecrated in 1624, bishop of Carlisle.
 Of this prelate it is related, that "When he was a scholar at Cambridge, coming into the country to see his friends, his horse happened to cast a shoe, and having no money to to pay the smith withal,—'Well, well,' says the smith, 'go your ways, and when you come to be bishop of Carlisle, you'll pay me;' which he did in abundance of gratuity; and was a religious and honest pastor."
 Dr. Senhouse preached the coronation sermon before King CHARLES I.

and took for his text, "I will give thee a crown of life," which was afterwards esteemed as a prophecy. He was an excellent preacher, eloquent and graceful in delivery; and four much admired sermons were published after his decease.

He was constituted likewise by letters patent (20 JAMES I.) escheator of the counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland, and he served the office of sheriff for the former shire in the 3rd of CHARLES I. He was enabled to effect this purchase by the grateful munificence of his mother's sister Bridget, daughter of Andrew Huddleston, esq. of Hutton-John, and of her husband, Joseph Huddleston, esq. of Millum Castle, both of whom adopted him, being themselves without issue, in consequence of some needful kindnesses received from Senhouse's father and mother, during the first years of their marriage; an alliance which had taken place contrary to the wishes of their immediate families, while Joseph Huddleston was a younger brother and before he inherited the patrimonial estate of Millum Castle. The sword was inscribed with the words, "The good will of the Unite Crew." Lineage.

his family is of great antiquity in the north of England, and the senior branch, represented by Lord Ribblesdale, has resided at Gisburne for more than five centuries.

THOMAS LISTER, son of Thomas Lister, esq., in 1312, Isabel, daughter and heiress of Roger de Bolton, bowbearer of Bolland, local representative, according to Dugdale, of the Saxon Earls of Mercia. The grandson of this marriage, CHRISTOPHER LISTER, of Middop, m. in the reign of Edward IV. Joan, daughter of William Calverley, of Calverley, and issue.

WILLIAM, of Middop, whose lineal descendant,

Sir William Lister, knt. of Thornton, marrying Mary, daughter of Sir Henry Bellasys, bart. of Newborough, left at his decease, in 1650, with other issue.

SIR MARTIN LISTER, knt. the well-known physician. This eminent person was born at Thornton, in Craven, and educated at Oxford, where he became fellow of Oriel College; but, travelling abroad, he took the degree of M.D. at Basil, and, in 1605, was incorporated at Oxford, as the English universities allowed a more universal communication of honors with those on the continent than is usual at present. His family and country recommended him to Anne, Countess of Pembroke, whom he appears to have served in the double capacity of agent and physician. By her recommendation he became physician in ordinary to Queen ANNE of Denmark, and afterwards to King CHARLES I. from whom he received the honor of knighthood in 1636. Having eventually attained the highest professional eminence, he was appointed president of the college of physicians. He d. about 1657, at Burwell, in Lincolnshire, aged ninety-two; an instance of a constitution, which either needed not the aids of his own faculty, or proved their efficacy.

THOMAS LISTER, esq. of Westby, baptized at Gisburn in 1604. This gentleman, during the civil wars, espoused the cause of the parliament, and was one of the commissioners for the trial of King CHARLES. He attended, however, only four of their meetings, and never signed the warrant; from which, it appears evident, that he did not cordially approve of the course the proceedings were taking; and it was probably in consideration of this circumstance, that the family estates were exempted from forfeiture at the restoration. He m. Catherine, daughter of Sir Richard Fletcher, knt. of Hutton, in the county of Cumberland, by whom (who espoused, after Mr. Lister's decease, Sir John Assheton,† bart. of Whalley Abbey, in Lancashire) he had issue, in the reign of King JOHN PAPILLON was elected Abbot of Westminister. This eminent divine, one of the most eloquent preachers of his time, distinguished under the protection of King Lawrence, by whom, according to tradition, he was appointed Prior of Hurlingham of Westminister. He is said to have written a volume of sermons, and several homilies, on the epistles and gospels, which Leland speaks in high terms of estimation. He d. in 1225.

WILLIAM PAPILLON, one of King EDWARD I.'s most devoted servants, was recommended by his royal master, in the 31st year of his reign, to the abbot and convent of Westminister, for a corrody from that house. William Papillon is supposed to have been the family of Papillon, of Lubbenham, Leicestershire, being lineal ancestor of JOHN PAPILLON, who espoused Jane de la Pierre, and who was succeeded in the estate, 20th November, 1608, by his son.

WILLIAM PAPILLON, of Lubenham. This gentleman obtained a license, dated 23rd March 1623, from Archbishop Abbot permitting himself and his family to frequent the church at Merston, in the county of Devon, as being nearer than their parish church of Lubenham, with a proviso, however, that they should once at the year (at Easter) attend the latter, for prayers and preaching there, and to receive the sacrament.

WILLIAM PAPILLON published, in 1645, "An Abstract of the Arts of Fortification, Assailing, containing four different methods in the field all manner of supererchments, and approaches by the water, or with lines and stakes, written for the benefit of such as delight in the practice of these noble arts." The family of FOUNTAIN was originally of Salle, in Norfolk, and assumed the surname of De Fonte, or Fontibus, from the springs or fountains near which they resided.

The first upon record who assumed the designation,

ELIZABETH.

The eldest son,

SIR ANDREW FOUNTAINE, evinced an early taste for the antiquarian pursuits, in which he was afterwards so eminently distinguished. While at Christ's Church, Oxford, he drew up a list of Anglo-Saxon and Anglo-Danish coins, published in 1705, in Hicke's Tassarus Septentrionalis. He subsequently formed, upon his travels, a fine collection of pictures, medals, and antiquities. From King WILLIAM III. he received the honor of knighthood, and in 1727, upon the lamented death of Sir Isaac Newton, succeeded that eminently learned person in the office of warden of the Mint. He was likewise vice-chamberlain to Queen CAROLINE, and tutor to Prince WILLIAM. Sir Andrew Fountaine was practically acquainted with the fine arts, and made some designs for Swift's "Tale of a Tub." He d. in 1753, leaving no issue. His sister,

Lineage.

The surname of CLERK or CLARK, a common one throughout Europe, is in Scotland one of great antiquity; and was probably assumed from some office bearing the designation. It is a matter of notoriety, that there were many free barons and men of great possessions and power of the name of Clark, in very early times. Sir James Dalrymple cites a charter (prior to the year 1180) of King WILLIAM of a donation to the abbacy of Holyrood House, and among the witnesses (who are all men of rank) are Hugo Clericus regis; Hugo Clericus cancellarii; Johannes Clericus, &c. &c. In 1296, Richardus Clerk submitted to EDWARD I. and in the same year Benedict Clerk, a man of rank and figure, was carried prisoner to London for refusing to swear allegiance to the English monarch; and Mariota, his lady, obtained a safe conduct to visit him in England. At the battle of Durham, William Clerk was taken prisoner, and remained in captivity until released in 1357, with his sovereign DAVID II. The clan of Chattan, and some of the best Highland families, claim to be descended from the CLERKS; and from charters under the great seal, it appears that various families of this surname have held extensive possessions from a very remote era. The house we are about to treat of, is supposed to be descended from ALANUS CLERK, a free baron of Perthshire, one of the inquest on the service of Sir Alexander Moray, of Abercairny, anno 1349.

Mr. Smythe inherited the estates at the decease of his father, David titular Lord Methven.

Lineage.

The surname of SMITH is of great antiquity in Scotland, and has at different times been written SMYT, SMYTHE, and SMITH. The house of Smith, traditionally, owes its origin to the Clan CHATAN, being descended, it is asserted, from NEIL CROMB, third son of Murdoch, of that clan, who flourished in the time of WILLIAM the Lion. The family, of which we are about to treat, derives from

THOMAS SMITH, who, having applied his talents to the study of physic, attained high eminence in the medical profession, and was appointed apothecary to KING JAMES III. as appears by a charter bearing date 29th January, 1477. He was father of

PATRICK SMITH, of Braco, in the county of Perth, who lived temp. JAMES IV. and was s. by his son,

Lineage.

The name of HOMFRAY is derived from the French words "HOMME VRAI," and the several families of HUMFREY, various as the spelling may be, claim a common progenitor. The branch, of which we are now about to treat, is the only one, however, which has preserved the correct orthography.

The HOMFRAYS were distinguished amongst the soldiers of the Cross, and they were eminent in the early wars of the Plantagenet Kings. The portrait of John Homfray, living in 1390, and a gallant warrior of that day, is still preserved in the British Museum.

WILLIAM HOMFRAY, who resided at Wales, near Rotherham, in Yorkshire, in 1590, was lineal ancestor of

FRANCIS HOMFRAY, whose son,

FRANCIS HOMFRAY, b. in 1674, wedded first, Sarah Baker, by whom he had issue, the male line of which is now extinct. He m. secondly, Mary, daughter of — Jeston, esq. of the Heath, in the county of Worcester, by whom (who d. in 1758) he left at his

CLAVERING, OF CALLALY.

CLAVERING, EDWARD, esq. of Callaly Castle, in the county of Northumberland, m. 10th October, 1803, Mary, daughter of J. O. Byrne, esq. and has two sons, viz.

EDWARD-JOHN, a magistrate of Northumberland.
 Augustus.

Mr. Clavering, who is in the commission of the peace, for the county of Northumberland, s. to the estates upon the demise of his half brother, in 1826.

Lineage.

This family, from which sprang the VESCIS, Lords of Alnwick—the LACIS, Earls of Lincoln—the EUCES, Lords Eure, in the male line; and the ALTONS, and many other eminent houses in the female, reside at Callaly Castle,* in Northumberland. Following the example of many of their illustrious countrymen, they entered England under the banner of the CONQUEROR, and the gift of numerous estates marked the services which they subsequently rendered to his cause. The family is a scion of the great house of DE BURGH, and it originally bore that surname; but from the time of

* This castle was the abode of WILLIAM DE CALLALY in the beginning of HENRY the Third's time, and of his son, GILBERT, in the same reign, who granted it, with the manor of Yetlington, to ROBERT FITZ ROGER, Baron of Warkworth and Clavering, who assumed the surname of CLAVERING; and that grant being confirmed by the crown, CALLALY has remained ever since in the possession of the family.

HENRY I. until that of Edward I. when commanded to take the designation of CLAVERING, from an estate in Essex, the head of the family assumed for surname the Christian name of his father, with the addition of FITZ.

EUSTACE DE BURGH, Baron of Tonsburgh, in Normandy, younger brother of HARLOWEN DE BURGH, the ancestor of the Lords Clanricarde, and the numerous families of DE BURGH, BURKE, and BOURKE, had two sons, who both held rank in the conquering army, namely, SERLO.

John, surnamed Monoculus, from having but one eye.

The elder son,

SERLO DE BURGH, erected the castle of Knaresborough, which passed at his decease, without issue, to his brother,

JOHN Monoculus, who had three sons,

PAGANUS, } These brothers were witnesses to the royal foundation of the abbey of Cirencester, in Gloucestershire, in 1133.

The elder son, PAGANUS, dying without issue, was succeeded by his brother,

EUSTACE FITZ JOHN, who became one of the most potent amongst the northern barons in the reign of HENRY I. and a great favourite with that monarch. He espoused, first, Agnes, eldest daughter of William Fitz Nigel, Baron of Alton, constable of Chester, and Viscount Constantine. By this lady he acquired the barony of Halton, and had an only son,

RICHARD FITZ EUSTACE.

He wedded, secondly, Beatrice, only daughter and heiress of Yvo de Vesci, Lord of Alnwick, in Northumberland, and of Malton, in Yorkshire, by whom he had issue,

WILLIAM, progenitor of the great baronial house of VESCI.

Geffery.

Eustace Fitz John, who founded the abbeys of Alnwick, in Northumberland, and of Walton and Malton, in Yorkshire, fell in the Welsh wars, anno 1154. His eldest son, RICHARD FITZ EUSTACE, inheriting the honors of his mother, became Baron of Halton, and constable of Chester. He m. Albredda, daughter and heir of Robert de Lizures, and half sister of Robert de Lacy, and had three sons, viz.

JOHN, who assumed the surname of LACY, and inherited the barony of Halton, with the office of CONSTABLE OF CHESTER. He d. 25th HENRY II. and from him the great feudal family of LACY derived.

Robert, the Hospitaller—that is, of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem, in England.

ROGER.

The youngest son,

ROGER FITZ RICHARD, became by gift of HENRY II. Lord of the manor of Warkworth, in the county of Northumberland, and was s. by his son,

ROBERT FITZ ROGER, second Baron of Warkworth, and founder of the monastery of Langley, in Norfolk, who wedded Margaret, only child and heiress of William de Cheney, and widow of Hugo de Cressey,* by whom he had an only son,

JOHN FITZ ROBERT.

This Robert Fitz Roger obtained a confirmation, upon the accession of King JOHN, of the castle and manor of Warkworth, in Northumberland, of the barony of CLAVERING, in Essex, and of the manor of Eure, in Buckinghamshire; and he served the office of sheriff for Northumberland, Norfolk, and Suffolk, for each county thrice, in that monarch's reign. In the baronial war, he first sided with the insurrectionary barons, but afterwards returned to his allegiance. He d. in 1240, and was s. by his son,

JOHN FITZ ROBERT, third lord of Warkworth, and first Lord of CLAVERING, in Essex, who espoused ADA, daughter and heir of Hugh de Baliol, and grand-aunt of BALIOL King of Scotland, by whom he had three sons, viz.

ROGER FITZ JOHN, his successor.

Hugh, surnamed "de Eure," from whom the Lords Eure descended.

Robert, ancestor of the Eures, of Axholm, in Lincolnshire.

He was s. by his eldest son.

ROGER FITZ JOHN, fourth Baron of Warkworth, and second Baron of Clavering, who d. in 1249, and was s. by his son.

ROBERT FITZ ROGER, then in infancy, and placed under the guardianship of William de Valence, the king's brother, although ADA, the child's grandmother, offered two thousand two hundred marks for the wardship. This feudal lord became so eminent in the Scottish wars of King EDWARD I. particularly at the battle of Falkirk, that he was summoned to parliament, as a BARON, on the 2nd November, 1295. He was afterwards, with his son JOHN, at the siege of KARLAVEROK. His lordship espoused Margaret de la Zouch, and had five other sons, who d. s. p. m.

* By HUGO DE CRESSEY, she had an only son, ROGER DE CRESSEY, who m. Isabella de Ris, and had four sons, all of whom dying issueless, the BARONY OF HORFORD, Margaret's inheritance, came eventually to her heirs by Robert Fitz Roger.

The youngest son,

SIR ALAN DE CLAVERING, obtained from his father the estate of CALLALY. He m. Isabella, daughter of Sir William Riddell, and was father of

SIR ROBERT DE CLAVERING, to whom succeeded his eldest son,

BOND, OF GRANGE.

BOND, JOHN, esq. of Grange, in the county of Dorset, b. 1st January, 1802, s. to the estates upon the demise of his father, 12th May, 1824.

Mr. Bond lately represented Corfe Castle in parliament, and was high sheriff of Dorset, 1830.

Lineage.

The family of Bond were of great antiquity in the county of Cornwall,* and are said to have been originally seated at Penryn in that county,† but removed thence,

* "Bond, of Cornwall, a very ancient family, from whom those of London are descended."—Guillim's Heraldry, edit.—In the pedigree of Sir Thomas Bond, bart. in the college of arms, drawn up in the year 1669, his ancestor, William Bond, of Buckland, in the county of Somerset, is described as being "ex antiquissima Bondorum stirpe in Provincia Cornubiæ oriundus."

† Mr. Bond has an old MS. pedigree on vellum, dated 1636, which deduces their descent from a Norman, who came in at the Conquest, and married the daughter and heiress of Bond, of Penryn, in Cornwall: and in Anderson's pedigree, of Churchill, Duks of Marlborough, we find that Hugh Fitz Roger, second son of Roger de Courcil, (a follower of William the Conqueror, at a very early period, to Earth, in the parish of St. Stephens, an estate they acquired in marriage with the daughter and heiress of a very ancient house, which took its name from that place.‡

Richard, of Earth, who m. in 1434,

12th HENRY VI. Agnes, second daughter and co-heiress of Richard Maynard, and their posterity were still residing at Earth at the visitation of Cornwall, anno 1620. The Bonds, of Holwood, in the same county, were a younger branch of those of Earth, and are now represented by Thomas Bond, esq. of East Looe, in the county of Cornwall.

and who obtained from him extensive estates in Somersetshire, Dorsetshire, and Wiltshire, as appears by Domesday), espousing the sister and heiress of Bond, lord of Fisherton, their offspring assumed the surname and arms of that family, viz. sa. a fess or, and hence came the family of Bond. This Bond (or Bondi as he is called in Domesday book) appears to have been a Saxon, and is mentioned in that record as holding Fisherton, in Wilts, as well as other lordships in Dorset and Somerset, as early as the time of EDWARD the Confessor.

‡ "In following the course of the Lyner, you falle downe by Master Bond's ancient house at Earthe, descended to his ancestors from a daughter and heir of that name."

The second son,

ROBERT BOND, removed to Beauchamp's Hache, in Somersetshire, and in the year 1431 (9th HENRY VI.) was seated at Luton, in the Isle of Purbeck, in the county of Dorset, an estate he acquired in marriage with the daughter and heiress of a family of that name, and which has ever since continued in the possession of his descendants. He had issue two sons, viz.

ROBERT, his successor.

William, of Buckland, in the county of Somerset, who was father of

2. Sir George Bond, lord mayor of London in 1587, from whom descended

SIR THOMAS BOND, comptroller of the household to Queen HENRIETTA MARIA. This gentleman was created a baronet at Brussels by King CHARLES II. and had, besides his successor to the baronetcy, a second son, Thomas, who espoused Henrietta, eldest daughter and co-heir of Thomas Lord Jermyn of St. Edmondsbury. The baronetcy became extinct in the Bond family during the last century.

The elder son,

ROBERT BOND, of Lutton, espoused, in 1433, Mary, daughter of Sir John Hody, 1st. of Pillesdon, in the county of Dorset, lord chief justice of England anno 18th HENRY VI. and was father of WILLIAM his successor, and John Bond, of Buckland, in the county of Dorset, whose son, Sir Nicholas Bond, knt. d. s. p. m.

WILLIAM BOND, of Lutton, eldest son of Robert, was born in 1455, and m. in 1496, Elizabeth, daughter and co-heiress of John Prowz, of Bredy, in the county of Dorset, of the ancient family of Prowz, of Gedlegh Castle, in Devonshire, and had

Edith, the eldest daughter, married in 1613, Sir White Beckonshaw, knt. of Moyles Court, in the county of Hants, by whom she had only two daughters his co-heirs; Alice, the eldest of these, married, in 1637, John Lisle, of the Isle of Wight, who afterwards became a member of Cromwell's house of lords, and one of the commissioners of his great seal. She was cruelly condemned to death on the pretended charge of high treason by Judge Jeffries, and beheaded at Winchester 2nd September, 1685. This judgment was afterwards reversed by act of parliament. (See State Trials.)

JOHN, fourth son, of whom hereafter.

The fourth son,

JOHN BOND, esq. of Lutton, b. 1556, continued the line of the family, and was appointed, in 1588, captain of the Isle of Portland at the time of the expected invasion by the Spanish armada. He espoused, in 1583, Margaret, daughter of Richard Pitt, esq. of North Crickett, in the county of Somerset, and had issue,

He subsequently rose high in the favour of CROMWELL, and had the confidence of the parliament as well as of the PROTECTOR. From the commencement of the civil war, he was of the committee for his own county, and from 1654 to 1656, he was M.P. for Weymouth, and one of the council of state from 1648 to 1652. He was likewise comptroller of the receipts of the exchequer, and was nominated one of the judges against the ill fated king; but although he had a real and fixed aversion to the rule of King CHARLES, yet he could not be prevailed upon to take his seat, or in any way to promote the murder of the monarch. "I say this is God's cause, and if ever God had a cause it is this, and if this be not God's cause, then God is no God for me; but the devil is got up into heaven." "Wood's Athenæ Oxonienses," vol. ii. p. 115.

Louisa-Anne, m. to Thomas H. Hope, esq. Clare.

Lineage.

The family of LEIGHTON was in England long before the NORMAN CONQUEST, and is styled by Camden in his Britannia, Nobilem, et Equestrem Familiam.

SIR TITUS DE LEIGHTON, Knight of the Sepulchre, son and heir of Cuthbert, and grandson and heir of Totilus de Leighton, was a co-founder, upon his return from the Holy Land, of the Abbey of Buldewas, in Salop, of which mention is made in some old manuscripts written by Roger and John Challengworth. The son of this gallant knight,

SIR RICHARD DE LEIGHTON, knt. had a reconveyance of the manor of Leighton from William Fitz Allan soon after the Conquest, and out of this manor, which lay close to the Abbey of Buldewas, Sir Richard gave lands to that house, as appears by his grant without date, inserted in Dugdale's Monasticon, prior to that in which King STEPHEN confirmed the said abbey. From this Sir Richard we pass over a long line of distinguished individuals to

EDWARD LEIGHTON, esq. of Watlesborough, in the county of Salop, who was created a BARONET on the 2d March, 1692, and represented the shire in parliament in the reign of WILLIAM III. He m. first, Dorothy, daughter of Sir Job Charlton, bart. of Ludford, in the county of Hereford, and had surviving issue,

Lineage.

The CAREWS are one of the few families now remaining which can trace their descent without interruption, from the Anglo-Saxon period of English history.

OTHO, living in the time of EDWARD the Confessor, held several lordships in Hampshire, Buckinghamshire, and Middlesex, and was s. at his decease by his son,

WALTER FITZ OTHO, who, at the time of the general survey, appears by Domesday book to have enjoyed the same lordships which his father held. The name and family of this Walter's wife are in doubt, as likewise the seniority of his three sons.* Those sons were

WILLIAM, from whom derived the LORDS WINDSORE.

ROBERT, Lord of Eston.

GERALD.

The third in this list,

GERALD, sometimes styled DE WINDSORE, and at others FITZ WALTER, is called, in the Duke of Leinster's pedigree, the eldest son, but in the pedigree of the Earl of Kerry the youngest. He was appointed castellan of Pembroke Castle and lieutenant of the parts adjacent by KING HENRY I. He m. Nesta, daughter of Rhys ap Tewdwr, Prince of South Wales, by whom he acquired the barony, manor, and castle of Carru, with seven other lordships. This Gerald was lineal ancestor of

SIR NICHOLAS CARRU, of Carru, a person of eminence in the reign of EDWARD I. who was summoned to the parliament held at Lincoln by that monarch. He had also two military summonses, and was at the celebrated siege of KARLAVAROK. Sir Nicholas subscribed the letter to the POPE with his appendant seal of three lions. His son and successor,

SIR JOHN CARRU, was father of

SIR JOHN CARRU, knight banneret, a gallant soldier and distinguished statesman, in the martial and victorious reign of EDWARD III. who was present, with his son, Sir John Carru, at the siege of Calais, and was afterwards constituted LORD DEPUTY OF IRELAND. He wedded Margaret, daughter of John, Lord Mohun, of Dunster, and was s. by his son,

SIR LEONARD CARRU, to whom succeeded his son,

* Refer to Burke's Extinct and Dormant Peerage.

SIR JOHN CAREW, who was knighted by King RICHARD II. and afterwards attained high distinction in the French wars of HENRY V. being one of the commanding officers at the AZINCOURT. Sir John Carew, in the same reign, was joined with Sir George Talbot, in the command of the navy, and obtained for his services a grant of one hundred marks per annum for life, payable by the receiver of Cornwall. This gallant person was s. at his decease by his son,

3. Hugh, d. s. p.
4. Alexander, ancestor of the family of EAST ANTONY (See POLE-CAREW.)
5. William (Sir).

The fifth son,

SIR WILLIAM CAREW, acquired from his mother, the manors of Wicheband, Widebridge, Bokeland, &c. This gentleman was made a knight banneret by HENRY VII. after the battle of Blackheath. He had a son,

JOHN CAREW, esq. who wedded Margaret, daughter of William Kelly, esq. by whom he obtained the manors of Stoadley and Camerton, but dying s. p. was s. by his brother (or son),

SIR JOHN CAREW, knt. who inherited temp. JAMES I. Crowcombe, Clatworthy, Camerton, and Stoadley. This gentleman had, in that reign, a charter of free Warren, in Crowcombe, and a grant of CAREW CASTLE, which latter had been mortgaged by his ancestor, Sir Edmund Carew, to Sir Rhys ap Thomas, and had been forfeited to the crown, whence it was leased to Sir John Perrott, and others; the remainder of whose tenure was now purchased by Sir John Carew. He left at his demise in 1637, a son and successor,

THOMAS CAREW, esq. of Carew Castle, and of Crowcombe, who m. Margery, daughter of Sir John Wyndham, of Orchard Wyndham, in the county of Somerset.

This gentleman suffered much for his loyalty to the HOUSE OF STUART, and had the honor of receiving a letter signed by King CHARLES I. commanding his attendance at Oxford. He survived those perilous times, and lived to witness the restoration of the monarchy. He left at his decease, in 1662, a son,

THOMAS CAREW, esq. whose son,

THOMAS CAREW, esq. of Carew Castle, espoused Elizabeth, daughter of John Sanford, esq. of Mynehead, and had issue,

THOMAS, his heir.

John, who inherited at the decease of Lady Carew, relict of Sir Coventry Carew, bart. in 1766, the manor of EAST ANTONY, &c. in Cornwall, but leaving no male issue, the Cornish estates passed, at his decease, to the family of POLE. He had, however, two daughters, viz.

Mr. Calmady succeeded his father, Admiral Calmady, 5th March, 1807.

Lineage.

This ancient family, which was seated at CALMADY, in Cornwall, at a very remote period, appears to have removed into Devonshire about the beginning of the sixteenth century.

JOHN CALMADY, of Calmady, living in 1460, was father of — CALMADY, who is supposed to have married the daughter of Francis Vincent. He had three sons, viz.

1. RICHARD, of Farwood, M.P. for Plympton in 1555, died in 1586, leaving three daughters.

2. VINCENT, of whom presently.

3. Andrew.

The second son,

VINCENT CALMADY, who is supposed to have erected the mansion of LANGDON HALL, m. first Maria, daughter and heir of Robert Nicks, of Lifton, in Cornwall, and had, with other issue, JOSIAS, his successor.

He espoused, secondly, Wylmote daughter of — Alford, by whom he had three sons and a daughter. His will bears date in 1579, and he was s. by his eldest son,

JOSIAS CALMADY, of Langdon, who inherited likewise the fortune of his uncle, Richard Calmady, of Farwood. This gentleman m. Catherine, daughter and heiress of Carew Courtenay,* grandson of Sir William Courtenay, of Powderham, and had, with other issue, his successor, at his decease in the beginning of the seventeenth century,

SIR SHILSTON CALMADY, who received the honor of knighthood in 1618. He m. first, Elizabeth, daughter of John Coplestone, esq. by whom, who d. in 1617, he had no surviving issue. He wedded secondly, Honora, daughter of Edward Fortesque, esq. of Fallow-pit, and relict of Sir H. Prideaux, knt. by whom he had three sons, viz.

JOSIAS, his heir.

Shilston, of Leawood, who espoused Elizabeth, daughter and co-heiress of Humphry Gayer, esq. and had, with two daughters, two sons, viz.

JOSIAS, who eventually succeeded to the estates and representation of the family.

John, M.P. for Oakhampton.

Francis, of Combshead, in Cornwall. This gentleman rebuilt the mansion at that place, where his arms and the initials of his name, with the date 1663, remain over the gateway. He m. Joan, daughter and heiress of Walter Farsland, esq. of Bickington, in Devon, and was father of

FRANCIS CALMADY, esq. of Combs-

* This Carew Courtenay was son of Peter Courtenay, by Elizabeth, daughter and heiress of — Shilston, of Devonshire head, b. in 1664, who was s. in 1704, by his son,

FRANCIS CALMADY, esq. of Combshead, who m. Cecilia, daughter of Warwick Pollexfen, esq. of Mothecombe, in Devonshire, and had, with six other sons† and five daughters, who all died unmarried, his successor in 1747, FRANCIS VINCENT CALMADY, esq. of Combshead, of whom hereafter, as successor to the representation and estates of the branch of Langdon.

Sir Shilston Calmady was killed at the siege of Ford House during the civil wars. His widow survived him, and dying in 1663 was buried in Brideston church, where the following curious epitaph is to be seen upon her tomb :

" Eight living branches still are springing found,
Though here the root lies dead within the ground.
Two husbands in their tombs divided lie,
Who both did in the bed of honor die ;
But now the king of terrors, oh unjust,
At length has laid their honor in the dust,
Till that which here is in dishonor sown
Be raised in honor to a glorious throne."

Sir Shilston was s. by his eldest son,

JOSIAS CALMADY, esq. of Langdon, who m. first, Thomasine, daughter of Sir Richard Buller, knt. by whom he had two daughters. He espoused secondly, Elizabeth, daughter of John Coffin, esq. of Portledge, in Devon, and had two sons, Josias and Shilston, who both died young. This gentleman lived to an advanced age, and was principally occupied in relieving the distressed. In his last testament he was yet mindful of their wants, bequeathing twelve pence per week, in second bread, to the poor of the parish of Wembury, for ever, payable out of the rents in Colebrook, now the property of Earl Morley, to be distributed every Sunday, by the churchwardens. And leaving £500 to be raised out of the sheaf of the parish of Wembury, to purchase lands, the income accruing from the same to be applied to the relief of the parish, according to the provisions of his will ; which money has since been expended in the purchase of an estate, Higher Egcomb, and Ramsdown, in the parish of Milton Abbott, in the county of Devon. This benevolent person d. in 1682, and leaving no male issue, was s. by his nephew,

JOSIAS CALMADY, esq. of Leawood, M.P. for Oakhampton in 1680, and sheriff for the county of Devon, in 1688, who thus became also of Langdon. He m. first, Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Edward Waldo, esq. (by the daughter and heiress of Potter), and by her, who d. in 1694, had (with two younger daughters, who d. unmarried),

JOSIAS, }
SHILSTON, } Successors in turn to the WALDO, } estates.

ELIZABETH, eventually heiress.

Mr. Calmady espoused secondly, Jane, dau. of Thomas Rolt, esq. of Milton, in the county of Devon, and had one daughter, b. in 1701. He was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

JOSIAS CALMADY, esq. of Langdon and Leawood, who served the office of sheriff for Devon, in 1694. He espoused — and had several children, who all died young. His widow died at the advanced age of 92, in 1756, and was buried in Marylebone church, London. Mr. Calmady was s. in 1714, by his next brother,

SHILSTON CALMADY, esq. of Langdon, M.P. for Saltash, at whose decease, unm. in 1730, the estates devolved upon his brother,

WALDO CALMADY, esq. of Langdon, who served the office of sheriff for Devon in 1728. He died issueless, in 1765, when the estates devolved upon his three sisters, as co-heirs, but the two younger dying unmarried, the property passed eventually to the eldest,

ELIZABETH CALMADY, who espoused John Pollexfen, esq. of Mothecombe, in Devonshire, high sheriff for the county in 1718, and left an only daughter and sole heiress,

ELIZABETH POLLEXFEN, (the last survivor of that ancient house), who married

FRANCIS VINCENT CALMADY, esq. of Combshead, (refer to issue of FRANCIS, third son of SIR SHILSTON CALMADY), and had issue,

FRANCIS, his heir.

ELIZABETH, m. to Christopher Hamlyn, esq. of Pascoe, in the county of Devon, and has a son, Calmady-Pollexfen Hamlyn, esq.

POLLEXFEN, of whom hereafter.

Mr. Calmady was s. at his decease, in 1765, by his only son,

FRANCIS CALMADY, esq. of Langdon, who died unmarried, and bequeathed his estates to his youngest sister,

POLLEXFEN CALMADY, who thus became of Langdon. This lady espoused Charles Holmes Everitt, esq. an admiral of the Red, who thereupon assumed by act of parliament, the surname and arms of CALMADY. By the heiress of Calmady, the admiral had issue,

Charles, who died young.

CHARLES-BIGGS, present possessor.

† One of these sons, WARWICK CALMADY, was a captain in the navy at the time Admiral Byng was shot at Portsmouth, and threw up his commission in disgust.

Arabella-Philippa, m. to C. U. Ustekys, esq.

Admiral Calmady d. in 1807, and was buried in the family vault, at Wembury, where a neat marble monument is erected to his memory, with the following inscription :

Near this place are deposited the remains of Charles Holmes Calmady, esq.

Admiral of the Blue, who departed this life, 15th March, 1807,

In the 54th year of his age.

In remembrance of his many virtues, of his grateful regard, and sincere affection to his wife, of his fatherly affection to his children, of his compassionate care of the poor and friendless, and of his benevolence to all.

This monument is erected, that the good May be revered after they are gone hence, and Are no more seen.

On him, who braves unhurt the battle's roar,
Who wreck'd, still treads again his native shore;
On him, secure in midnight's peaceful hour,
May rush, O Death, thy desolating power.

There, Christian, watch, each hour instruct thine heart,

To seek, to find, to hold that better part;
So on thy pillow calmly close thine eye,
Nor tremble, though thy last dread foe be nigh,
Nor wake but in the morning of eternity.

Admiral Calmady was s. by his only surviving son, CHARLES-BIGGS CALMADY, esq. of Langdon Hall, the present representative of this ancient family.

BRACEBRIDGE, OF ATHERSTONE HALL.

BRACEBRIDGE, CHARLES-HOLTE, esq. of Atherstone Hall, in the county of Warwick, b. in March, 1799, m. in 1824, Selina, daughter of William Mills, esq. of Bisterne, in the county of Hants.

Mr. Bracebridge succeeded to the representation of the family at the decease of his father, 21st August, 1832.

Lineage.

This family derives from TURCHILL DE WAREWICK, a Saxon, who, at the period of the CONQUEST, had the reputation of an EARL, and its present representative still retains of the original possessions of this ancestor a rent charge in Kingsbury, the principal seat of the said TURCHILL. Dug-dale says, that this noble Saxon, who was descended from Guy, Earl of Warwick and King Ethelstan, in imitation of the Norman and his followers, assuming a surname, adopted that of ARDEN, a designation given to a woodland tract of the county of Warwick.

TURCHILL DE WAREWICK espoused, first, —, and had a son,

SEWARD DE ARDEN, living temp. HENRY I. who was father of

HENRY DE ARDEN, whose son,

THOMAS DE ARDEN, living in the reign of JOHN, contested for some years with his kinsman, JOHN DE BRACEBRIDGE, the inheritance of Kingsbury, but was eventually forced to abandon his pretensions.

The earl m. secondly, Leverunia, with whom he acquired the manor of Kingsbury, in the county of Warwick, and by her had a son,

OSBERT DE ARDEN, whose service for the manor of Kingsbury, RANUPH, Earl of Chester, granted in the time of STEPHEN, to

Robert Marmion, of Tamworth Castle, and his heirs. This Osbert had issue, OSBERT, his successor.

AMICIA, of whom presently, as heir to her nieces.

The son,

OSBERT DE ARDEN, Lord of Kingsbury, had two daughters, his co-heirs, namely,

ADELIZA DE ARDEN, wife of Simon de Harcourt
and

AMABIL DE ARDEN, wife of Robert Fitz Walter.

These ladies dying both issueless, the lordship of Kingsbury devolved upon their aunt, AMICIA DE ARDEN, wife of

PETER DE BRACEBRIDGG, who had assumed his surname from a place so called, near Lincoln, of which he was LORD. "This Peter," says Dugdale, "was a militarie man, for I find that he gave unto William, the son of Fundus, and his heirs, certain lands within the precinct of this lordship, to the intent that the said William should, upon lawful warning, carry hither to Kingsbury, such painted lances from London or Northampton at the charge of him, the said Peter, as he might have occasion to use in any tournament then, and that whensoever the said Peter should take a journey beyond sea, for performance of such martial exploits, he the said William should attend to bring back his lances." Peter Bracebridgg and his wife confirmed a grant of lands, and the advowson of Kingsbury Church, made by Osbert de Arden, to the nuns of Mergate. The validity of this grant was afterwards, unsuccessfully, contested by Sir Ralph de Bracebridge. Peter was s. at his decease by his elder son,

JOHN DE BRACEBRIDGG, Lord of Kingsbury, who encountered much difficulty in defending his inheritance from his cousin, Thomas de Arden; but eventually succeeded. He d. issueless, in the 2nd of HENRY III. and his estates devolved upon his brother,

WILLIAM DE BRACEBRIGG, Lord of Kingsbury, who was constituted, in the 19th of HENRY III. a justice of assize at Warwick. This William confirmed to the monks of Merevale the grant of a yard land in Holt, made to them by John, his deceased brother; and whatsoever else the said John had given to that monastery. He was s. at his decease by his son,

SIR RALPH DE BRACEBRIGG, knt. Lord of Kingsbury, who received the honor of knighthood in the 33rd of HENRY III. He left at his decease, a daughter, Matilda, m. to Thomas de Clinton, and a son, his successor,

SIR JOHN DE BRACEBRIGG, knt. who in the 40th of HENRY III. paid a fine of two marks in gold to the king, that his knighthood might be postponed for three years; during which dispensation being amerced at a mark by the Justices Itinerant, in Lincolnshire, for not being a knight, he obtained a special mandate to the barons of the Exchequer, for acquitting him of that penalty. Subsequently adhering to the barons, who took up arms in the 48th of this reign, he was made prisoner by the royal army, at the surprisal of Northampton, confined at Shrewsbury, and compelled to surrender his lordship to Roger de Clifford. Obtaining his liberty he fled with the younger Simon de Montford, to the Isle of Arholme, where he remained until the total discomfiture of his party, when submitting, he regained his lands under the "Dictum de Kenilworth." He fell afterwards into such pecuniary embarrassments, owing to the heavy fines he had to pay, that he was obliged to make a lease of nearly his whole lordship, to Robert de Tynetot. He was s. at his decease by his son,

SIR JOHN DE BRACEBRIGG, knt. who in the 3rd of EDWARD II. had a special patent from the crown, exempting him from serving upon juries, or executing the offices of sheriff, escheator, coroner, &c. He d. in six years afterwards, leaving a son,

SIR JOHN DE BRACEBRIGG, who was s. by (his supposed uncle),

SIR RALPH DE BRACEBRIGG, knt. who in the 11th of EDWARD III. levied a fine of two parts of the manor of Kingsbury; and in the 19th of the same monarch, had a military summons to attend the king with horse and arms into France. In three years afterwards he had an especial patent of exemption from the offices of sheriff, escheator, &c. He was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN DE BRACEBRIGG, knt. at whose decease the estates devolved upon his brother,

SIR RALPH DE BRACEBRIGG, knt. styled in an inquisition taken in the 1st of HENRY IV. "Frater Johannis de Bracebrigg Militis." In the 7th of HENRY V. Sir Ralph was summoned the first amongst other persons of note, "Arma portantes, de armis antiquis," as expressed in the writ, to attend the king in person, for the defence of the realm. In the same year he took a lease of the manor house, park, &c. at Lutton, of Richard Beauchamp, then Earl of Warwick, to hold for life. He was afterwards retained by the said earl, who was lieutenant-general of France, to serve him with nine lances and seventeen archers in defence of Calais. This Sir Ralph de Bracebrigg, it appears, (from an old MS. book of Sir Simon Archer, the antiquarian friend of Dugdale) in 1414, attended, with eleven other knights of ancient family, Henry V. to Paris, on the occasion of the coronation of Charles VI. of France. His son,

RALPH BRACEBRIGG, of Kingsbury, espoused, in the 13th of HENRY IV. Joan, daughter of Sir William Newport, knt. and was s. by his son,

RALPH BRACEBRIGG, of Kingsbury, who was s. by his brother,

SIMON BRACEBRIGG, of Kingsbury, who was s. by his son,

RICHARD BRACEBRIGG, of Kingsbury, who m. Joyce Willoughby, and was s. by his grandson,

THOMAS BRACEBRIGG, esq. (a son of Simon Bracebrigg, by Elizabeth, daughter of William Harewell, of Wotton-Waven). This gentleman being deeply indebted to Sir Ambrose Cave, knt. chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster, passed by a deed of sale to him the inheritance of his manor and domains. He m. first, Johanna, daughter of George Catesby, esq. of Lapworth, and had with three younger sons,

WILLIAM, who wedded Anne, daughter of Julian Nethermill, a citizen of Coventry, and dying in the 2nd of ELIZABETH, left issue,

Michael, died s. p. in four years after his father.

Margery, m. first, to W. Willington, and secondly, to B. East, esq.

Jane, m. to Lionel Skipwith, esq.

Thomas Bracebrigg espoused secondly, (when he disinherited his children by his first wife) Jocosa, daughter of Thomas Wilson, and had issue,

THOMAS, who was made heir by his father, but having, according to Dugdale, greatly entangled himself in debt, he eventually sold the remainder of the manor of Kingsbury, to Sir Francis Willoughby, knt. of Middleton, and through great improvidence died in extreme want. He m. Alicia, daughter of John Rugeley, esq. of Dunton, and left at his decease in 1607, inter alios,

JOHN, who espoused Susan, daughter of Thomas Cotton, and had an only daughter,

ANNE, the wife of M. Sanders, of Bedworth.

FAMILY OF HOLTE, OF ASTON,

NOW REPRESENTED BY MR. BRACEBRIDGE.

The ancient deeds and writings of this family having been destroyed when ASTON HOUSE was plundered, in the time of the rebellion, 1641, the first of its members that can be traced is

SIR HUGH HOLTE, living 14 Edward II. who wedded Matilda, daughter of Sir Henry de Erdington, (by Joan, his wife, daughter and co-heir of Sir Thomas de Wolvey,) and was s. by his son,

Alice, (then widow of Sir George, niece and heir to Aliva, one of the co-heirs to Simon de Asseles,) in consideration of forty pounds, passed away all her inheritance in the manor, to her grandson,

SIMON DEL HOLTE (son of the above John). This Simon m. Albrede de Birmingham, (daughter of a noble and eminent house in Ireland,) and had two sons, JOHN and Walter, by the elder of whom,

SIR THOMAS HOLTE, knt. of Aston, who received the honour of knighthood from King JAMES I. in his majesty's progress from Scotland to London, and was created a BARONET on the 25th November, 1612. Of this baronet Dugdale says, that "by him was enclosed a fair park here, (at Aston,) and a noble fabrick therein erected, which, for beauty and state, much exceedeth any in these parts." In 1643 he bravely defended this house against 1,300 of the rebel army, and thereby enabled King Charles, who was then his guest, to escape. He submitted, after inflicting a loss of 60 men upon the enemy. Aston Hall still bears the marks of the cannon shot. Sir Thomas was fined by the parliament for his loyalty, in the sum of £4,401. 2s. 4d. as appears from Doing's Catalogue (published 1655) of the Lords, Knights, and Gentlemen, who compounded for their estates. SIR CLOBERY HOLTE, fourth baronet. This gentleman espoused Barbara, daughter and heir of Thomas Lister esq. of Whitfield,

* This lady becoming the heiress of her great nephew, Francis, the last Lord Brereton, who died 1722, brought the noble mansion and estate of Brereton into the Holte family. She was lineally descended from the seven Earls of Chester, of whom the first, Hugh Lupus, was the nephew of the Conqueror.

Sir Charles died in 1782, when the BARONETCY became EXTINCT. Under the will of Sir Lister, who died in 1769, the manors of Brereton and Aston were settled on his brother, Sir Charles, for his life, with remainder to his issue male; remainder to H. Legge, esq. and his issue male; remainder to L. Bagot, Bishop of Norwich, and his issue male; remainder to W. Digby, esq. and his issue male; and, lastly, remainder to the right heirs of the said Sir Lister Holte. Sir Charles left only one daughter, and the estates, thus in reversion, were estimated at about £800,000, in fee. In 1817, an act of parliament was obtained for the dismemberment of the estates, to satisfy the claims of the assignees and mortgagees of Abraham Bracebridge, esq. and other family claims, as well as to indemnify Mr. Legge and Mr. Digby, (both being without heirs male,) for the resignation of their respective interests. Under this act the estates have been sold.

Lineage.

The name of DE STURY, STURYE, or STORIE, has held an honorable place in our records from the earliest era, having been at various periods connected with trusts of distinctions, with knightly degree, and with episcopal rank.

From an ancient line in the north of England (where and in Salop the name chiefly flourished) descended

JAMES STORIE, esq. who was born about the end of the reign of Queen ELIZABETH, and removed from the north of England into Renfrewshire, where he possessed considerable property. He d. at an advanced age, in 1679, leaving issue,

JOHN, his successor.

James, who d. unmarried.

The elder son,

WELLWOOD, OF GARVOCK.

WELLWOOD, ANDREW-MOFFATT, esq. of Garvock, in the county of Fife, a deputy lieutenant for that shire, m. Miss Taylor, and has an only daughter, ANNE.
Mr. Wellwood s. to the estates upon the demise issueless of his brother in 1820.

Lineage.

The Wellwoods of Touch and Garvock are of long standing, and considerable antiquity. They were originally nobles of Denmark, but the degree of rank which they enjoyed in that kingdom, before their settlement in Scotland, cannot now be ascertained. The name, anciently written Ve-lwood, Velwood, Welwood, was brought into North Britain by a Danish courtier, entrusted by the King of Denmark with the conduct to Scotland of his daughter, Princess Anne, the queen consort to King JAMES VI.
This honourable personage, bearing the name of THE VIOLET, received from his royal mistress the lands of Souch (which have ever since formed part of the estate), and the armorial bearings of the house.

VIVIAN OF TOUCH, son of the founder,
left two sons, viz.

1. WILLIAM, his heir.
2. HENRY, whose son.

Sir THOMAS Wellwood, d. in 1632, was a physician, and an historical writer of eminence. He studied at Glasgow, whence he removed into Holland with his parents, who were compelled to flee from Scotland, in consequence of being suspected of aiding in the murder of Archbishop Sharpe. Having completed his education at Leyden, and taken the degree of M.D., he returned with King WILLIAM at the revolution. Being involved in debt, he borrowed money about this time from the Laird of Garvock, his cousin, promising to repay him when he should come to London. Garvock, contrary to his expectations, did visit that city some years subsequently, when Dr.

Wellwood presented his relation at court, as the chief of his family, but never paid the debt. Dr.
Thomas Wellwood was afterwards knighted, and appointed one of the royal physicians for Scotland. He attained great eminence in his profession, and acquired a considerable fortune. Sir Thomas Wellwood was author of Memoirs of England, from the year 1588 to 1688, 8vo.: a work of merit, though occasionally tinged with the prejudices and prepossessions of one, who had been a sufferer in the civil contests of the period to which his History refers. He d. in 1716.

HENRY WELLWOOD, esq. of Garvock, dying unmarried, left to the son of his brother's daughter, Sir Henry Moncrieff, the castle and estate of Tulliebole, upon condition that he bore the surname of Wellwood, and quartered the Moncrieff coat with the Wellwood arms. The other estates, of Garvock and Touch, passed, on Henry's death, to his brother,

ROBERT WELLWOOD, esq. of Garvock, who had issue,

ROBERT, his heir.

Colonel Kingscote succeeded his uncle in 1773, and never having married, entailed his estates upon the children of his brother, the late Thomas Kingscote, esq.

Lineage.

"It may be said," says Smythe, of Nibley, "of this family, as doubtless of noe other in the county of Gloucester, nor, I think of many others in this kingdome, that the present Mr. Kingscote, and his lineal ancestors have continued in this manor nowe about 500 yeares, never attainted, nor dwellinge out of it elsewhere, nor hath the tide of his estate higher or lower flowed or ebbd, in better or worse condition; but like a fixed star in his firmament to have remained without motion in this his little orbe, without any remarkable change; and as to the name of the first ancestor that is not perished, ANGERUS; it importeth that it is hereditary Saxon."

This

ANSGERUS, living in 985, was grandfather of

Mr. Helyar succeeded at the decease of his father 31st August, 1820. He is in the commission of the peace for the counties of Wilts, Somerset, and Devon, and he served the office of sheriff for Somersetshire in 1829.

Lineage.

This family came originally from the county of Devon, where it appears to have been of importance, for we find one WILLIAM HELYAR representing Melcomb-Regis in parliament, in the reigns of RICHARD II. and HENRY IV. In 1616,

WILLIAM HELYAR, archdeacon of Barnstaple, in the diocese of Exeter, and canon residentiary of the Cathedral of St. Peter's in that city, purchased the manor of EAST COKER, with the advowson of the parish of Hardington Mandeville, from Sir Robert Phelps. In this parish he subsequently built an alms-house for twelve poor men and women, and endowed it with an estate in the parish of Whitchurch, in the county of Dorset. Archdeacon Helyar, who had been chaplain to Queen ELIZABETH, was one of the first Fellows of Chelsea College, nominated by King JAMES I. He was made canon of the church of Exeter, in 1602, and became archdeacon in 1605. When the rebels during the civil war, were ravaging the cathedral and plundering the royalists at Exeter, the venerable canon, then between eighty and ninety years of age, was dragged from his bed at midnight, and hurried on board a ship, where he was detained in close custody, subjected to the most barbarous treatment, until he had consented to pay the sum of eight hundred pounds for his redemption. The following is a copy of the protection he thus purchased. "Whereas Archdeacon Helyar has submitted and sent eight hundred pounds to the parliament upon the propositions. These are therefore, to require all the forces of the parliament to take notice thereof and to protect him in his person, family, and goods, strictly charging and commanding that no man henceforth, molest or trouble him. January 19, 1642, signed, Jo. Northcote, Sam. Rolle," &c. &c.

Mr. Margesson was high sheriff of the county of Sussex in 1805. He succeeded to the estates at the decease of his father, 19th May, 1785.

Lineage.

The surname of MARGESSON is presumed to be of Norman French origin; according to tradition, it was, in early times, "ARGENSON," a name of some distinction still in France. In a pedigree in the Herald's College, the mode of spelling it varies. It seems to have been written, indifferently, Margesson, Margetson, and Margeston; and we find it so varied in some MS. writings in the British Museum. Whitaker, in his History of Richmondshire, calls the Archbishop of Armagh (of this family) Margerison, while in Thoresby's Diary, he is styled Margaretson. The family held lands in the county of York, towards the close of the reign of RICHARD II. or in the beginning of HENRY IV. before the year 1400.

JOHN MARGETSON, or MARGESSON, of Wakefield, living in 1400, was father of RICHARD MARGETSON, of Rotherham, living in 1430, who had two sons, viz.

1. Thomas, whose great-great-grandson,

JAMES, having taken holy orders, became eventually ARCHBISHOP of ARMAGH, and PRIMATE OF ALL IRELAND. He was born in 1600, at Drighlington, in Yorkshire, and educated at St. Peter's College, Cambridge. His first preferment was the living of Watlass, in his native county; but he soon afterwards became chaplain of the celebrated EARL OF STRAFFORD, and went over to Ireland with that nobleman, then constituted lord lieutenant, when he was made Dean of Christ Church, Dublin. Dr. Margesson lived in seclusion during the usurpation. He was consecrated Archbishop of Dublin in 1660, and translated to Armagh in 1663. His grace founded a free-school at his native place; and dying in 1678, was buried in Christ Church, Dublin. He left several children.

2. RICHARD.

The second son,

RICHARD MARGETSON, of Rotherham, m. about the year 1480, a daughter of William Newdigate, with whom, acquiring considerable estates in Surrey, he settled in that county. The family of Newdigate possessed the greater part of Leith Hill, with the manor of Wootton; and a large proportion of the lands upon this hill belonged, within these few years, to the Margessons. The manor has passed to another proprietor, but some part of the landed property still remains in the adjoining manor of OCKLEY. The great-great grandson of this Richard,

JOHN MARGETSON, espoused, 7th September, 1636, Katharine, daughter of — Parker, and had, with other issue,

WILLIAM, b. in 1655.

Anne, m. to — Wycker, esq. of Knep, and Horsham Park, Sussex, and was mother of

JOHN WYCKER, esq. of Knep, and Horsham Park, M.P. for Shoreham, in 1706, who was s. by his son,

JOHN WYCKER, who left an only child and heiress,

MARY WYCKER, who became first wife of the Reverend Sir Thomas Broughton, bart.

WILLIAM MARGETSON, esq. m. at Lewis-ham, in Kent, Anne, daughter of — Wyatt, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM MARGESSON, esq. who espoused, in 1712, Mary, sister and heir of William Whitebread, esq. of Offington, in Sussex, by whom he acquired extensive estates in that county, and had, with two younger sons and three daughters, none of whom appear to have married, his successor at his decease, in 1763,

JOHN MARGESSON, esq. of Offington, in the county of Sussex, b. 31st March, 1716, espoused Miss Mary Pinfold, by whom (who d. in 1787) he had issue, William Westbrooke Richardson, of Finden Place, b. at Warminghurst Park, 8th August, 1788.

When Bristol fell into the hands of Prince RUPERT, he was constituted treasurer and paymaster to the garrison there, but was made prisoner in 1641, at the fatal battle of Worcester. In recompence of these eminent services, he was named one of the knights of the Royal Oak, but that order never taking place, he received the honor of knighthood in 1663: at which time he was a commissioner of the alienation office, surveyor-general of the Outports, and one of the chief farmers of the Customs. Sir Edmund Turner's benevolence and public spirit were exemplary, and several acts of munificence remain lasting monuments of his character. He endowed the vicarage of Milton Erneys (the place of his birth,) with the inappropriate tithes of the parish, while at the same time he rebuilt the vicarage house and offices. And as Bishop Kennet expresses himself, "that his piety to the church might the better be consecrated by his charity to the poor," he erected an hospital for six poor persons, and endowed it with lands to the value of twenty pounds per annum. At Stoke Rochford he built the alms house, and at Wragley, in Lincolnshire, an hospital for twelve poor persons, whereof six were to be the widows of clergymen, and the remainder poor men and women of that town. Lineage.

This gentleman being the heir and representative of two eminent families, it will be necessary to detail lines of both, we shall therefore begin with the FAMILY OF MAXWELL.

SIR JOHN DE MACUSWELL, (eldest son of HERBERT DE MACCUSVILLE, who flourished under MALCOLM IV. and WILLIAM I.) was sheriff of the county of Roxburghe, in 1203, and 1207. He was afterwards (15th June, 1220) one of the guarantees to the marriage contract between ALEXANDER II. and the Princess JOAN of England, and he assisted at the royal nuptials. Sir John Macuswell acquired the barony of Karlaverok, and was constituted GREAT CHAMBERLAIN of Scotland, in 1231. His son and heir, EUMERUS DE MASCUSWELL, of Karlaverok, was GREAT CHAMBERLAIN of Scotland, in 1258. He espoused Mary, daughter and heiress of Roland de Mearns, and acquired thereby the barony and castle of Mearns. By this lady he had two sons, HERBERT (Sir), his heir.

John (Sir), upon whom his father conferred the barony of Nether-Pollock, in the county of Refrew. From this John have descended the MAXWELLS of Pollock, the MAXWELLS of Calderwood and of Cardness, baronets; the MAXWELLS, Earls of Farnham, and the family of Maxwell, of Park Hill, near Newark.

The elder son,

SIR HERBERT DE MAXESWELL sate in the parliament of Score, (5th Feb. 1283-4), when the nobles agreed to acknowledge the "MAIDEN OF NORWAY," as Queen of Scotland. He died before the year 1300, having had three sons, namely Sir John, who predeceased him, SIR HERBERT, and ALEXANDER. His successor was his second son,

SIR HERBERT MAXWELL of Karlaverok, who was s. by his son,

SIR EUSTACE MAXWELL, the gallant defender of KARLAVEROK against the power of EDWARD I. Of this celebrated fortress there is a minute and interesting description in an old heraldic French poem, which recites the names and armorial ensigns of the knights and barons who accompanied the English monarch in 1300, in his expedition to Scotland by the western marches, then under the guardianship of Sir Eustace, as Lord Warden. Karlaverock was attacked, and at that time taken. The original of the poem alluded to is preserved in the British Museum, and the passage describing the situation and form of the castle is thus rendered by Grose:

"Karlaverok was a castle so strong that it did not fear a siege, therefore on the king's arrival it refused to surrender; it being well furnished against sudden attempts, with soldiers, engines, and provisions. Its figure was that of a shield (the ancient shield was triangular), for it had only three sides, with a tower on each angle, one of them a lumellated or double one, so high, so long, and so spacious, that under it was the gate, with a turning or drawbridge, well made and strong, with a sufficiency of other defences. There were also good walls, and deep moats filled to the brim with water. And it is my opinion, no one will ever see a castle more beautifully situated, for at one view one might behold towards the west the Irish sea, towards the north a delightful country encompassed by an arm of the sea, so that no creature born could approach it on two sides, without putting himself in danger from the sea; nor was it an easy matter towards the south, it being, as by the sea on the other side, there encircled by the river, woods, bogs, and trenches; wherefore the army was obliged to attack it on the east, where there was a mount."

The castle after sustaining an assault, at length surrendered, when the remnant of the garrison, only sixty in number, were in consequence of their brave defence, taken into the service of the king, and with their release, ransom free, obtained each a new garment.

Some time subsequently, it was retaken by the Scotch, and Sir Eustace Maxwell, the steady friend of King ROBERT BRUCE, assumed the command. It was again invested by "PROUD EDWARD," but the gallant governor, after sustaining his post with heroic resolution for some weeks, had the glory of driving the foreigner at length from his walls. Lest, however, it should afterwards fall into the hands of the foe, he caused it immediately to be dismantled and rased to the ground. For which generous devotion to his country's cause, "THE BRUCE" conferred upon him several territorial grants, pro fractione et prostratione Castri de Carlaverok, &c. The king also remitted him and his heirs for ever, the sum of ten pounds sterling, which was payable to the crown yearly out of the lands of Carlaverok.*

Sir Eustace Maxwell wedded a lady of his own family, Helen Maxwell, and was s. by his son,

HERBERT MAXWELL, who died s. p. and was s. by his uncle,

JOHN MAXWELL, who was made prisoner at the battle of Durham in 1346, and dying soon after, was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN MAXWELL, of Maxwell and Carlaverock, who sat in the parliament at Edinburgh, in 1357, and had a safe conduct into England in 1365. This Sir John left a daughter, Agnes, the wife of Robert Pollock, of Pollock, and a son, his successor,

SIR ROBERT MAXWELL, of Carlaverock. This gentleman was ambassador to England in 1413, and dying in seven years afterwards, was s. by his son,

SIR HERBERT MAXWELL, of Carlaverock, who was appointed steward of Annandale, by his kinsman, Archibald, Earl of Douglas. He wedded Margaret, daughter and heiress of Sir John de Cragie, of Cragie, and was s. by his son,

* Carlaverock seems however, to have been again fortified, for in the year 1355, it was taken by Roger Kirkpatrick, and, as, Major says, "levelled with the ground." Probably it was never more repaired, but its materials employed to erect a new building. The frequent sieges and dismantlings it had undergone might, in all likelihood, have injured its foundation.

ROBERT MAXWELL, of Carlaverock, one of the heroes of BANNOCKBURN, and slain in that celebrated battle, anno 1448. He had m. Janet, daughter of Sir John Forrester, chamberlain of Scotland, and left a son,

HERBERT MAXWELL, of Carlaverock, deemed the first LORD MAXWELL, who wedded, first, a daughter of Sir Herbert Herries of Terregles, and had two sons,

ROBERT, his successor.

EDWARD (Sir), of Monreith, ancestor of the Maxwells, barts. of that place.

His Lordship espoused, secondly, Katherine, daughter of Sir William Seton, of Seton, and had, with other children, GEORGE, from whom sprang the MAXWELLS of GARNALOCK, and ADAM, the MAXWELLS of SOUTHBAR. Lord Maxwell's eldest son,

ROBERT, second LORD MAXWELL, was served heir to his father on the 4th February, 1453, and he sat as a peer in parliament, anno 1467. His lordship espoused the Lady Janet Crichton, daughter of George, Earl of Caithness, and was s. by his son

JOHN, third Lord Maxwell, who m. Agnes, daughter of Sir Alexander Stewart, of Garies, and, falling at Floddenfield, was s. by his son,

ROBERT, fourth Lord Maxwell, hereditary sheriff of Kirkcubright, and guardian of the West Marches. This nobleman wedded, first, Janet, daughter of William, sixth Lord Douglas of Drumlanrig, (ancestor of the Dukes of Queensbury), and had issue,

ROBERT, his successor.

John, (Sir) who wedded AGNES, eldest daughter and heiress of William Herries, fourth LORD HERRIES, of Terregles, in the county of Dumfries, and became, jure uxoris, LORD HERRIES, of Terregles. His lordship was s. by his son,

SIR WILLIAM MAXWELL, sixth LORD HERRIES of Terregles, who wedded Katharine Kerr, sister of Mark, first Earl of Lothian, and dying in 1604, was s. by his son,

JOHN MAXWELL, seventh LORD HERRIES, of Terregles, who espoused ELIZABETH, daughter of John, sixth Lord Maxwell, afterwards Earl of Morton, and dying about the year 1627, left a son,

JOHN MAXWELL, eighth LORD HERRIES, of whom hereafter, as third Earl of NITHSDALE.

The fourth Lord Maxwell espoused, secondly, Agnes, natural daughter of James, Earl of Buchan, relict of Adam, second Earl of Bothwell. He d. in 1546, and was s. by his elder son,

ROBERT, fifth Lord Maxwell, of Carlaverock, warden of the West Marches, wedded Lady Beatrix Douglas, second daughter of James, Earl of Morton, and dying in 1552, was s. by his son, s, sixth Lord Maxwell, guardian of the West Marches. Upon the execution of the remainder of the Regent MORTON, Lord Maxwell obtained as representative of his house, a new charter of the earldom of Maxwell, ratified by parliament, but the charter being rescinded, he was deprived of the dignity which passed in 1585, to the entail. His lordship espoused Elizabeth Douglas, daughter of David, thirteenth Earl of Douglas, and seventh Earl of Angus, and issue,

1. JOHN, Lord Maxwell.

JOHN, who inherited after his brother, Elizabeth, who m. John Maxwell, sixth Lord HERRIES, of Terregles, and had a son,

JOHN, seventh Lord HERRIES, who succeeded his cousin as third EARL OF NITHSDALE.

JOHN, born in 1593, and was s. by his eldest son, JOHN, seventh Lord Maxwell. A feud existing between the houses of Maxwell and HERRIES, this nobleman slew Sir James HERRIES in a rencounter, and fleeing from the field in consequence, he was betrayed to the Earl of Caithness, and subsequently beheaded, and attainted in 1613. His father had married the lady Margaret HERRIES, daughter of John, first Marquess of Huntly, Duke of Chatelherault, but had no issue. His brother,

JOHN, eighth Lord Maxwell, was created in 1620, Lord Maxwell of Eskdale and HERRIES, and EARL OF NITHSDALE, in preference to his male, and with precedency over other Earls of Morton (in 1581). This nobleman was celebrated, like his grandfather, Sir Eustace Maxwell, in the reign of EDWARD I., by a brave defence of Caithness, against the parliamentarians. His Lordship wedded Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Francis Beaumont, and in 1644, was s. by his son,

JOHN, second Earl of Nithsdale, hereafter Sheriff of Kirkcudbright. His lordship was married in 1667, was s. by his cousin,

JOHN MAXWELL, eighth LORD HERRIES, as third Earl of Nithsdale. His lordship espoused Elizabeth, sister of the Earl of Argyll, first Viscount Kenmure, and died at his decease by his son,

JOHN, fourth Earl of Nithsdale, who wedded the Lady Lucy Douglas, daughter of William, first Marquess Douglas. His father d. in 1695, and was s. by his son,

JAMES, fifth Earl of Nithsdale. This nobleman, so celebrated for effecting his escape from the Tower of London, 23rd July, 1716, the night before his execution, through the heroic agency of the devoted and incomparable countess, Elizabeth, sister of the Earl of Argyll, is entitled, and the honors of the senior branch of the HOUSE OF MAXWELL, "the LES OF CARLAVEROCK," have ever since been obscured by that penal proceeding (see Lady Nithsdale's letter, at the conclusion of this article). His lordship espoused the Lady WINIFRED HERBERT, youngest daughter of William, first Marquess of Powis, and dying at Rome, in 1744, was s. by his only surviving son,

JOHN MAXWELL, styled Earl of Nithsdale, who espoused his first cousin, Lady Catharine Stewart, daughter of Charles, fourth Earl of Traquair, (by Lady Mary Maxwell, daughter of Robert, fourth Earl of Nithsdale,) and had an only daughter, his successor, at his decease in 1776,

LADY WINIFRED MAXWELL, who, but for the attainder of her grandfather, would have inherited the BARONY OF HERRIES, of TERREGLES. Her ladyship had espoused, in 1758, WILLIAM HAGGERSTON-CONSTABLE,* esq. (second son of Sir Carnaby Haggerston, bart. of Haggerston Castle, in the county of Northumberland,) and had three sons and two daughters, viz.

1. MARMADUKE-WILLIAM, heir to his father and mother.

2. WILLIAM, who assumed the surname of MIDDLETON.

3. Charles, who assumed the surname and arms of STANLEY. He m. first in 1793, Elizabeth, sister and heir of Sir Wm. Stanley, bt. of Hooton; and 2dly in 1800, Mary dau. of Thos. Macdonald, esq. by the latter of whom he has surviving issue, Thomas-Angus Constable, William Constable, Mary-Anne Constable, and Catherine Constable.

4. Mary, m. to John-Webb Weston, esq. of Sutton Place, in Surrey.

5. Theresa.

Mr. Constable-Maxwell died in 1797, and her ladyship in 1801. Both were succeeded by their eldest son, MARMADUKE WILLIAM CONSTABLE, esq.

* SIR THOMAS HAGGERSTON, bart. m. first, Margaret, dau. of Sir Francis Howard, knt. of Corby Castle, and had nine sons and a daughter. The eldest son, Thomas, was killed in Ireland, in the service of King JAMES II. and died unmarried. The second son, WILLIAM HAGGERSTON, m. Anne, daughter of Sir Philip Constable, bart. of Everingham, county York, and dying before his father, left, with three daughters, an only son, CARNABY.

Sir Thomas wedded secondly, Jane, daughter and sole heiress of Sir William Carnaby, knt. of Farnham, in Northumberland, but had no other issue. He was s. by his grandson,

SIR CARNABY HAGGERSTON, bart. who wedded Elizabeth Middleton, heiress of Stockeld and Middleton, in Yorkshire, and had, with an elder and a younger son, WILLIAM, who assumed the name of CONSTABLE upon inheriting Everingham and the other estates of that family. He m. Lady Winifred Maxwell, as in the text.

who at the decease of his father, became "of Everingham Park, in the county of York," and at the death of his mother, "of Carlawerock Castle," upon which latter event he assumed, by royal license, the additional surname of MAXWELL. Mr. Constable-Maxwell m. Theresa, daughter of Edmund Wakeman, esq. of Beckford, in the county of Worcester, and had issue,

WILLIAM, his heir.

Marmaduke, of Terregles, in the county of Dumfries, b. 1st January, 1806.

Peter, b. 7th February, 1807.

Henry, b. in 1810.

Joseph, b. in 1811.

Mary, m. to the Honorable Charles Stourton-Langdale, fourth son of Charles, sixteenth Lord Stourton.

Theresa, m. to the Honorable Charles Everard Clifford, second son of Charles, seventh Lord Clifford.

Mr. Constable Maxwell d. in 1819, and was s. by his eldest son, the present WILLIAM CONSTABLE-MAXWELL, esq. of Everingham and Carlawerock.

FAMILY OF CONSTABLE.

The family of CONSTABLE assumed that surname from holding, in feudal times, the important office of CONSTABLE of Chester.

ROBERT DE LACY, younger brother of Roger de Lacy, constable of Chester, and uncle to the first Earl of Lincoln, enjoyed the lordship of Flamburgh, by gift of his brother Roger. He was grandfather of

SIR ROBERT CONSTABLE, of Flamburgh, who received the honour of knighthood, with three hundred others, at a grand festival at Whitsuntide, in the 34th of EDWARD I. From this Sir Robert lineally sprung, through a line of distinguished progenitors, who allied with the houses of Fitzhugh, Skipwith, Cumberworth, and Gascoigne,

SIR ROBERT CONSTABLE, of Flamburgh, M.P. for Yorkshire, 17th EDWARD IV. and sheriff for the same county in two years after. He wedded Agnes, daughter of Sir Roger Wentworth, of Nettledsted, in Suffolk, and dying in 1488, left issue,

MARMADUKE, his heir.

John, dean of Lincoln.

Philip.

Robert, of Cliffe, serjeant-at-law.

William, of Caythorpe and Wassand, living in 1528, now represented by the Rev. Charles Constable, of Wassand, whose only daughter, Mary, wedded George, eldest son of Sir William Strickland, bart. of Boynton. (See family of CONSTABLE, of Wassand.)

The eldest son,

SIR MARMADUKE CONSTABLE, knt. of Flamburgh, in Yorkshire, married twice: by his second wife, Margery, daughter of Henry, Lord Fitzhugh, he had no issue; but by the first, Joyce, daughter of Sir

Humphrey Stafford, knt. he had (with two daughters) four sons, viz.

I. ROBERT (Sir) of Flamburgh, who, for his signal services against the Cornish rebels, was knighted in 1497. Subsequently, however, taking part in the commotions in Lincolnshire, excited by John, Lord Hussey, he was attainted and executed at Hull. He left by Jane, daughter of Sir William Ingleby, of Riply, a son,

SIR MARMADUKE CONSTABLE, 1st. of Nuneaton, a distinguished warrior, whose descendant and representative,

WILLIAM CONSTABLE, esq. of Flamburgh, was created a baronet in 1611. This gentleman, a most violent opponent of the court of CHARLES I. d. s. p. during the PROTECTORATE.

II. MARMADUKE (Sir), of whom we have to treat.

III. William (Sir), of Hatfield.

IV. John (Sir), of Knowlton.

The second son,

SIR MARMADUKE CONSTABLE, knt. acquired EVERINGHAM by marrying Barbara, daughter and heiress of Sir John Southell, knt. He was s. by his son,

SIR ROBERT CONSTABLE, knt. of Everingham, who wedded Catherine, daughter of George Manners, Lord Ros, by the daughter and sole heiress of Sir Thomas St. Leger, knt. and Anne his wife, Duchess of Exeter, sister to King EDW. IV. The eldest son and heir,

SIR MARMADUKE CONSTABLE, knt. of Everingham, m. Jane, daughter of William, Lord Conyers, of Hornby, and dying in 1574, was s. by his son,

SIR ROBERT CONSTABLE, knt. of Everingham, who m. Margaret, daughter of Sir Robert Tyrwhit, and had (with several other children) a son and heir,

MARMADUKE CONSTABLE, esq. of Everingham, who d. in 1632, leaving by Frances, daughter of Thomas Metham, esq. of Metham, a son, his successor,

PHILIP CONSTABLE esq. of Everingham, who was advanced to a baronetcy by King CHARLES I. and suffered severely, in those rebellious times, for his fidelity to that monarch. He espoused Anne, only daughter of Sir William Roper, of Eltham, Kent, and dying in 1664, was s. by his son,

SIR MARMADUKE CONSTABLE, bart. of Everingham, b. in 1619, who m. Anne, daughter of Richard Sherborne, esq. of Stonyhurst, and had (with two daughters, both nuns,) a son and heir,

SIR PHILIP CONSTABLE, bart. of Everingham, b. in 1651. This gentleman wedded Margaret, daughter of Sir Francis Ratcliffe, bart. earl of Derwentwater, and his daughter and heiress, ANNE CONSTABLE, wedding Wm. Haggerston, esq. conveyed Everingham to that family.

A Letter from Winifred Herbert, Countess of Nithsdale, to her sister, the Lady Lucy Herbert, Abbess of the English Augustine Nuns, at Bruges, containing a circumstantial account of the escape of her husband, William Maxwell, fifth Earl of Nithsdale, from the Tower of London, on Friday, the 23rd of February, 1716.*

“DEAR SISTER,

My lord's escape is now such an old story that I have almost forgotten it; but since you desire me to give you a circumstantial account of it, I will endeavour to recall it to my memory, and be as exact in the narration as I possibly can; for I owe you too many obligations to refuse you any thing that lies in my power to do. I think I owe myself the justice to set out with the motives which influenced me to undertake so hazardous an attempt, which I despaired of thoroughly accomplishing, foreseeing a thousand obstacles, which never could be surmounted but by the most particular interposition of Divine Providence. I confided in Almighty God, and trusted that He would not abandon me even when all human succours failed me.

I first came to London upon hearing that my lord was committed to the Tower. I was at the same time informed that he had expressed the greatest anxiety to see me, having, as he afterwards told me, nobody to console him till I came. I rode to Newcastle, and from thence took the stage to York. When I arrived there the snow was so deep that the stage could not set out for London. The season was so severe and the roads so extremely bad, that the post itself was stopped. However, I took horses and rode to London, though the snow was generally above the horses' girths, and arrived safe without any accident. On my arrival I went immediately to make what interest I could among those who were in place. No one gave me any hopes, but they all to the contrary assured me that, although some of the prisoners were to be pardoned, yet my lord would certainly not be of the number. When I enquired into the reason of this distinction, I could obtain no other answer than that they would not flatter me. But I soon perceived the reasons which they declined alleging to me. A Roman Catholic upon the frontiers of Scotland who headed a very considerable party; a man whose family had always signalized itself by its loyalty to the royal house of Stuart, and who was the only support of the Catholics against the inveteracy of the Whigs, who were very numerous in that part of Scotland, would become an agreeable sacrifice to the opposite party. They still retained a lively remembrance of his grandfather, who defended his own castle of Carlaverock to the last extremity, and surrendered it up only at the express command of his royal master. Now having his grandson in their power, they were determined not to let him escape from their hands. Upon this I formed the resolution to attempt his escape, but opened my intention to nobody but my dear Evans. In order to concert measures, I strongly solicited to be permitted to see my lord, which they refused to grant me, unless I would remain confined with him in the Tower. This I would not submit to, and alleged for excuse, that my health would not permit me to undergo the confinement. The real reason of my refusal was, not to put it out of my power to accomplish my designs; however, by bribing the guards, I often contrived to see my lord, till the day upon which the prisoners were condemned. After that, for the last week we were allowed to see and take our leave of them. By the assistance of Evans, I had prepared every thing necessary to disguise my lord, but had the utmost difficulty to prevail upon him to make use of them. However, I at length succeeded by the help of Almighty God. On the 22nd of February, which fell on a Thursday, our general Petition was presented to the House of Lords, the purport of which was, to interest the lords to intercede with his Majesty to pardon the prisoners. We were however disappointed, the day before the petition was to be presented, the Duke of St. Albans, who had promised my Lady Derwentwater, to present it, when it came to the point, failed in his word. However, as she was the only English Countess concerned, it was incumbent on her to have it presented. We had but one day left before the execution, and the Duke still promised to present the petition, but for fear he should fail, I engaged the Duke of Montrose to secure its being done by the one or the other. I then went in company with most of the ladies of quality then in town to solicit the interest of the lords as they were going to the house. They all behaved to me with great civility, but particularly the Earl of Pembroke, who, though he desired me not to speak to him, yet he promised to employ his interest in my favour, and honourably kept his word, for he spoke very strongly in our behalf. The subject of the debate was, whether the king had the power to pardon those who had been condemned by Parliament; and it was chiefly owing to Lord Pembroke's speech that it was carried in the affirmative, however, one of the lords stood up, and said that the house could only intercede for those of the prisoners who should approve themselves worthy of their intercession, but not for all them indiscriminately. This salvo quite blasted all my hopes, for I was assured that it was aimed at the exclusion of those who should refuse to subscribe to the petition, which was a thing I knew my lord would never submit to; nor, in fact, could I wish to preserve his life on those terms. As the motion had passed generally, I thought I could draw from it some advantage in favour of my design. Accordingly I immediately left the House of Lords and hastened to the Tower, where, affecting an air of joy and satisfaction, I told the guards I passed by, that I came to bring joyful tidings to the prisoners; I desired them to lay aside their fears, for the petition had passed the house in their favour. I then gave them some money to drink to the Lords and his Majesty, though it was but trifling, for I thought if I were too liberal on the occasion, they might suspect my designs, and that giving them something would gain their good will and services for the next day, which was the eve of execution. The next morning I could not go to the Tower, having so many things upon my hands to put in readiness; but in the evening, when all was ready, I sent for Mrs. Mills, with whom I lodged, and acquainted her with my design of attempting my lord's escape, as there was no prospect of his being pardoned, and that this was the last night before the execution. I told her that I had every thing in readiness, and that I trusted she would not refuse to accompany me, that my lord might pass for her. I pressed her to come immediately, as we had no time to lose. At the same time I sent to Mrs. Morgan, then usually known by the name of Hilton, to whose acquaintance my dear Evans had introduced me, which I look upon as a very singular happiness. I immediately communicated my resolutions to her. She was of a very tall slender make, so I begged her to put under her own riding-hood one that I had prepared for Mrs. Mills, as she was to lend hers to my lord, that in coming out he might be taken for her. Mrs. Mills was then with child, so that she was not only of the same height, but nearly of the same size as my lord. When we were in the coach, I never ceased talking, that they might have no leisure to reflect. Their surprise and astonishment when I first opened my design to them had made them consent, without ever thinking of the consequences. On our arrival at the Tower, the first I introduced was Mrs. Morgan, (for I was only allowed to take in one at a time), she brought in the clothes that were to serve Mrs. Mills when she left her own behind her. When Mrs. Morgan had taken off what she had brought for my purpose, I conducted her back to the staircase, and in going, I begged her to send me my maid to dress me, that I was afraid of being too late to present my last petition that night if she did not come immediately. I dispatched her safe, and went partly down stairs to meet Mrs. Mills, who had the precaution to hold her handkerchief to her face, as is natural for a woman to do, when she is going to take her last farewell of a friend on the eve of his execution. I had, indeed, desired her to do so, that my lord might go out in the same manner. Her eyebrows were rather inclined to be sandy, and my lord's were very dark and very thick; however I had prepared some paint of the colour of her's to disguise his with; I also brought an artificial head-dress of the same coloured hair as hers, and I painted his face with white and his cheeks with rouge, to hide his long beard, which he had not time to shave. All this provision I had before left in the Tower. The poor guards, whom my slight liberality the day before had endeared me to, let me go quietly out with my company, and were not so strictly on the watch as they usually had been, and the more so as they were persuaded, from what I had told them the day before, that the prisoners would obtain their pardon. I made Mrs. Mills take off her own hood, and put on that which I had brought for her; I then took her by the hand and led her out of my lord's chamber, and in passing through the next room, in which were several people, with all the concern imaginable, I said, "My dear Mrs. Catherine, go in all haste and send me my waiting-maid, she certainly cannot reflect how late it is; I am to present my petition to-night, and if I let slip this opportunity I am undone, for to-morrow will be too late; hasten her as much as possible, for I shall be on thorns till she comes." Every body in the room, who were chiefly the wives and daughters, seemed to assionate me exceedingly, and the el officiously opened me the door. I had seen her safe out I returned to d, and finished dressing him. I had care that Mrs. Mills did not go out, as she came in, that my lord might pass for the lady who came in cry-d afflicted, and the more so, because d the same dress which she wore. I had almost finished dressing my all my petticoats except one, I per-it was growing dark, and was afraid e light of the candles might betray us, solved to set off. I went out leading e the hand, whilst he held his hand-ef to his eyes. I spoke to him in the iteous and afflicted tone of voice, be-g bitterly the negligence of Evans, ad ruined me by her delay. Then "My dear Mrs. Betty, for the love, run quickly and bring her with you; now my lodging, and if you ever made h in your life, do it at present; I am distracted with this disappointment." uards opened the door, and I went tairs with him, still conjuring him to ll possible dispatch. As soon as he eared the door I made him walk be-e, for fear the sentinel should take of his walk; but I still continued to im to make all the dispatch he possi-uld. At the bottom of the stairs I y dear Evans, into whose hands I d him. I had before engaged Mr. e be in readiness before the Tower, to t him to some place of safety, in case eeded. He looked upon the affair ery improbable to succeed, that his hment when he saw us, threw him ch a consternation that he was almost himself; which Evans perceiving, e greatest presence of mind, without him any thing lest he should mistrust conducted him to some of her own on whom she could rely, and so se-him, without which we should have ndone. When she had conducted d left him with them, she returned to lls, who by this time had recovered f from his astonishment. They went together, and having found a place of ty they conducted him to it. In the me, as I had pretended to have sent ung lady on a message, I was obligd rn up stairs, and go back to my lord's in the same feigned anxiety of being te, so that every body seemed sin- to sympathize in my distress. When in the room, I talked as if he had been present: I answered my own ques- n my lord's voice as nearly as I could e it; I walked up and down as if we conversing together, till I thought they e enough thoroughly to clear them- of the guards. I then thought proper to make off also. I opened the door, and stood half in it that those in the outward chamber might hear what I said, but held it so close that they could not look in. I bade my lord formal farewell for the night, and added, that something more than usual must have happened to make Evans negligent on this important occasion, who had always been so punctual in the smallest trifles; that I saw no other remedy but to go in person: that if the Tower was still open, when I had finished my business, I would return that night; but that he might be assured I would be with him as early in the morning as I could gain admittance into the Tower, and I flattered myself I should bring more favourable news. Then, before I shut the door, I pulled through the string of the latch, so that it could only be opened in the inside. I then shut it with some degree of force, that I might be sure of its being well shut. I said to the servant as I passed by (who was ignorant of the whole transaction) that he need not carry in candles to his master, till my lord sent for them, as he desired to finish some prayers first. I went down stairs and called a coach, as there were several on the stand and drove home to my own lodgings, where poor Mr. M'Kenzie had been waiting to carry the petition, in case my attempt had failed. I told him there was no need of any petition, as my lord was safe out of the Tower, and out of the hands of his enemies as I supposed, but that I did not know where he was. I discharged the coach and sent for a sedan chair, and went to the Duchess of Buccleugh, who expected me about that time, as I had begged of her to present the petition for me, having taken my precaution against all events. I asked if she was at home, and they answered me that she expected me, and had another duchess with her. I refused to go up stairs as she had company with her, and I was not in a condition to see any other company. I begged to be shewn into a chamber below stairs, and that they would have the goodness to send her grace's maid to me, having something to say to her. I had discharged the chair, lest I might be pursued and watched. When the maid came in I desired her to present my most humble respects to her grace, who they told me had company with her, and to acquaint her, that this was my only reason for not coming up stairs. I also charged her with my sincerest thanks for her kind offer to accompany me when I went to present my petition. I added, that she might spare herself any further trouble, as it was judged more advisable to present one general petition in the name of all; however, that I would never be unmindful of my particular obligation to her grace, and which I should return very soon to acknowledge in person. I then ordered one of the servants to call a chair and I went to the Duchess of Montrose, who had always borne a part in my distresses. When I arrived, she left her company to deny herself, not being desirous to see me under the affliction which she judged me to be in. By mistake, however, I was admitted, so there was no remedy. She came to me, and as my heart was in an ecstasy of joy, I expressed it in my countenance. As she entered the room, I ran up to her in the transport of my joy; she appeared to be extremely shocked and frightened, and has since confessed to me, that she apprehended my troubles had thrown me out of myself, till I communicated my happiness to her. She then advised me to return, for that the king was highly displeased and even enraged at the petition I had presented to him, and had complained of it severely. I sent for another chair, for I always discharged them immediately, that I might not be pursued. Her grace said she would go to Court and see how the news of my lord's escape was received. When the news was brought to the king, he flew into an excessive passion, and said he was betrayed, for it could not have been done without a confederacy. He instantly dispatched two persons to the Tower, to see that the other prisoners were well secured, lest they should follow the example. Some threw the blame on me, some upon another. The duchess was the only one at court that knew it. When I left the duchess I went to a house that Evans had found out for me, and where she promised to acquaint me where my lord was. She got thither some few minutes after me, and told me that when she had seen him secure she went in search of Mr. Mills, who by this time had recovered himself from his astonishment, that he had returned to his house where she found him, and that he had removed my lord from the first place where she had desired him to wait, to the house of a poor woman directly opposite the guard-house. She had but one small room up one pair of stairs, and a very small bed in it. We threw ourselves on the bed, that we might not be heard walking up and down. She left us a bottle of wine and some bread, and Mrs. Mills brought us some more in her pockets the next day. We subsisted on this provision from Thursday till Saturday night, when Mr. Mills came and conducted my lord to the Venetian Ambassador's. We did not communicate the affair to his excellency, but one of his servants concealed him in his own room till Wednesday, on which day the Ambassador's coach and six was to go down to Dover to meet his brother. My lord put on a livery, and went down in the retinue, without the least suspicion, to Dover; where Mr. Michel (which was the name of the Ambassador's servant) hired a small vessel, and immediately set sail for Calais. The passage was so remarkably short that the Captain threw out this reflection, that the wind could not have served better if his passengers had been flying for their lives, little thinking it to be really the case. Mr. Michel might have easily returned, without suspicion of having been concerned in my lord's escape; but my lord seemed inclined to have kin with him, which he did, and he has at present a good place under our young master. This is an exact and as full an account of this affair, and of the persons concerned in it, as I could possibly give you, to the best of memory, and you may rely upon the truth of it. For my part, I absconded in the house of a very honest man in Drury Lane, where I remained till I was assured of my lord's safe arrival on the coast. I then wrote to the Duchess of Buccleugh (every body thought till then that I was gone off with my lord) to tell her I understood I was suspected of having contrived my lord's escape, as was very natural to suppose; that if I could have been happy enough to have done it, I should be flattered to have the merit of it attributed to me, but that a bare suspicion, without proof, would never be a sufficient ground for my being punished for a supposed offence, though it might be a motive sufficient for me to provide a place of security; so I entreated her to procure leave for me to go about my business. So far from granting my request they were resolved to secure me if possible. After several debates, Mr. Solicitor-General, who was an utter stranger to me, had the humanity to say, that since I showed such respect to Government as not to appear in public, it would be cruel to make any search after me. Upon which it was decided, that no further search should be made if I remained concealed; but that if I appeared either in England or in Scotland, I should be secured. But this was not sufficient for me, unless I could submit to see my son exposed to beggary. My lord went for me up to town in such haste, that I had not time to settle any thing before I left Scotland. I had in my hands all the family papers, and dared trust them to nobody. My house might have been searched without warning, consequently they were far from being secure there. In this distress I had the precaution to bury them in the ground, and nobody but myself and the gardener knew when they were. I did the same with other things of value. The event proved that I had acted prudently, for after my departure they searched the house, and God only knows what might have transpired from those papers. All these circumstances rendered my presence absolutely necessary, otherwise they might have been lost, for they retained the highest preservation, one very severe winter, for when I took up they were as dry as if they came.

the fire-side, yet, they could not possibly have remained so much longer without prejudice. In short, as I had once exposed my life for the safety of the father, I could not do less than hazard it once more for the fortune of the son. I had never travelled on horseback but from York to London, as I told you, but the difficulties did not arise now from the severity of the season, but the fear of being discovered and arrested. To avoid this, I bought three saddle horses, and set off with my dear Evans, and a very trusty servant whom I brought with me out of Scotland. We put up at all the smallest inns on the road that could take in a few horses, and where I thought I was not known, for I was thoroughly known at all the considerable inns on the northern road. Thus I arrived safe at Traquhair, where I thought myself secure, for the Lieutenant of the County being a friend of my lord's, would not permit any search to be made after me without sending me previous notice to abscond. Here I had the assurance to rest myself for two whole days, pretending that I was going to my own house with leave from Government. I sent no notice to my house, that the Magistrates of Dumfries might not make too narrow enquiries about me. So they were ignorant of my arrival in the country till I was at home, where I still feigned to have permission to remain. To carry on the deceit the better, I sent to all my neighbours and invited them to come to my house. I took up my papers at night, and sent them off to Traquhair. It was a particular stroke of providence that I made the dispatch I did, for they soon suspected me, and by a very favourable accident, one of them was overheard to say to the Magistrates of Dumfries, that the next day they would insist on seeing my leave from Government. This was bruited about, and when I was told of it, I expressed my surprise that they should be so backward in coming to pay their respects; but, said I, "better late than never, be sure to tell them that they shall be welcome whenever they choose to come." This was after dinner, but I lost no time to put every thing in readiness with all possible secrecy; and the next morning before day-break I set off again for London with the same attendants, and as before put up at the smallest inns, and arrived safe once more.

On my arrival, the report was still fresh my journey into Scotland, in defiance of its prohibition.

A lady informed me, that the king was amely incensed at the news. That he issued orders to have me arrested; adding, that I did whatever I pleased in despite of all his designs, and that I had given him no trouble and anxiety than any other man in Europe. For which reason I kept myself as closely concealed as possible, till the heat of these reports had abated. In the mean while I took the opinion of a very famous lawyer, who was a man of the strictest probity. He advised me to go off as soon as they had ceased searching after me. I followed his advice, and about a fortnight after escaped without any accident whatever. The reason he alleged for his opinion was this, that although in other circumstances, a wife cannot be prosecuted for saving her husband, yet in cases of high-treason, according to the rigour of the law, the head of the wife is responsible for that of the husband; and as the king was so highly incensed there could be no answering for the consequences, and he therefore entreated me to leave the kingdom. The king's resentment was greatly increased by the petition which I presented, contrary to his express orders. But my lord was very anxious that a petition might be presented, hoping that it would be at least serviceable to me. I was in my own mind convinced that it would be to no purpose, but as I wished to please my lord, I desired him to have it drawn up, and I undertook to make it come to the king's hand, notwithstanding all the precautions he had taken to avoid it. So the first day that I heard the king was to go to the drawing-room, I dressed myself in black, as if I was in mourning. I sent for Mrs. Morgan (the same who accompanied me to the Tower) because as I did not know his Majesty personally, I might have mistaken some other person for him. She stood by me and told me when he was coming. I had also another lady with me, and we three remained in a room between the king's apartments and the drawing-room: so that he was obliged to go through it, and as there were three windows in it, we sat in the middle one, that I might have time enough to meet him before he could pass. I threw myself at his feet, and told him, in French, that I was the unfortunate Countess of Nithsdale, that he might not pretend to be ignorant of my person. But perceiving that he wanted to go off, without receiving my petition, I caught hold of the skirts of his coat, that he might stop and hear me. He endeavoured to escape out of my hands, but I kept such strong hold that he dragged me from the middle of the room to the door of the drawing-room. At last one of the blue-ribbands, who attended his Majesty, took me round the waist, whilst another wrested the coat out of my hands. The petition, which I had endeavoured to thrust into his pocket, fell down in the scuffle, and I almost fainted through grief and disappointment. One of the gentlemen in waiting took the petition, and as I knew that it ought to have been given to the Lord of the Bedchamber who was then in waiting, I wrote to him, and entreated him to do me the favour to read the petition which I had had the honour to present to his Majesty.

Fortunately for me it happened to be my Lord Dorset, with whom Mrs. Morgan was very intimate. Accordingly, she went into the drawing-room and presented him a letter, which he received very graciously. He could not read it then, as he was at cards with the Prince, but as soon as the game was over, he read it; and behaved, as I afterwards learnt, with the greatest zeal for my interest, and was seconded by the Duke of Montrose, who had seen me in the anti-chamber and wanted to speak to me, but I made him a sign not to come near me, lest his acquaintance should thwart my designs. But it became the topic of their conversation the rest of the evening, and the harshness with which I had been treated soon spread abroad, not much to the honour of the King. Many people reflected that they had themselves presented petitions, and that he had never rejected any even from the most indigent objects. But this behaviour to a person of quality was a strong instance of brutality. These reflections which circulated about, raised the king to the highest pitch of hatred and indignation against my person, as he has since allowed; for when the ladies, whose husbands had been concerned in this affair, presented their petitions for dower, mine was presented among the rest, but the king said, I was not entitled to the same privilege, and in fact I was excluded; and it is remarkable, that he would never suffer my name to be mentioned. For these reasons every body judged it prudent for me to leave the kingdom; for so long as this hatred of the king subsisted I could not be safe, and as it was not probable that I could escape falling into his hands, I accordingly went.

This is the full narrative of what you desired, and of all the transactions which passed relative to this affair. Nobody besides yourself could have obtained it from me; but the obligations I owe you, throw me under the necessity of refusing you nothing that is in my power to do. As this is for yourself alone, your indulgence will excuse all the faults which must occur in this long recital. The truth you may however depend upon, attend to that, and overlook all deficiencies. My lord desires you to be assured of his sincere friendship.

I am, with strongest attachment,

My dear Sister,

Yours, most affectionately,

WINIFRED NITHSDALE.

HALKETT, OF HALL HILL, NORTH BRITAIN.

HALKETT-CRAIGIE, CHARLES, esq. of Hall Hill and Dumbarrie, county of Fife, formerly an officer in the 93rd regiment or Gordon Highlanders, died in December, 1802, m. in 1824, Susan, youngest daughter of Sir John Banks, bart. of Lees, in the county of Berwick, and has surviving issue, Alice-Augusta.

Matilda.

Lineage.

The ancient name of HALKETT, in the writs of this family, is promiscuously written "de Hawkhead" and "de Halkett;" it is said to be territorial or local, and to have been assumed by the proprietors of the lands and barony of Hawkhead, in Renfrewshire, so soon as surnames became hereditary in Scotland.

The exact period when the Halketts established themselves in Fife cannot at this distance of time be precisely ascertained, but we have proofs that they were free barons, and had large landed possessions in the western parts of that county six hundred years ago. The first of the family on record who distinguished himself by his arms was

DAVID DE HALKETT, a powerful warrior, living temp. King DAVID BRUCE, and of the house of Bruce.

PHILIPPUS DE HALKETT, who flourished in the reigns of Kings ROBERT II. and ROBERT III. In the Chartulary of Balingall, filius et haeres David de Halkett anno Domini 1393." From this PHILIPPUS Halkett we pass over seven generations, observing the remarkable fact, that all the chiefs of this family have always been distinguished by the military service of their own or that of some allied power.

GEORGE HALKETT, the ninth in lineal descent and a distinguished officer, espoused Isabella, daughter of Sir James Hepburn, of Waughton, and had three sons and one daughter, of whom

SIR JOHN HALKETT, knight, the third in line, continued the line of the family, and received the honor of knighthood from King JAMES VI. He attached himself to a military life, and went into the service of the states of Holland, where by his brave conduct and merit he rose to the rank of general, and had the command of a Scots regiment. He was likewise president of the grand Marishall in Holland. Sir John Halkett married Van Loon, a lady of high rank in illed at the siege of Bois-le-vaing a son and successor, HALKETT, a captain in the army, daughter of Agnes Decquere, a niece of Artois, by whom he was EDWARD. Captain Maurice Halkett killed at Maestricht in 1675, is succeeded by his only son, HALKETT, a major in the Dutch army. He m. Judith de Pagniet, a lady of Guelderland, and had his successor.

 Isabella, m. to Colonel Van der Meer, Governor of Surinam.
 Anne, m. to Sir George Nicholson, and was unmarried.

Halkett was killed at the battle of Marston, in 1706, and was s. by HALKETT, esq. who, following in the footsteps of his gallant ancestors, served with high reputation, rose to the rank of Lieutenant-General, and had the honor of a Scot's regiment in Holland, first, Margaret, eldest daughter of the Brigadier-General Corbet, by two sons and one daughter,

his successor.
 John, officer in the army, d. in 1766.
 Anne, m. to Colonel Heldevier.
 Anne, m. secondly, Mademoiselle de la Cour, a French lady, by whom was born a captain in the army, father of OLIN HALKETT, K.C.B.

 d. in 1758, and was s. by his

HALKETT, esq. who was a colonial service and Governor of the island of Dumbarnie, one of the lords of the shire of Scotland, (by Susan, eldest daughter of John Inglis, bart. of Craighall, Susan Hamilton, his wife, fourth Earl of Haddington,) and by the settlement her husband's debts were obliged to assume the arms of CRAIGIE, in addition to those of HALKETT. By this lady he had issue,

CROKER, (Privy Councillor.)

CROKER, The Right Honorable JOHN-WILSON, LL.D. F.A.S. b. 20th December, 1780, m. 22nd May, 1806, Rosamond, eldest daughter of William Pennell, esq. His Majesty's Consul General in the Brazils, by whom he had a son and a daughter, who both died young. Upon the decease of his children, Mr. Croker adopted the sister of Mrs. Croker, and the young lady then assumed his name. The pencil of Sir Thomas Lawrence has rendered the person of Miss Croker familiar to the public in one of his most exquisite portraits. She has lately espoused Mr. George Barrow, son of John Barrow, esq. second secretary of the Admiralty.

Mr. Croker was educated at the University of Dublin, which he entered as a gentleman commoner in November, 1796, and took his degree in 1800. During his sojourn at college, he attained very high reputation as a public speaker, in the celebrated Historical Society, and as a political writer and poet. He is the presumed author of two very popular works, published in Dublin about that period—"Familiar Epistles to Fred. Ed. Jones, esq. upon the Irish Stage," and "A Sketch of the State of Ireland, past and present." The former, which is in verse, attracted more than ordinary attention, passing, we believe, through ten editions, in as many months: the latter, as an adaptation of the style of Tacitus to English composition, is a master-piece. Mr. Croker was called to the bar in 1802, and offering himself soon after for Down, in Ireland, stood a contested election; but not being returned, presented a petition to parliament. Another dissolution taking place, pending the petition, Mr. Croker was chosen at the ensuing election, in 1807. From that time he has had a seat in every succeeding parliament. Upon the promotion of Lord Plunket to the bench, in 1827, Mr. Croker succeeded that eminent person in the representation of the University of Dublin, wherein he had taken the degree of LL.D. in 1809: in which year he was appointed secretary of the admiralty; an office which he filled until the retirement of his party, in 1830. He had been sworn a member of the most honorable privy council in 1828.

Mr. Croker, during his long tenure of office, confined his parliamentary exertions to subjects connected with his own department, which afforded but few occasions of distinction; but he has acquired great celebrity as leader of the present opposition (1832) in the House of Commons, and his abilities have been confessed by all parties. As a political writer, many articles in the Quarterly Review, and several pamphlets upon public questions, bear ample testimony to his great powers; and a late edition of Boswell's Life of Johnson is a proof of more literary diligence than might have been expected from a poet or a politician.

Lineage.

This family is a branch of the house of CROKER of Lineham, in the county of Devon; a name so eminent, that there is an old proverbial distich, or, as Prince (Worthies of Devon, p. 274) calls it "old saw," recording its antiquity;

"Croker, Crewys, and Coppelstone,
When the Conqueror came, were at home."

The Crokers, who were originally seated at Croker's Hele and Crokern Tor in Devonshire, became possessed, in the reign of Henry IV., of Lineham by marriage with the heiress of Churchill of that place; the younger male branch of which family was the ancestor of the Duke of Marlborough.

The genealogy of Croker of Lineham is preserved with singular accuracy by Prince, Risdon, Pole, and the other Devonshire historians, as well as by numerou pedigrees and documents. There were no less than eleven John Crokers in almost uninterrupted succession, but the last male of the elder branch was Courteney Croker, esq. whose only daughter and heiress, Mary, carried the estate of Lineham into the family of Bulteel, and her grandson John Bulteel, esq. of Fleet, is now the owner of Lineham; which is in the occupation of his eldest son John Croker Bulteel, esq. who is thus the representative by the female line of the eldest branch of Croker of Lineham. This gentleman married in 1826, the Lady Elizabeth Grey, third daughter of Charles, present Earl Grey, K.G. and has been lately elected M.P. for South Devon.

We must now return to a junior, but at present the eldest male branch.

THOMAS CROKER, of Trevillas in Cornwall, second son of the eighth John Croker, of Lineham, obtained, about 1600, the estate of Ballyanker, in the county of Waterford, and while his eldest son remained at Trevillas, (where his branch is supposed to be extinct,) his younger sons, to the number of three or four, migrated to Ireland. They were all probably soldiers; two of them, at least, were so, and distinguished themselves by the extraordinary and almost romantic capture of the city of Waterford in 1650, (see Smith's History of Waterford, p. 147, ed. 1774.) One of the brothers was killed in the assault, the other (Hugh) after a long course of military service settled at Ballyanker, and died in January, 1663: from him the subject of this notice is descended. His youngest brother, Edward, (who was murdered in the Irish Rebellion, 1641) was ancestor of the respectable and wealthy family of Croker, of Ballynagard, in the county of Limerick, and of a numerous branch settled in Dublin, to which belong, Anne, daughter and heiress of Thomas Croker, and wife of Sir Ed. Crofton, bart. created in 1797, baroness Crofton, in her own right; and Thomas Crofton Croker, esq. known by many literary works.

WALTER CROKER, esq. of Tallow, the grandson of Hugh, the captor of Waterford, had by the daughter of Reginald Bray, an only son,

JOHN CROKER, esq. of Tallow, who was born in 1696, and died in 1743, leaving three sons,—Walter, of Tallow,—John, of Airhill,—and William, of Johnstown.—John left male issue, but William left an only daughter and heiress, who married the Honorable Frederick Mullins, son of the first Lord Ventry, and by him has issue, Frederick-William, M.P. for Kerry, in the present and two last parliaments.

WALTER CROKER, esq. the eldest son of John, of Tallow, was born in 1728, and d.

in 1789, leaving by his wife, Sarah, daughter of Edward Devereux, esq. one son,

JOHN CROKER, esq. surveyor-general of Ireland, who was born in 1743, and died 29th April, 1814. He was a man of great abilities and most amiable manners, an able and upright public servant, and in private life universally respected and beloved. He m. first, Catherine Welstead, by whom he had surviving issue,

WALTER, who d. in 1807, leaving two daughters, CATHERINE, the wife of William Pennell, jun. esq. and MARGARET, the wife of Lovell Pennell, esq. These ladies both have issue.

Catherine, m. to William Miller, esq. of Londonderry, and has issue.

Mr. Croker espoused secondly, Hester, only daughter of the Rev. Richard Rathborne, and granddaughter of Admiral Wilson,* by whom he had two surviving children, the present Right Honorable JOHN WILSON CROKER, and Sarah, who m. in 1815, the very Rev. J. T. Bond, dean of Ross. Mrs. Bond died in 1820, leaving an only son, who died in 1828.

The surveyor-general d. 29th April, 1814, at the age of seventy-three.

Arms—Arg. a chevron engrailed gu. between three ravens, ppr. quartering the arms of CHURCHILL.

Crest—A drinking cup or, with three fleurs de lis ppr. above it, and on the centre a rose; granted by EDWARD IV. to Sir John Croker, who accompanied him as cup and standard bearer in his expedition to France in 1475. The addition of the fleurs de lis was one of those attentions on the part of the French monarch LOUIS XI. by which he sought to flatter the vanity, and gain the good will of the English gentry. On ministers, says Hume, he lavished pensions and pecuniary bribes. To less influential persons such lighter but more honorable favors as this to Sir John Croker. The tomb of this Sir John Croker, "Signifer Regis Edwardi Quarti," with his effigy in brass, is in perfect preservation in the church of Yealhampton, near Lineham.

his gentleman, by profession a barrister, was constituted judge of one of the vice royal courts in North America, and retiring in 1816, received then the honour of knighthood. In 1823, he was elected a bencher of the Inner Temple, and appointed in 1825, treasurer of that society. He succeeded to his paternal inheritance at the decease of his father in 1777.

Lineage.

The surname of this family was originally BLOUNT, and Sir Alexander Croke states that he is now the representative of the senior branch of that ancient house, which had its origin from the BLONDI or BRONDI, of Flanders. Its patriarchs, the COUNTS OF GUISNES, formed an alliance with most of the royal families of Europe, and counted amongst their progenitors, the Emperors and Kings of France, the Kings of Denmark, the Counts of Flanders, and the Guelphs, Dukes of Brunswick.

ROBERT DOLPH, third Count of Guisnes, (whose grandfather was SIGEFRED, the Dane, first Earl of Northampton, and grandson of HAROLD V., King of England) espoused Rosetta, daughter of the second Count St. Pol, and had three sons, who accompanied the Conqueror into England, and one of whom returned into Normandy, while the other two,

1. WILLIAM, who succeeded to the feudal barony, and marrying Cicely de Vere, had issue,

JOHN (Sir), from whom, by his first wife, Juliana Foulhurst, descend the BLOUNTS OF SODINGTON, now represented by SIR EDWARD BLOUNT, bart.; and by his second wife, Isabella, daughter and heiress of Sir Bryan Cornwall, the BLOUNTS OF BROMYARD, represented by JOHN BLOUNT, ESQ., OF LEA HALL, in Worcestershire, and the BLOUNTS, of Burton upon Trent. He was also ancestor of the extinct family of BLOUNTS, OF KINLET.

Sir John Blount, the elder, m. secondly, Eleanor, daughter of John Beauchamp, of Hache, and dying in 1358, left another son,

Sir Robert le Blount d. in 1288, and was s. by his elder son,

SIR RALPH LE BLOUNT, Lord of Belton, in the County of Rutland, who recovered lands in Saxlingham, in the reign of EDWARD I. He espoused Cecilia or Alicia, daughter and co-heir of Sir John Lovet, of Hampton Lovet, in Worcestershire, and was s. by his son,

SIR THOMAS LE BLOUNT, Lord of Belton and Hampton-Lovet, who married twice, and had issue,

1. WILLIAM (Sir), Lord of Belton, &c. whose only son,

SIR JOHN BLOUNT, Lord of Belton, custos of the City of London, and constable of the Tower, in the time of EDWARD III. was summoned to parliament in the first year of that reign, as LORD BLOUNT, of Belton. He m. first —, and had one son,

SIR THOMAS BLOUNT, Lord of Belton, who, with his kinsman, Nicholas, having engaged in the attempt to restore RICHARD II. to the throne, in the year 1400, suffered a most cruel death,*

* Sir Thomas Blount was hanged; but the halter was soon cut, and he was made to sit on a bench before a great fire, and the executioner came with a razor in his hand, and knelt before Sir Thomas, whose hands were tied, begging him to pardon him his death, as he must do his office. Sir Thomas asked, "Are you the person appointed to deliver me from this world?"—The executioner answered, "Yes, Sir, I pray you pardon me." And Sir Thomas kissed him, and pardoned him his death. The executioner then knelt down, and opened his belly, and cut out his bowels, and threw them into the fire. While Sir Thomas was dying, one Erpyngham, the king's chamberlain, insulting Blount, said to him, in derision, "Go, seek a master that can cure you."—Blount only answered,—"Te Deum laudamus! Blessed be the day on which I was born, and blessed be this

2. Nicholas, father of another NICHOLAS, of whom we are about to treat.

The grandson of Sir Thomas le Blount (the son of his second son), NICHOLAS LE BLOUNT, having taken an active part in the insurrection, which proved so fatal to his cousin Sir Thomas le Blount, was outlawed and forced to fly the kingdom. Repairing with other refugees to the court of Milan, he entered into the military service of the accomplished JOHN GALEAZZO VISCOMPTI, who was then at war with the emperor, and who eventually, after routing them at Brescia, drove the imperialists out of Italy. The Duke acknowledged with gratitude the merits of the English, and the splendid rewards which he conferred upon them, were worthy of the magnificent house of VISCOMPTI. Nicholas le Blount subsequently returned to England, but in doing so adopted the precaution of changing his name, as did several other of his companions, amongst whom were JOHN CARRINGTON, who took the name of Smith, the ancestor of the extinct Lords Carrington, and William Fitzwilliams, who assumed that of English; Blount chose the cognomen of CROKE.* He m. Agnes, daughter and heiress of John Heynes by Alicia Athall, and was s. by his son,

JAMES CROKE, alias LE BLOUNT, whose son,

RICHARD CROKE, espoused a lady named Alicia, but of what family is not related. He was s. by his son,

JOHN CROKE, esq. who was appointed in 1522 one of the Six Clerks† of the Court of Chancery, and in seven years afterwards obtained a patent for life as Comptroller and Supervisor of the Hanaper in the same court. In the reign of EDWARD VI. he was constituted a Master in Chancery. In 1529 Master Croke had purchased the estate and manor of Chilton, in Bucks, from Lord Zouch, and, in 1539, bought from the crown the priory of STUDLEY, with all the possessions thereunto belonging.

† As the chancellor had been almost always an ecclesiastic, these officers were anciently actual cleri, or in holy orders, and were regularly promoted to livings under the chancellor's patronage. As clergymen, they were incapable of marrying, and even when they ceased to be in orders the ancient custom of celibacy continued, a restraint which was confirmed by an ordinance in Chancery, 12th of RICHARD II. and was observed until the reign of HENRY VIII.

He wedded Prudencia, third daughter of Richard Cave, esq. of Stamford-upon-Avon, and sister of Sir Ambrose Cave, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, a most intimate friend and near connexion of the Lord Treasurer Burleigh. He d. in 1554, and was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN CROKE, knt. of Chilton, b. in 1530, returned to parliament for the borough of Southampton in 1571, and for the county of Bucks in the following year. He wedded, in 1533, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Alexander Unton,* knt. and had issue,

1. JOHN (Sir), of Chilton and Studley, an able and eminent lawyer, who succeeded Sir Edward Coke as Treasurer of the Inner Temple in 1598, and was subsequently appointed Recorder of London, and chosen one of the representatives of that city. In the last memorable parliament called by Queen ELIZABETH, he was elected SPEAKER of the House of Commons, and the manner of his appointment has been most curiously related by a contemporary writer, Sir Simonds D'Ewes. In the 1st year of JAMES I. he received the honor of knighthood, and was made serjeant-at-law. Sir John was afterwards constituted king's serjeant, and a Welsh judge; and he succeeded Sir John Popham, as one of the justices of the Court of King's Bench, in the 5th of the same reign. The arguments of Sir John Croke at the bar, and his decisions from the bench, evinced the profoundest professional knowledge; in testimony of which he received from the Lord Chancellor (Sir Christopher Hatton) a bowl of silver gilt. He m. Catherine, daughter of Sir Michael Blount, knt. of Maple, Durham, and dying in 1619, left issue,†
2. Henry, barrister-at-law, who m. Miss Bennet Honeywood, and left, at his decease, with several daughters, an only surviving son,

III. GEORGE (Sir), one of the most eminent lawyers of the period in which he lived, who after passing through the minor gradations of office, was constituted, in 1628, one of the judges of the Court of King's Bench. In the unconstitutional proceedings of the misguided CHARLES I. previous to the breaking out of the Civil War, Sir George Croke did not concur, and, unterrified by the menaces, and uninfluenced by the fascinations of power, followed upon every occasion the dictates of his conscience, always raising his voice in favor of the rights of the people. In the celebrated case of Hampden, after five of the judges had delivered their opinions for the crown, Mr. Justice Croke gave his in favor of that celebrated patriot. In 1621, Sir George purchased Studley from Sir John Croke, of Chilton, having some years previously bought Waterstock from Sir William Cave. She m. secondly, Sir Richard Ingoldsby, knt. cousin to the Protector CROMWELL, and a gallant parliamentary commander. The present Marquess of Winchester is a descendant of the latter marriage.

Lineage.

THOMAS PENRICE, esq. of Yarmouth, in the county of Norfolk, (descended from an ancient family of the same name, in Worcestershire, of which was Sir John Penrice, of Penrice Castle, in the county of Glamorgan, whose heiress espousing Sir Hugh Mansel, knt. conveyed the estate of Penrice to that house) was the residuary legatee of John Howe, last Lord Chedworth, and inherited his lordship's estates in Gloucestershire and Wiltshire, which he sold in 1810.

Having been blessed with a natural strong mind improved by a good education, Mr. Penrice made considerable attainment in the study of history and the belles lettres. In music he was an adept, and to the polite arts he was much attached. Of his knowledge in the latter, his Rubens, Titians, Gaios, Wouvermanns, Ostade, &c. will ever bear respectable testimony. WINSTANLEY, OF BRAUNSTON.

WINSTANLEY, CLEMENT, esq. of Braunston Hall, in the county of Leicester, 1775, s. to the estates upon the demise of his father in 1808, and served the office of sheriff of Leicestershire, in 1815.

Lineage.

The family of WINSTANLEY is of remote antiquity in the county of Lancaster, the earliest occurrence in the records of that shire, being back as the reign of HENRY III. Among its early progenitors, SIR THOMAS WINSTANLEY is mentioned by Froissart and others, as one of the knights attendant upon Black Prince, in his expedition into France, to place Don Pedro upon the throne. Successors of this gallant warrior, allied with the houses of Standish, Worsley, Longton, &c. remained seated at Winstanley, in Lancashire, until the close of the sixteenth century, when JAMES WINSTANLEY, of Winstanley, one of the poor knights of Windsor, is presumed to have migrated to the Bankeses, the patrimonial seat and estates.

JAMES WINSTANLEY, esq. b. in 1600, a member of the Lancashire family, was admitted Gray's Inn in 1624, and was appointed sheriff of Leicester in 1653. He had previously, 25th May, 1650, purchased the manor of BRAUNSTON from the Hastings. He espoused Catherine, daughter of Clement

Sir Edmund espoused secondly, Anne, daughter of Philip Hawkins, esq. of Pennans, in Cornwall, by whom he had another daughter,

ANNE (co-heir), m. to John Pendarves Basset, esq. of Tihiddy, and had a son,

JOHN PRIDEAUX BASSET, esq. who d. unmarried in 1756, when the estates of the Bassets devolved upon FRANCIS BASSET, his uncle. The eldest son of this Francis was afterwards elevated to the peerage as BARON DE DUNSTANVILLE. (See Burke's Peerage.)

* This celebrated person was son of SILAS TITUS, of Bushey, Herts, gent. He was b. in 1612-13—entered a commoner of Christ Church, Oxford, in 1637, and became, about 1640, a member of one of the inns of court. In the grand Rebellion, when the Parliament raised an army against the king, he obtained a captain's commission, but disapproving of the course pursued by the Independents, abandoned his colours for the royal standard, and was subsequently of eminent service to the two CHARLESSES. Colonel Titus was a man of wit, and author of the celebrated pamphlet, secretly published, called "Killing no Murder." In this satirical production, several cogent reasons are offered to the USURPER, why he should put himself to death. CROMWELL is said to have been exceedingly terrified, and to have doubted whether he should not follow the author's advice, to avoid the pistol of the assassin. Titus, who was not known to be the author till after the Restoration, had a colonel's commission given him by King CHARLES II, who made him one of the grooms of his bedchamber. He sometimes, to divert the king, or sink a declining favorite, practised buffooneries, better suited to Bartholomew Fair than to the court of a prince, who certainly understood decorum and politeness. Though Titus had pleaded strongly in parliament for the exclusion of the Duke of York, he was no less urgent for the abolition of the test and penal laws, as the surest bulwark against Popery. In the reign of King JAMES, he was sworn of the privy council. He d. in 1704, aged 82.—GRAINGER.

They arrayed themselves in blue coats with crimson collars, and attended him from his seat at Leicester, in something like military order. During the shrivality of Mr. Winstanley, the great contest for the county occurred between John Peach Hungerford and William Pochin, esquires, in the progress of which the sheriff received the compliments of both parties, for his impartiality and integrity. GEORGE-ROBERT, b. 24th February, 1826.

Ricardo succeeded his father on the 11th September, 1823.

Lineage.

his family was founded by the celebrated writer on Political Economy, DAVID RICARDO, a gentleman of Jewish descent, who was b. on the 12th April, 1772, educated in Holland, in order that he might pursue the profession of his father, a rich merchant and stock broker, but being by an early marriage with a French lady of the name of Wilkinson, the pressure of his friends, he was thrown entirely upon his own resources, the friends of his wife being equally irritated, and obliged to depend solely upon his own industry. Becoming a member of the Stock Exchange, he gradually accumulated an immense fortune, and obtained distinction as a writer upon Finance. In 1810, his opinions upon the depreciation of the currency were first promulgated through the columns of the Morning Chronicle Newspaper, but he subsequently embodied his ideas in a distinct work, and he had the satisfaction to find them adopted and confirmed in the report of the Bullion Committee of the House of Commons. He subsequently published an "Essay on Rent," in which he advocated the principles of Malthus, and entered into an examination of the affairs of the Bank of England. Eventually he proposed an economical currency, and addressed a letter to Mr. Perceval, who was then Chancellor of the Exchequer, upon the subject, but without effect. His most important production was his treatise upon "Political Economy and Taxation," a work said to rank with the celebrated "Wealth of Nations," of Adam Smith.

 Mr. Ricardo obtained a seat in parliament, in 1819, for the borough of Portarlington, and the same liberality and good sense marked his parliamentary career that had previously characterized his writings. He died of inflammation of the brain, arising from an abscess in the ear, on the 11th September, 1823.

This Roger Dowdeswell acquired a large landed property by purchase. In 1606 he bought Hill House, from the family of Wrenford, and in three years afterwards the estates of Oxeye and Frogmore from his father-in-law, Mr. Blomer. He obtained, subsequently, the manor of Pull. He d. in 1633, and was s. by his son,

RICHARD DOWDESWELL, esq. who further augmented the estates of the family by purchasing the manor of BUSHLEY, in Worcestershire. This gentleman was a zealous upholder of royalty during the unfortunate reign of CHARLES I. and suffered severely for his loyalty to the king. He outlived that season of disaster, however, and represented the borough of Tewkesbury after the Restoration. In the House of Commons he proved an active member, and was one of most of the committees appointed to take measures against the Regicides. Anne, daughter of Sir Charles Fitzroy, Mydge Hall, in Wiltshire, and d. in 1673 was s. by his eldest son,

The right honorable gentleman died in 1775, having previously filled the chair of the Worcestershire Quarter Sessions for several years. The following epitaph from the pen of EDMUND BURKE, presents a faithful delineation of his character :

To the Memory of

WILLIAM DOWDESWELL,

Representative in Parliament for the county of Worcester,

Sollicitor of the Exchequer in the years 1765 and 1766, and a member of the King's Privy Council :

A SENATOR FOR TWENTY YEARS, A MINISTER FOR ONE, A VIRTUOUS CITIZEN FOR HIS WHOLE LIFE.

A man of unshaken constancy, inflexible integrity, unremitting industry.

His mind was generous, open, sincere.

His manners plain, simple, and noble : rejecting all sorts of duplicity and disguise

As useless to his designs and odious to his nature.

His understanding was comprehensive, steady, vigorous, made for the practicable business of the State.

In debate, he was clear, natural and convincing.

His knowledge in all things which concerned his duty profound.

He understood beyond any man of his time the REVENUES of his COUNTRY :

Which he preferred to every thing except its LIBERTIES.

He was perfect master of the law of Parliament, and attached to its privileges, until they were set

Up against the RIGHTS of the PEOPLE.

All the proceedings which have weakened Government, endangered FREEDOM, and distracted the British Empire, were, by him, strenuously opposed ;

And his last efforts, under which his health sunk, were to preserve

His country from a civil war, which being Unable to prevent, he had not the misfortune to see.

He was not more respectable on the public scene, than amiable in private life :

When engaged in the greatest affairs, he never lost the ancient, native, genuine English character of a Country Gentleman,

Disdaining and neglecting no office in life.

He was a useful municipal magistrate : with great care and clear judgment administering justice,

Maintaining the police, relieving the distresses and regulating the manners of the people in the neighbourhood,

As husband, father, the kindest, gentlest, most indulgent.

He was every thing to his family except what he gave up to his country.

His widow, who labours with life, in order to form

The minds of his eleven children to the resemblance

Of their father, erects this Monument.

Dowdeswell was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS DOWDESWELL, esq. of Pull Court, had entered early into the military service of his country, but owing to the fatigue which he experienced while upon service with his regiment in America, he became totally blind before his thirty-third year. Miss Seward, in one of her "Letters," gives a most interesting description of Pull Court and its inmates at that period. Mr. Dowdeswell m. in 1798, his second daughter of Sir Thomas

Weller, bart. but dying issueless, in 1811,

his estates devolved upon his next brother.

WILLIAM DOWDESWELL, esq. who thus became "of Pull Court." This gentleman having adopted the profession of arms, acquired with high reputation in different parts of the world, and attained the rank of GENERAL in his Majesty's service. General

Dowdeswell represented Tewkesbury in parliament from 1792 to 1796. He died on the 1st December, 1828, unmarried, when his Lancashire estates devolved upon his next brother, EDWARD CHRISTOPHER

DOWDESWELL, D.D. canon of Christ Church,

Oxford ; while those in the counties of Worcester and Gloucester passed to his youngest brother, the present EDMUND

DOWDESWELL, esq. of Pull Court.

Lineage.

The family of CAY (or, as the name was formerly spelt, KEY) is believed to have enjoyed very fair possessions in the Eastern Borders. The following traditional account of the loss of their ancient patrimony is still recorded: at a remote period, the head of the family having quarrelled with another gentleman, they agreed to settle their dispute, by combat, within the Poundfold of Alnwick. Having procured the key, they locked themselves in, and threw it over the wall. KEY killed his antagonist, leaped over the wall, and made his escape on foot to Newcastle-upon-Tyne, which was, at that period, without the jurisdiction of the Marchers.

This murder and flight constituting March treason, Key's possessions were forfeited, and he spent his life, in great indigence, at Newcastle. His son or grandson, however, found means to be bound apprentice to a brewer in Newcastle, and for several generations they pursued that business, the family continuing to this day freemen of the Corporation of Brewers and Bakers there.

In this line of business, a considerable trade was at length established by Robert Key or Cay, of Newcastle, which was much extended by his widow, when left with a large family, for whom she amply provided. By her exertions a good deal of property was acquired to the family in Newcastle and elsewhere. She was twice nearly ruined by fires, yet, by economy and prudence, she grew rich, and built houses for four of her sons, to whom she gave an excellent education. At a late period of her life, she connected herself in trade with her third son, Robert,* but being obliged to pay debts contracted through his extravagance, was reduced to poverty. Her resolution was, however, not to be shaken—she began the world again, thrived, and grew rich, leaving ample provisions to her family.

Her eldest son,

JABEZ CAY, studied at Edinburgh University, in the reign of CHARLES II. when James, Duke of York, was high commissioner in Scotland, 1682. He was one of a number of students, who, according to annual custom, on the 5th November, burnt an effigy of the pope, at the gate of the palace of Holyrood. For this, he, along with others, was summoned before the privy council, and was banished from Scotland. He went to Padua, to complete his studies, and having taken the degree of doctor in physic there, he returned, and practised in Northumberland, where he accumulated a considerable fortune, and, in conjunction with a person of the name of Hutchinson, purchased the estate of North Charlton, in 1686. Dr. Cay dying in 1702, unmarried, left his share of the property to his brother,

JOHN CAY, esq. who obtained also from the representatives of Hutchinson, their interest in the estate, and thus became of North Charlton. He m. Grace, daughter and co-heir of Henry Woolff, esq. of Brecklington, and had issue,

Cay was s. at his decease by his eldest son, ROBERT CAY, esq. of North Charlton, and of Laygate, Durham, b. in 1694. This gentleman was engaged in considerable mercantile relations, the manufacture of salt, &c. He signed a letter in the newspapers of the time with the initials B. K. suggesting the institution of an infirmary at Newcastle. The proposal was followed, and gave rise to that excellent establishment. The circumstance was commemorated by giving the name of B. K. ward to one of the departments of the infirmary, which name it still retains. He m. Elizabeth, daughter of Reynold Hall, esq. of Newcastle, and had issue,

Dr. Greaves is a justice of the peace for the county of Stafford.

Lineage.

The family of GREAVES is of high antiquity, its patriarch having passed into England in the train of the CONQUEROR. The first of its members, however, of whom we possess any authentic record, is — LES GREVES, who was seated at Beely and Greves, in Derbyshire, as early as the reign of HENRY I. from which time, until the latter end of the seventeenth century, his descendants continued to reside there. They had several grants from the crown; the last of which was in the 12th year of JAMES I. when that prince granted to John Greaves, esq. the then possessor of Beely, the power of holding a court leet for the manors of Beely, Stanton Birchover, Bridgetown, Coroley, Gratton, and Winster. In 1664, the old hereditary estates at Beely were sold to John, Earl of Rutland, and the head of the family left Beely, and settled at Mayfield, in Staffordshire, where his descendants have ever since remained.

LITTLETON, OF TEDDESLEY.

LITTLETON, EDWARD-JOHN, esq. of Teddesley, in the county of Stafford, and one of the Knights in Parliament for that shire, b. 18th March, 1791, m. 21st December, 1812, Hiacinthe-Mary, daughter of Richard Marquess Wellesley, and has issue,

EDWARD-RICHARD.
Hiacinthe-Anne.
Emily, m. 16th Aug. 1832, to Charles, Viscount Newark.
Caroline-Augusta.

Mr. Littleton succeeded to the estates of his great-uncle, Sir Edward Littleton, baronet, in 1812, and adopted by sign manual that surname in place of his patronymic WALHOUSE.

Lineage.

The family of Lyttelton has been of long standing in the county of Worcester, and had considerable possessions in the vale of Evesham, particularly at South Lyttelton, whence the name has probably been assumed, in the beginning of the thirteenth century.

THOMAS DE LUTTELTON, about the ninth year of Henry III. m. Emma, only daughter and heiress of Sir Simon de Frankkat, by whom he had an only daughter, Emma, who m. Augerus de Tatlynton (which name was distrained in the 40th year of Henry III. for not taking upon himself the duties of knighthood). Thomas de Luttelton secondly, Anselm, daughter and heiress William Fitzwarren, of Upton, in the city of Worcester, one of the justices-tenant and judge of the Common Pleas, Henry III. and sheriff of Worcester the following year, by whom he left three sons. This Thomas was a considerable benefactor to religious institutions, particularly to the convents of Pershore, and the city of Evesham. He was s. at his decease his eldest son, RODMUND DE LUTTELTON, who resided at Leddon, and had lands at Naunton, in Worcestershire, which still continue in possession of a branch of the family of Lyttelton. Dying without issue, his estates descended upon his youngest and only surviving daughter,

THOMAS DE LUTTELTON, who represented the county of Worcester in parliament, from 9th Edward II. to the 34th Edward III. and was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

THOMAS DE LUTTELTON, who recovered the manor of Frankley, by a writ of right, on failure of issue to his cousin, Thomas de Tatlynton. This Thomas de Luttelton was esquire of the body of three successive kings, namely, Richard II. Henry IV. and Henry V.; and was rewarded with several grants of money, timber, &c. from each of those monarchs, pro bono et gratuito servitio, as expressed in the grants. He d. in the 1st year of Henry VI. and left an only daughter and heiress,

ELIZABETH DE LUTTELTON, who m. Thomas Westcote, esq. the king's servant in court, a gentleman of Devonshire, anciently descended; but she being fair, and of noble spirit (to use the phraseology of Lord Coke), and having large possessions and inheritances from her ancestors, de Luttelton, and from her mother, the daughter and co-heiress of Quatermain, and other ancestors, resolved to continue the honour of her name, and therefore provided, by Westcote's assent, before marriage, that her issue inheritable should be called by the name of Luttelton. Upon this marriage, Mr. Westcote settled at Frankley, and served the office of escheator of Worcester 29th Henry VI. (1450); soon after which he d. leaving four sons and as many daughters. He was s. by his eldest son,

In 1464 (the fourth year of King Edward IV.) Mr. Serjeant Lyttelton was appointed one of the judges of the court of Common Pleas; and the king granted him, at the same time, out of the customs of London, Bristol, and Hull, 110 marks yearly, with the sum of 106*s.* 10*d.* for a robe and furs, and 66*s.* 6*d.* for a summer robe, called linura. In the 15th year of the same monarch, he was created with the Prince of Wales, and other persons of distinction, a Knight of the Bath. Sir Thomas wrote his celebrated "Treatise on Tenures," after he had ascended the bench; a book, which Lord Coke has characterized, as the ornament of the common law, and the most perfect and absolute work that ever was written in any human science." Lineage.

The surname of METHUEN, written at different times Meffan, Methfen, Methfin, Methfyn, Methwyn, Methuen, and METHUEN, is local, and was assumed from the ba-

The next year he revisited the English court, and again in a diplomatic capacity, to negotiate several important affairs of state. Sir Robert Harvey entered, at an early period of life, into the military service of his country, and entered in March, 1809, as captain of the 53rd regiment, to Portugal, where he was shortly afterwards appointed assistant quarter-master general of the British forces. In 1810, he was nominated and assistant quarter-master general of the Portuguese army, and attached to the head quarters of the Duke of Wellington, as the organ of communication between his Grace and the Portuguese troops in the field, and remained in that situation with the army until the conclusion of the war on the Peninsula, having been present at the memorable battles of Oporto, Busaco, Salamanca, Fuentes de Oñore, Nive, Nevelles, Orthes, and Toulouse, and at the sieges of Ciudad Rodrigo, Badajoz, and St. Sebastian. In order to evince the sense which the King of Portugal entertained for the services which he had manifested on the above important occasions, his most faithful majesty was pleased to nominate Sir Robert Harvey a knight of the Portuguese military order of the Tower and Sword, and to honor him with a medal of that order, also with a medal for six campaigns, and another, on which are inscribed the names of the chief conflicts in which Colonel Harvey was engaged. The Prince Regent of Britain was likewise pleased to present him with a gold medal for his conduct at the battle of Fuentes de Oñore, and to confer on him the honor of knighthood.

* This John Meynell dying intestate, administration of his effects was granted to Stephen Kirk, of Thornton-le-street, yeoman, 16th September, 1690. The account of his funeral expenses, which is still preserved, states that two hundred and eighty-eight gallons of ale, and an equally amazing quantity of cakes and biscuits were consumed. The total cost was paid out of the effects of the deceased, by his uncle Major John Talbot, of Wood End, who, upon the demise of his nephew John Meynell, had taken possession of his estates in Little Broughton and Dromanby. About eight years subsequently to this event, in consequence of rumours being circulated that John Meynell had been murdered, Roger Meynell of North Kilvington, cousin of the deceased, filed a bill against Major John Talbot, for the recovery of the estates, which Major Talbot had taken possession of. From the pleadings in the cause, it appeared that John Meynell, being a Roman Catholic Recusant, conveyed his lands to his two protestant uncles, Roger and John Talbot, in order to avoid their seizure under the penal statutes then in severe force on account of the infamous plot of the perjured Oates; but with the implied understanding that his two uncles should only hold them in trust for him. Nevertheless upon the demise of John Meynell, Major John Talbot claimed and took possession of the estates, for the recovery of which the action was brought by the heir at law, Roger Meynell, in whose favour Sir John Trevor pronounced his decree. From the interrogatories administered to the witnesses, it appears that when suspicions of the murder arose, Cuthbert Brown, the servant of the deceased John Meynell, being apprehended and examined before the magistrates at Ripon, confessed the foul deed, and also declared at whose suggestions he had committed it. When he was however arraigned before the judges at York, he refused to plead to the indictment, and standing mute, suffered the punishment of the "Peine Forte et dure," and actually died under the horrible infliction of pain. The interrogatories tend to fix the guilt of instigation upon the uncle, Major John Talbot.

On the back of the inquisition is written by his nephew, Thomas Meynell, of North Kilvington—

* The following lines of Lord Byron attest the high reputation of Sir Martin Shee, as a painter and a poet:—

Whose magic touch can bid the canvass glow,
Or pour the easy rhyme's harmonious flow;
While honors, doubly merited, attend
The poet's rival, but the painter's friend."

SIKES, OF THE CHAUNTRY HOUSE.

SIKES, THE REV. JOSEPH, of the Chantry House, in the county of Northampton, LL.B. b. 13th November, 1781. succeeded his father in 1798.

Lineage.

This ancient family, as we are informed by Mr. Thoresby in his "Ducatus Leodien-sis," published in 1715, derives its surname from Sikes, or Sike-Dyke, near Carlisle, in Cumberland, among the gentry of which shire we find Walter de Sike returned about the commencement of the fifteenth century. One of its branches subsequently settled at Leeds, in Yorkshire, the same learned antiquary acquainting us (after describing the castle of that town besieged by King STEPHEN on his march to Scotland, and in which the ill-fated RICHARD II. lodged some time prior to his barbarous murder in Pontefract) that "where of old it stood, is now a capital messuage, and the ancient manor-house, lately with the park, &c. the estate of Richard Sikes, esq.; his grandson Richard having also it appears been Alderman of Leeds when first incorporated, and Richard, Parson of Kirkheaton, £133 in the list of compounders,"—a circumstance of singular distinction at that time. The name was of eminency in RICHARD time, when, by the "inquisitiones postem, et ad quod damnium," we learn writ of mesne was sued by Robert d' against Daniel Fletwitch, to acquit services demanded by the King, the Robert holding of the crown as mesne. It appears also, that Robert and Hen Sike were parties, or witnesses, to a d extensive transfer early in the rei ELIZABETH; a curious portrait of the (Henrie) is now, among others of litt antiquity, at the Chantry House. In the subsequent era, the close of Queen A reign, a Captain Richard Sikes was on a military mission to Ireland, and appointed governor of the town and castle of Ad

THE REV. RICHARD SIKES, fifth in descent from Richard Sikes, of Sikes temp. HENRY VI. and eldest son of the Richard Sikes, the Rector of Kirkheaton, was himself Rector of Spofforth and par-dary of York. nucle to the fifth Countess of Exeter, and left, at his decease in 1751, a son,

JOSEPH SIKES, esq. who was, for nearly half a century, one of the acting magistrates and deputy lieutenants for the counties of Nottingham and Derby, and was, as such, not less properly than liberally excused the office of sheriff for either county. He was during an extended period chairman of the Newark bench, as also of its local magistracy, and in those important capacities was in frequent correspondence at eventful epochs with several of the principal members of the then Governments. He held for some time the honorable station of one of the gentlemen of the privy chamber to King GEORGE II. and during the more meridian distinction of that celebrated military commander, the Marquess of Granby, was strongly urged by his Lordship, as well as by his own second cousin, Brownlow, ninth Earl of Exeter, (great uncle to the present Marquess) to accept, as a reward for his able and indefatigable public services, their recommendation for a baronetage, an honor which he more than once declined. His praiseworthy country gentleman, who was thrice Mayor of Newark, espoused first Anne, daughter of Robert Heron, esq. of Newark, and aunt to Sir Robert Heron, bt. but by her, who died in 1778, had no surviving issue. He wedded secondly Mary, daughter of the Rev. R. P. Hurton, Rector of Doddington, in Lincolnshire, and domestic chaplain to Lord Delaval, by whom he had

Lineage.

The ancient house derives its surname from the town of Marsham, in Norfolk, which maintained a prominent rank as early as the reign of HENRY I. There is, however, at present no regular record of the family until the time of EDWARD I.

ROBERT MARSHAM was living at Marsham, d. in 1325, and was s. by his son,

ROBERT DE MARSHAM, who bore for arms, "a mullet between a mullet and crescent, and a croslet in base." His son,

ROBERT DE MARSHAM, was the first of the family that settled at Stratton. He m. Katherine —, and was s. at his death by his son, ROBERT MARSHAM, of Stratton, living in the reign of m. Margaret —, and had four sons, JOHN, his successor; Andrew and Richard, who both left issue; and Richard, who was almoner in the priory at Norwich.

ROBERT MARSHAM, of Stratton, appears to have been the present armorial ensigns of the family. He d. in 1473, and was s. by JOHN MARSHAM, of Stratton, who d. in 1515, leaving by his wife Ellyne, who deceased the same year, three sons and a daughter, viz.

John, lord and patron of Wramlingham, who m. Margaret, daughter of Christopher Hyrne, and niece of Sir Thomas Hyrne, of Heverland, and had issue, the male line of which is now EXTINCT.

Thomas, from whom it is frequently, but erroneously, supposed the Earl of Romney descends.

Ann, m. to William Drake, gent.

Dorothy, m. to Edmund Anguish.

THOMAS MARSHAM, esq. of Stratton, attained his majority prior to the year 1508. He left at his decease, with other issue, a son and successor,

HENRY MARSHAM, esq. of Stratton, who purchased in 1544, the manor and advowson of Stratton Strawless. He wedded Rose, daughter of Thomas Aldriche, by Cicely, his wife, eldest daughter and co-heiress of Richard Bishop, esq. of Yarmouth, and dying in 1573, was s. by his son,

ROBERT MARSHAM, esq. of Stratton Strawless, who espoused Margaret, daughter of John Branthwaite, of Norwich, gent. by whom (who m. after her first husband's decease, Henry Lovell, esq. and d. in 1604) he had issue,

Lineage

family of WYKEHAM has been settled since from a very remote period; we know of a SIR RALPH WYKEham in the time of King JOHN, and ROBERT WYKEHAM, contemporary HENRY III.; but of these knights no further record is recorded. The great luminary of the family was the celebrated Bishop of

Winchester, WILLIAM OF WYKEHAM, the founder of Winchester College, and of New College, Oxford. It is still however a contested point, whether this eminent churchman was or was not a lineal descendant of the Wykehams of Swalcliffe.* They have from time immemorial claimed him as one of their race; and in later times an intermarriage has taken place between Richard

* The following facts are advanced in support of the affirmative:

1. The tradition which has ever existed in the family.
2. The distinct assertion of Nicholas Harpspell, himself a fellow of New College, and described as "omni literarum genere ornatus," that the prelate was a descendant of the Sir Ralph Wykeham mentioned above.
3. The circumstance that there were members of

This nobleman was one of the adventurers in Ireland, when that kingdom was reduced by the English Parliament, and subscribing six hundred pounds, had an allotment of land in the barony of Garry Castle, and King's County. His lordship was appointed by the parliament, one of the commissioners to carry the proposition for peace to the king at Oxford, in 1644; and was again appointed commissioner for the treaty at Uxbridge in the same year; and for the treaty at Newport in 1648. He was one of the forty-one members, who for voting, "That the concessions of his Majesty to the propositions, upon the treaty of Newport, were sufficient grounds for the House to proceed upon, for the settlement of the peace of the kingdom," were seized by the army, and committed to close imprisonment. This gentleman, one of the most eminent of our literary veterans, is a poet, essayist, and local historian, and has acquired in each department a reputation. His works have passed through several editions, and been favoured by the critics. Amongst the admirers of his genius, and they are now had the honor of ranking Sir Walter Scott, with whom he maintained an correspondence.

Mr. Polwhele has acted for thirty years as a justice of the peace and deputy of the stannaries of Cornwall.

Lineage.

his family claims Saxon origin, and its name from the manor of Polwhele, Domesday Polhel) in the county of Cornwall, a manor occupied, under EDWARD Confessor, by WINUS DE POLHAL (Pol or Polwyl), and then by ULFIUS, a vassal of the earl of Moreton; but that was a temporary possession. To make room for the earl of Moreton, the CONQUEROR had expelled the former earl, and all his adherents, from their hereditary lands. In the year 1140, the EMPRESS, then triumphant over STEPHEN, and rewarding her numerous adherents, conferred lands in Cornwall, upon her chamberlain, DRUGO DE POLWHELE, with whom the lineage of the family commences. From DRUGO, we pass to his lineal descendant, JOHN POLWHYLL, of Polwhyll, living in the time of HENRY V, who m. Alicia —, and had (with a daughter, Elizabeth, m. to Robert Tonkin, of Trevarnance) his successor at his decease, 20th of HENRY VI. JOHN POLWHELE, esq. of Polwhele, who represented the county of Cornwall in parliament, in the 4th and 5th of PHILIP AND MARY. It is worthy of remark, that of the families which had the honor of sitting in parliament for this shire, from EDWARD I. to PHILIP AND MARY, three only are now extant—Basset, Tremayne, and Polwhele. John Polwhele espoused Grace, daughter of Nicholas Lower, esq. of Trelask, and was s. by his son,

By a deed which begins thus, "Drogoni de Polwhele Camerario meo," &c.

At the time of the Norman Conquest, stood two miles east of Truro, the castle of POLWHELE, not far probably from that high ground called "The Barrows," in which sepulchral urns had been deposited, and between which and the present mansion house, fragments of gothic arches, pillars, and sculptured and inscribed stones, baptismal fonts (the work of after ages), have been discovered, and are perhaps still discover-of these castles we have no distinct account till the reign of EDWARD the Fourth. It was then, 1473, that William of Worcester came into Cornwall; and in the vicinity of Truro he notices two rival castles. The castle of Polwhele was the property of a gentleman then in the service of the King. The castle of Moresk was occupied by a vassal of the Duke of Cornwall, standing near the sea, at the extreme point of the city Manor. Polwhele, unconnected with the city, and independent of the Dukes, "in Villa Polwhele," or "on the manor," (as Worcester expresses it) had towered on a commanding site for ages. But we are told by Worcester, who passed the night in "Villa Polwhele," a guest of Otho, that the castle of Polwhele was then reduced to ruins; and it was so reduced, probably by the adherents of QUEEN MARGARET.

Polwhele's Traditions and Recollection.

Some little scattered property still remains with the Polwhele family, a memorial of their alliance with Mohun and Carminow; as also a few small tenements commemorative of their connexion with Edgcumbe, Glanville, and Godolphin. In the north side of the old church at St. Erme, there was an aged monument, (now placed in the vestry room of the new church,) charged with five shields of armorial bearings. 1st. Trencreek, quartering a chevron between three Dolphins, and impaling Vivian. 2d. Carminow, impaling Trencreek. 3d. Penwarn, impaling Trencreek. 4th. Polwhele impaling Trencreek. 5th. Mohun impaling Trencreek.

By his noble relation, Edgcombe, of Mount Edgcombe, he was presented with a sword, in 1745, which he had no sooner drawn against the rebels, than their defeat at the battle of Culloden restored it to its sheath; and, as deputy- lieutenant, &c. he was equally inclined to serve his country. Much, however, is it to be regretted, that his severe lot was, se- clusion from that society to which those abili- ties, and that disposition, might have been so highly beneficial; as the gout, to which he died an early victim, long chained him to his couch. It was there his exemplary fortitude and resignation were witnessed by many who still survive to lament how rare, at this moment, are such truly Christian virtues." The eldest son,

SIR RICHARD WILLIAMS, assumed, as already stated, at the desire of HENRY VIII. the surname of his uncle, CROMWELL, and through the influence of that once powerful relative, himself and his family obtained wealth and station. "As Vicar-General of all spiritual, the Earl of Essex had an opportunity of obliging his kinsman, then Richard Williams, alias Cromwell, esq. and others, with the sale of the lately dissolved religious houses, at sums infinitely below the very great value of most. Some of the most advantageous purchases were made by this ancestor of the Huntingdonshire Cromwells; and among others, those of the nunnery of Hinchinbrooke, and the monastery of Saltry-Judith, in that county, and all the manors situate in the same county, together with the site of the rich abbey of Ramsey. Additions were made to his possessions by the king, even after the fall of the favorite, Cromwell; so that at the period of his death, Sir Richard's estates probably equalled in value (allowing for the alteration in the value of money) those of the wealthiest peers of the present day. At a tournament held by his royal master in 1540, and described by Stowe, Richard Cromwell, esq. is named as one of the challengers; all of whom were rewarded on the occasion by the king with an annual income of an hundred marks, granted out of the dissolved Franciscan monastery, of Stamford, and with houses each to reside in. His Majesty was more particularly delighted with the gallantry of Sir Richard Cromwell (whom he had knighted on the second day of the tournament), and exclaiming, 'formerly

Of this lady nothing is very certainly known: reading to Noble, as well as Brooke, she sprang a branch of the royal family of STUART, and descent is thus deduced:

OSGEO, Thane of Locharbar, slain by MACBETH, grandfather of

WALTER, who was created LORD HIGH STEWARD Scotland. His son, ALEXANDER, second Lord Steward, had with issue,

JOHN, or JAMES, (the eldest son) who succeeded as third Lord Steward. His son,

WALTER, Lord Steward, espoused MARGERY, only daughter, by his first wife, of King ROBERT BRUCE, and had a son,

ROBERT STUART, who ascended the Scottish throne at the decease of his uncle, DAVID II. in 1370, as ROBERT II. (the first monarch of the house of STUART.)

Andrew, (the third son.)

BERNARD, (the third son) Steward, of Dundee, was father of

ALEXANDER STEUART, in the service of the King of France, and slain at Vannoile. His son JOHN STEUART, kn. settled in England, was grandfather of

THOMAS STEUART, esq. of Swaffam Market, in County of Norfolk, whose grandson,

WILLIAM STEUART, esq. of Ely, whose daughter,

MARGERY STEUART, wedded first, William Lynn, and after his decease became the wife of

ROBERT CROMWELL, and mother of the PROTECTOR.

NOTE.—This connection between the Usurper ROBERT ROYAL VICTIM, may or may not be authentic, all it shows, however, is that they descend from a common progenitor.

Robert Cromwell, who sat in Parliament for the borough of Huntingdon, died in 1617, leaving his son,

OLIVER CROMWELL, then a youth of eighteen, having been born in the parish of St. John, Huntingdon, on the 25th April, 1599. The education of this eminent man was at first entrusted to the Rev. Mr. Long, of his native town, but he was afterwards placed under the care of Doctor Beard, master of the free grammar school in the same place, whence he removed to Cambridge, and entered Sydney Sussex College, as a fellow commoner, 23rd April, 1616. Subsequently he is stated to have become a member of Lincoln's Inn, and to have given himself up to "a habit of gaming, the juice of the grape, and the charms of the fair." His career of intemperance was not however of long duration, for we find him before he had quite attained majority "returning to Huntingdon, harkening to the advice of his mother, attending divine service regularly in his parish church, renouncing his former vicious companions, and with them his extravagancies." He m. on the 20th August, 1620, ELIZABETH BOURCHIER, daughter of Sir James Bouchier, of Fitsted, in Essex, and had by that lady nine children, of whom survived infancy, II. OLIVER, b. in 1622, killed in 1648, fighting under the parliamentary banner.

III. RICHARD, who succeeded his father in the PROTECTORATE, m. Dorothy,

* RICHARD CROMWELL was born at Huntingdon, 4th October, 1626; educated at Felsted, in Essex, and admitted of the society of Lincoln's-Inn, 27th May, 1647, Mr. (afterwards secretary) Thurloe, becoming one of his securities. On his marriage he became a resident at Hursley; and was distinguished only as the complete country gentleman, devoted entirely to his wife, and to his horses, hounds, hawks, &c. In this comparatively happy retirement he lived for some time; but on his father's advancement to the Protectorate, he was made first Lord of Trade and Navigation, (11th November, 1655) and returned soon after one of the members for Hampshire. In August, 1657, he had a narrow escape from being crushed to death, by the giving way of the stairs of the Banqueting-house, when the members were going to pay their respects to his father; he had some of his bones broken by the accident, but youth and a good constitution soon enabled him to get the better of it. The Protector having resigned the chancellorship at Oxford, in 1657, the University elected Richard, his successor, and he was at the same time created a master of Arts. Shortly afterwards he was sworn a Privy Counsellor, made a colonel in the army, placed at the head of the newly constituted House of Lords, and entitled "the Right Hon. the Lord Richard,

9. Mary, m. in 1657, to Thomas Barnet, serjeant-at-law afterwards earl of Faulconberg, and died s. p. in 1712-13. This lady, Burnet describes as "a wise and worthy woman, more likely to have maintained the post of Protector than either of her brothers;
according to a saying that went of her, she maintained that those who were brethren deserved perditions better, but if those in petticoats had been in breeches, they would have

Cromwell, after a series of military triumphs, was declared Lord Protector the 19th December, 1653, and inaugurated in the 16th of the same month. It hardly one man in the whole range of wise good sword achieved an equally less if the hero in his company than this successful soldier. Fanasical superstition, and cruelty, were the predominating traits of his character. A sound hypocrite, he regarded every who approached him with suspicious eyes nearest and dearest were objects of distrust. He had no friends; and when, with the influence of his name expired, his fall was without a struggle. Cromwell died Whitehall, on the 3d September, 1658, and was publicly interred, with regal pomp, Henry VII's chapel, on the 23d November following. His remains, with those of Ireton and Bradshaw, were dug up, at the Restoration, and being pulled out of their coffins, hanged at Tyburn on the 3d January, 1660-1, until sunset; when they were taken down, beheaded, and flung into a deep hole under the gallows. When the coffin of Cromwell was broken into, a lead canister was found lying on his breast, within it a copperplate, gilt, with the arms of England, impaling those of Cromwell, on one side, and on the other the following inscription: "Oliverius Protector Regni Angliae, Scotiae, et Hiberniae, nato 4
Aprilis, anno 1599; inauguratus 19
Decembris, 1653; mortuus 3^o Septembris, anno 1658, hic situs est." The Protector's mother died four years before himself, and was buried in Westminster Abbey. He left four sons.

HENRY CROMWELL, b. 20th January, 1627-8, entered on a military life at the age of sixteen, and served under his father in Ireland, of which kingdom he was afterwards lord deputy. "In every situation," says Doctor Leland, "Henry Cromwell was penetrating, just, and generous." So great indeed, was his prudent conduct during his lieutenancy, that he brought the nation into a flourishing condition, and he behaved with such strict impartiality in his government, as to extort esteem from the most of compromising royalists. He was endowed, however, with the same moderate dignification as his brother Richard, and on the dissolution of his father, quietly resigned his command, returning to England, where he continued afterwards to reside as a country gentleman, unconcerned in the various changes of the state, and unembittered by the ills of ambition. It is even thought that he rejoiced in the restoration of the king, and he was not only included in the act of indemnity, but received some man-elder son of a serene highness, the Protector." On the death of his father, he succeeded to the sovereign power; it has been remarked as tranquilly, and with as little opposition as though he had been the descendant of a long line of princes. But according to Bishop Burnet, "he had neither genius, nor friends, nor treasure, nor army to support him," and his sway was consequently brief. His reign lasted but seven months and twenty-eight days. He resided abroad until about 1680; but where his various peregrinations led him, is not known with any degree of certainty. When he returned to his own country he appears to have assumed the name of Clark, and to have resided at Serjeant (afterwards Chief Baron) Pengelly's house, at Cheshunt; to the end of his life courting privacy and retirement, and cautiously avoiding so much as the mention of his former elevation, even to his most intimate acquaintance. He died at Cheshunt, 13th July, 1712, in the eighty-eighth year of his age, and was buried with some pomp in the church of Hursley, Hampshire, near his deceased lady. - Thomas Cromwell.

DUNLOP OF THAT ILK

DUNLOP OF THAT ILK, was of Dunlop, in the county of Ayr, in which the family of that Ilk, was in the reign of James II. and III.
 before the family of Dunlop, of that Ilk, was in the reign.

 DUNLOP OF THAT ILK.

DUNLOP OF THAT ILK, was succeeded to the estate which he held in his time by the family of Dunlop, of that Ilk, in the reign of James II.

Genealogy

Of the establishment of the family of Dunlop, of that Ilk, we have no authentic accounts. The first is in the reign of Alexander III. when,

Dom. GILBERTUS DE DUNLOP appears as one of those who sat on an inquest to settle a dispute between Dom. Godfredus de Ross and the borough of Irvine, anno 1290. In 1296.

NIEL FITZ ROBERT DE DUNLOP signed the Ragman's Roll. In 1351.

JAMES DUNLOP was in possession of Dunlop as appears from an old valuation of the county of Ayr. He was s. by JOHN DE DUNLOP, who had a charter from Hugh de Blair, dated 1407.

ALEXANDER DUNLOP, mentioned by Rymer, as Alexander Dunlop, of that Ilk, in the reign of JAMES I. and in the early part of JAMES II. appears to have been succeeded by

CONSTANTYNE DUNLOP, as there is a charter in the Dumbarton Rolls, from Constantyne Dunlop, of that Ilk, to his son,

ALEXANDER DUNLOP, of the house of Dunlop, of that Ilk, who was the father of CONSTANTYNE DUNLOP, of the house of CONSTANTYNE DUNLOP, who Dunlop, of that Ilk, is named 1407, by his son.

CONSTANTYNE DUNLOP, of the was appointed by parliament, among other lords, as they were called the twelve lords, and in the crown. He is also named member of an inquest to the the the, son of LINDSAY, Countess of Ayr, in 1506, dealing with a James, who James Stuart, also great-grandson of King Robert, and successor.

JAMES DUNLOP, of that Ilk, who was s. by his son, in 1507. I was s. in 1502, Martin Dunlop, the son, ALEXANDER, and a daughter, wedded Hugh Maxwell, of Ayr, in 1500, and was s. by his

ALEXANDER DUNLOP, of the wedded Ellen Cunningham, of Glenarm, and had five sons, James, Constantyne, Robert, and the eldest of whom.

JAMES DUNLOP, of that Ilk, succeeded at his decease in 1549. He married Isabel, daughter of Hamilton, of Orbieston, and had James and Allan. He was s. at by the elder.

JAMES DUNLOP, esq. of that Ilk, died in 1574. Jean, daughter of Cambermathan, descended from Somerville, son of John, third of Somerville, and had issue,

JAMES, his heir.

John, who purchased the Garnkirk.

Thomas, who m. Grizell.

Cochrane, of that Ilk, and from this alliance are descended the Dunlops of Househill.

Robert, to whom his father left the lands of Bloak.

The laird of Dunlop died in 1616, and was by his son,

JAMES DUNLOP, esq. of that Ilk. This gentleman m. in 1614, Margaret, relict of Sir Campbell, bishop of Lismore, or Arle, and daughter of Gavin Hamilton, bishop of Galloway, son of John Hamilton, of Hieston, slain at the battle of Langside.

After he had a son JAMES, who eventually succeeded. Resisting the government of CHARLES I. in its attempt to introduce episcopacy into Scotland, the laird of Dunlop, for the purpose of security executed a deed giving over his estate to his brother, John Garnkirk; this deed was acted on in 1633, when his brother took possession, and five years after, made a resignation to his nephew,

JAMES DUNLOP, esq. of that Ilk, who espoused Elizabeth, daughter of Alexander Dinghame, esq. of Corsehill, by Mary, daughter of Sir Patrick Houstoun, of that name and had issue,

ALEXANDER, his heir.

John, of whom nothing is known.

Jean, m. in 1674, to William Ralston, esq. of Ralston.

Marion, m. to David Montgomery, esq. of Lainshaw.

During the civil wars Dunlop appears to have acted a prominent part. He was subsequently a warm supporter of the Presbyterians, and was obliged, in consequence, to make over a considerable portion of his estates to Lord Dundonald. From 1665 to 1677, he suffered imprisonment, but was released in the latter year under a bond of 600 marks, notwithstanding which, he remained in prison, within a few months only, joining in the rising of the Pentland Hills. He died at his demise, by his elder son, ALEXANDER DUNLOP, esq. who does not appear ever to have obtained possession of the barony of Dunlop, which his father had made over to Lord Dundonald. This laird was a zealous supporter of the cause of episcopacy and the covenant. Upon suspicion being concerned in the rising of Bothwell in 1666, he was arrested on the 30th July, 1666, compelled to surrender a portion of his estates, and to execute a bond for 1000 to appear in the November following.

He was indicted anew in April, 1684, when he made over to his son, John, the lands which had been settled upon him on his marriage. He emigrated soon after to America, and was appointed in 1685, sheriff of South Carolina. He married in 1667, Anne, daughter and heiress of Sir John Wren, of Fordal, by Mary Scott, daughter and co-heiress of Sir John Scott, of Rossie, quarter master general to the army in the early part of CHARLES the First's reign. He left a son and heir,

JOHN DUNLOP, esq. who obtained the barony of Peacock Bank and other farms, from his father in 1684: and in the following year the Earl of Dundonald resigned to him the possessions which he had acquired from his grandfather. In 1687, the laird of Dunlop, by an adjudication in his favour, recovered all his grandfather's estates, though heavily burdened by expenses and fines. He does not appear ever to have been married, and dying in 1706, was s. by his brother, FRANCIS DUNLOP, esq. of that Ilk. This gentleman was one of those who were appointed March 26, 1707, to see the regalia of Scotland, built up in the crown-room in the castle of Edinburgh, as appears from the minute of proceedings, taken at the time, and left amongst his papers. In 1715, he took an active part against the Chevalier, and was lieutenant-colonel, under the Earl of Kilmarnock, of a regiment of Fencible cavalry then raised. Colonel Dunlop espoused first, in 1709, Susan, only daughter and heiress of John Leckie, esq. of Newlands, by whom he had three sons and one daughter, viz.

JOHN, his heir.

Hugh, who died young.

Alexander, Major of the Enniskillen dragoons.

Antonia, m. to Sir Thomas Wallace, bt. of Craigie.

The laird of Dunlop wedded, secondly, a daughter of Sir — Kinloch, of Gilmourton, by whom he had two daughters, Frances, d. unm. and Magdalene, m. to Robert Dunlop, esq. He died in 1748, and was s. by his son,

JOHN DUNLOP, esq. of that Ilk, who was deputed in 1745 by the gentleman of Ayrshire, together with Sir Thomas Wallace, of Craigie, to offer the assistance of the county to the Duke of Cumberland. He wedded Frances-Anne, last surviving child of Sir Thomas Wallace, of Craigie, by Eleanor, his wife, daughter and heiress of Agnew, of Lochryan, by whom he had six sons and six daughters, viz.

Francis, who d. young.

THOMAS, who s. his maternal grandfather, and assumed the surname and arms of WALLACE. He espoused Eglinton, daughter of Sir William Maxwell, bt.

ANDREW, heir to his father.

JAMES.

John, who m. his cousin, Magdalene, daughter of Robert Dunlop, esq. and had issue.

Anthony, who m. Ann, daughter of Alex. Cunningham, esq. younger brother of Sir Wm. Cunningham, lt. of Robertland.

Eleanor, m. to Monsieur Pirochon.

Henrietta, died young.

Susan, m. to Monsieur Henry.

Frances, m. to Robert Vans-Agnew, esq. of Barnbarroch. (See that family).

Rachel, m. to Robert Glasgow, esq. Keith.

Mr. Dunlop d. in 1784, and was s. by his second surviving son,

ANDREW DUNLOP, esq. of that ilk. This gentleman entering into the military service of his country, served in the first American war, and attained the rank of major. He afterwards raised a regiment of horse called the Ayrshire fencible cavalry, which he commanded until its reduction in 1800. Sometime, subsequently, he was sent to the West Indies, and dying unmarried, in 1804, a brigadier-general, in command of the troops in the island of Antigua, he was s. by his brother,

JAMES DUNLOP, esq. of that ilk, who, adopting, like his predecessor, the profession of arms, served likewise in the American war. In 1787, he proceeded to India, as captain of the 77th regiment, where he remained thirteen years, and commanded one of the assaulting columns at the storming of Seringapatam, when he was severely wounded. He returned soon after to England, and was employed at home. In 1810, having attained the rank of major, he was appointed to the command of a gade in the fifth division of Lord Viscount's army, and he remained at the that division during the campaign. In 1812, General Dunlop was elected member for the stewartry of Kirkcubbin. His second husband of Dervorgill,* (the dau. of Allan, Lord of Galloway, by Margaret, eldest daughter of David, Earl of Huntingdon, third son of King DAVID I. of Scotland,) the widow of Sir John Baliol, and mother of JOHN BALIOL, who claimed and obtained the Crown of Scotland. He sate in the parliament of Brigham, in 1290, and the next year swore fealty at Berwick to EDWARD I. In 1298 he defended the Castle of Dirleton against the famous Anthony Beke, Bishop of Durham. In 1304 he was a principal party to the agreement between EDWARD of England, and John Comyn, and according to Ryley's Placeta, John Comyn, Edmund Comyn, John de Graham, and John de Vaux, sealed this agreement at Strathord, the 9th February, 33 EDWARD I. The sincerity of this submission seems to have been more than doubtful, for in 1306, mention is made of him as a friend of ROBERT BRUCE. To this John succeeded

THOMAS DE VAUX, who is mentioned by Guthrie, and Brady as being one of the sixty-five Earls and Lords who led the Scotch army at the battle of Halidon Hill, 19th July, 1333. He was slain in 1346 at Nevil's Cross, where also his successor,

WILLIAM VAUX, was taken prisoner. After being detained for some time in England, in captivity, he returned to Scotland, and his name appears in many of the transactions of that period, especially as a party to the ransom of King DAVID II. He died in 1364, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

WILLIAM VAUX, who d. in 1392, and was succeeded by two co-heiresses; but whether they were his own daughters or those of his elder brother, Thomas, who had been killed at the siege of Berwick, in 1355, is uncertain. The elder wedded Sir John Halyburton,† and the second, Sir Patrick Hepburn, younger, of Hailes, ancestor to

* This second marriage of the granddaughter of the Earl of Huntingdon, is not mentioned by Wyntoun or others, but the evidence of it is to be found in the Dryburgh Chart, (Nos. 126, 127, 128, 129,) where is given a Charter by Alexander de Baliol of the wood of Gladdiswood, "qui quondam fuit cum Domni. Johannis de Wallibus, et Dna, Dervorgill Sponse sue"

the well known Earl of Bothwell, husband to Queen Mary.

In his account of the Dirleton family, Chalmers, (Caledonia, vol. ii. p. 438.) omits several generations, and in vol. iii. page 306, talking of Wigtonshire, he makes a curious mistake, for he considers the Barnbarroch, and the Shewan families as distinct, whereas they are the same. On the same page however he justly observes, "the name has been changed from Vans to Vaux, a change peculiar to this shire," and although he does not dispute the Barnbarroch branch being descended from a younger son of the Dirleton family, he thinks Alex. Vaux, Bishop of Galloway in 1426, was the first of his name in Wigtonshire.

Nisbet, vol. ii. App. p. 250, says positively, that the Barnbarroch branch are the only remaining heirs male of the Dirleton family, that they descend from a younger son, and although they have no charter older than 1451, yet "that the Vases of this house have subsisted long before that," Nisbet also says, that, "now since they represent the principal family, by the rules and maxims, that are laid down in Heraldry, they may strike out the mollet, the brotherly difference, and wear and carry the Bend Simple, as they have done for some centuries." Tradition says the same, and that the first Vaux in Wigtonshire married an heiress there; it is said a de Morville.

In "l'Histoire des Malheures de la France sous le Roi Jean," publié à Paris chez Barde, 1611, vol. ii. p. 103, it is stated, talking of the battle of Poitiers, (A. D. 1356.) and of the Scots of note who fell there, "et André Vaux de Gallovey, le frere d'armes du Seigneur Archibald."—Douglas. Barnes, Hollingshed, Abercrombie, and others, mention SIR ANDREW VAUX to have been killed at the battle of Poitiers; and this Andrew is believed to have been the younger brother of Willielmus of Dirleton, to have settled in Galloway, and to have been succeeded by another Sir Andrew whose name appears in the settlement of the Scot's Crown, made at Scone, 4th April, 1373, although in Robertson's records the name is erroneously given, Andreas de Valonius. His younger son was Alexander, Bishop of Galloway from 1426 to 1451, and he was s. by his eldest,

JOHN VANS, who was sent, in 1437, together with Alexander Do^{mus} de Gordon, Alexander Do^{mus} de Montgomery, and Johannis Methven, clericus, as ambassadors from JAMES II. of Scotland, to HENRY VI. of England; and along with these persons concluded a truce the following year. Retiring into private life, during the protectorate, he devoted himself to the production of his celebrated "Discourse of the Commonwealth of Oceana," which, after the restoration of CROMWELL was seized in the press, and again through the medium of Mrs. Ussher, Usurper's favorite child, at whose house he was dedicated to her father, on its publication.

COLONEL ROBINSON, an active and distinguished partizan of CHARLES I. was lineally descended from Nildass Robinson, bishop of Bangor, and possessor of Monahan, in Mona, the patrimony of the Robinsons. This gallant officer commanded a company at the battle of Marston, and was afterwards slain at the ten Heath. He subsequently escaped the execution of the Commonwealth, and flying from Guersfeld in the disguise of a labourer, gained the coast of France, and recovered his estates at the Restoration.  Laura-Elizabeth.
 Anne-Clementina.

This gentleman, who is a justice of the peace, and deputy lieutenant for the counties of Ayr and Renfrew, s. to the estates upon the demise of his father, in 1831.

Lineage.

THE MURES of Caldwell are immediately descended from SIR REGINALD MORE or MUR, of Abercorn and Cowdams, who appears to have been chamberlain of Scotland as early as 1329, the first year of the reign of David II. The name occurs, again at various periods, More, Mure, Moore, &c.; and from the correspondence of the armorial bearings, seems to be the same originally as that of the MOORES of More Place, in Kent, now represented by the Irish Moores, Marquises of Drogheda.

The arms of "Muir of Caldwell," "Muir of Rowallan," being then the chief houses of the name in Scotland, exhibited on page 46 of the Scottish History, emblazoned by Sir David Lindsay, Lord Lyon, about the year 1540. The arms of Caldwell present the plain shield of the Mores, "three mullets on a bend;" on the shield of Rowallan are quartered wheat-sheaves of the Comyns.

The most ancient of the name on record is the Mores of Polkelly, near Kilmarnock, in Ayrshire: one of whom, David de More, appears as witness to a charter of Alexander I. The direct male line of Polkelly becoming extinct, the estate passed, by marriage of a female, to the Mores of Rowallan, one of the family, who had acquired the neighbouring estate of Rowallan, from the Comyns, its ancient lords. Crawford, the able genealogist, supposes Sir Reginald More, chamberlain to have been a brother of Adam More, of Rowallan, whose daughter Elizabeth, was QUEEN Consort of Ro-

BERT II. the first of the STUART KINGS; but of this there is no evidence and it appears as likely that he sprang directly from the original stock of Polkelly, and may be the same Reginald who, together with a Gilchrist More, signs the Ragman Roll in 1296, and whom Nisbet takes to be the old Polkelly Mores, "the root of the Mores, an antienter family than the Rowallans."

The paternal inheritance of Sir Reginald seems to have been Cowdams, in Ayrshire, not far from the original seat of the family. These lands belonged to him previously to 1328, as shewn by an agreement concerning them between him and the monks of Paisley, dated in that year. They have ever since continued in the family, Mr. Mure, of Caldwell, being still their feudal superior. They are next noticed in a charter of the Earl of Strathern, afterwards ROBERT II., dated 1367, confirming the previous deed of 1328. Johannes Mure, jun. de Cowdams, appears in 1446 as one of the commissioners for fixing the boundaries of the Burgh of Prestwick, and the papers relative thereto, now preserved at Caldwell, extend as far back as 1475.

Sir Reginald acquired his extensive estates of Abercorn, &c. in the Lothians and Stirlingshire, by marriage with one of the co-heiresses of Sir John Graham, of Eskdale and Abercorn; another of whom wedded Walter Steward, of Scotland; and a third, Sir William Douglas, "the Knight of Liddesdale." He obtained also, by grant from the crown, on the forfeiture of Sir Andrew Murray in 1332, the lands of Tillybardine. These were afterwards restored for a pecuniary consideration, by his son, Sir William More, to Sir William Murray, ancestor of the present Duke of Athol, as appears from an indenture dated 1341. Sir Reginald adhered steadily to the patriotic cause during the English wars in DAVID the Second's reign, and was one of the commissioners appointed, in 1340, to treat with the Lords Percy, Moubray, and Nevil, of a truce between the two nations. He died soon after, leaving two sons and a daughter, viz.

- I. WILLIAM, who succeeded to Abercorn. He was one of the twelve nobles, who, in the parliament of 1357, in the name of the whole estates of Scotland, appointed commissioners to treat with England for the release of King DAVID II. On his death without male issue, his lands of Abercorn, Erth, Torwood, the Dene near Edinburgh, &c. passed with his daughter, CHRISTIAN, to Sir John Lindsay, of Byres, ancestor of the Earl of Craufurd.
- II. GILCHRIST, who continued the line of the family.
- III. Alicia, m. first, to Sir William de Herch (or Herries); and secondly, to her cousin, Sir John Steward, of Ralston, son of Walter Steward of Scotland, by Isabel Graham. For this marriage there exists two dispensations from Benedict XII. dated Avignon, the one, 13th July, 1340; the other, 10th May, 1341.

Sir Reginald's elder son dying without male issue, the younger,

GILCHRIST MORE, became the male representative of the house of Abercorn. To him descended the property of Cowdams.—The estates of Caldwell, in the shires of Ayr and Renfrew, he is supposed to have acquired by marriage with the heiress of Caldwell of that ilk, then a family of some note, having given a chancellor to Scotland in 1349. Crawford is of opinion that at this time the estates of Rowallan and Polkelly also came to the Abercorn line by a second marriage of Gilchrist with the heir-female of Rowallan, these, he adds, were afterwards settled on the younger children, issue of this marriage, whence the subsequent Mures, of Rowallan and Polkelly, two distinct families. Rowallan passed, about a century ago, by an heir-female, to the Campbells of Loudoun, now represented by the Marchioness Dowager of Hastings, Countess of Loudoun, in her own right. The male line of Polkelly is also extinct. To Caldwell and Cowdams succeeded

JOHN MORE, the first who is denominated "Caldwell," as appears from a mission, granted Oct. 29, 1409, to the young Duke of Albany, to him, More, of Polkelly, (supposed to be brother) and Robert Boyd, of Glasgow, for the slaughter of Mark Neil, of Rympie. He was s. by

JOHN MORE, Lord of Caldwell, witness along with George Campbell of Loudoun, Robert More, of Rowallan, and others, to a charter, dated Jan. 1411. The circumstance of his name being introduced in the subscription, he is styled Lord of Caldwell, while the others are simply, Robert More, of Rowallan, &c. deduced by Crawford and others to be that the Mores, of Caldwell were considered chief of the name. The ancestor of Caldwell was

JOHN MORE, whose charter with great seal, bears date, 1476. By his wife, he left a son and a daughter,

ADAM (Sir), his heir.

Marjory, m. to John, Lord of Hawkhead, ancestor of the Earl of Glasgow. Her effigy is recumbent by the side of her husband, under an arched canopy, the choir of the church of Caldwell, the three mullets of Caldwell visible on the tomb with the inscription: "Hic jacet Johannis quondam dominus de Hawkhead Marjorie uxor sua, orate pro eis."

He d. before 1492, and was s. by

SIR ADAM MORE, of Caldwell, by JAMES IV. and designated in writs, Nobilis vir Adamus More, of Caldwell, miles. "He was," says Crawford, a gallant stout man, having diverse lands of his neighbours, which were managed with great fierceness, and much bloodshed. He wedded Elizabeth, daughter of James Sempill, of Eliestoun, and John, first Lord Sempill, by whom he had four sons and two daughters, viz.

from a deed, by Matthew, Earl of Lennox and Darnly, dated January 2, 1500, in favour of Constantine, Mure, as from other documents, it is evident that the estate of Glanderstoun, in Renfrewshire, was acquired about this time from the Lennoxes. Sir Adam d. about 1513, from which date it is presumed, that he fell at the battle of Loddon, fought in that year. He was s. by his second, but eldest surviving son, JOHN MURE, of Caldwell, who, on the 9th of February, 1515, at the head of his followers, took, by assault, "the castle and place" of the Archbishop of Glasgow, situated near the city, battering the walls in reach "with artillery," and carrying off rich booty. Agnes, m. to Patrick Montgomerie, of Giffen.

Elizabeth, m. to Ralstoun, of that Ilk.

The eldest son,

JOHN MURE, of Caldwell, succeeded his father, in 1539. He m. first, the Lady Isabel Montgomerie, daughter of Hugh, first Earl of Eglinton, and secondly, Christian, daughter of Ninian, Lord Ross, of Hawkhead, a papal dispensation for which match, within the prohibited degree, was obtained from the see of Glasgow, in 1538. The Laird of Caldwell had (with younger children) two sons,

i. JOHN (Sir), his heir.

ii. William, who received the lands, and founded the house of Glanderstoun, long a distinct Renfrewshire family, of the first respectability.—He m. Elizabeth, daughter of Hamilton, of Raploch, aunt to Gavin Hamilton, commendator of Kilwinning, and confidential minister of MARY GUISE, Queen Regent of Scotland, and had issue,

Jean, m. to George Maxwell, of Aldhouse, ancestor of the present houses of Maxwell, of Pollock, and Maxwell, of Springkell, barts. the latter of which descends from Jean Mure.

The son and heir,

WILLIAM MURE, of Glanderstoun, espoused Jean, daughter of the Rev. Hans Hamilton, vicar of Dunlop, of the Raploch family, and sister of James, Earl of Clanbrassil, by whom he left, at his decease, in 1640, (with a dau. Janet, who m. the Rev. John Carstairs, and was mother of the distinguished patriot, WILLIAM CARSTAIRS*) a son and successor,

WILLIAM MURE, of Glanderstoun, who wedded EUPHEMIA MURE, of Caldwell, and had a son, WILLIAM, who inherited Glanderstoun in 1658, and CALDWELL, on failure of the elder branch.

The Laird of Caldwell, together with his kinsmen and dependants, took part with the Earl of Glencairn, at the "Field of the Muir of Glasgow;" a bloody action fought between the partizans of the Earls of Lennox and Glencairn, headed by the latter chieftain, against the Earl of Arran, Regent of Scotland, in 1543. This appears from a remission under the privy seal, granted in 1553, to John Mure, of Caldwell, Archibald Mure, his brother, designed "in Hill, of Beith," and James Mure, of Boldair, for their participation in that affair. John Mure d. about 1554, when

SIR JOHN MURE succeeded to Caldwell. He received the honor of knighthood from King JAMES V. and marrying Janet Kennedy, of Bargeny, had three sons, ROBERT, William, and James. He was slain on the 10th September, 1570, by the Cunninghames of Aikett and Raeburne, of that Ilk, the same who were afterwards principals in

* This eminent and patriotic person, was Scottish secretary to King WILLIAM III. and chief adviser of that monarch in his settlement of the affairs of Scotland at the Revolution. After having been imprisoned during 1694, in Dumbarton and Stirling Castles, and cruelly tortured with thumb-screws and other barbarous instruments, on a charge of being concerned in the conspiracy, for which Russell and Sydney suffered, he was set at large and allowed to travel abroad in 1685. A journal of his tour in the Netherlands, in that and the following year, with other interesting documents, in his hand-writing, are now among the family papers at Caldwell.

SIR ROBERT MURE, of Caldwell. This gentleman was in the confidence of JAMES VI. by whom he was knighted, and to whom he was related through the Lennoxes. A number of original letters addressed to him by that monarch, are still preserved at Caldwell, some of them curious, as illustrating the manners of the times.* He m. first, Elizabeth, daughter of Kincaid, of that ilk, by whom he had two sons, by whom he left a daughter, m. to Sir William Hamilton, bart. of Preston. About 1610, the lands of Thornton, near Kilmarnock, long in possession of the family, were alienated to a cadet, founder of the house of Mure, of Thornton, the male line of which becoming extinct in 1701, in the person of Sir Archibald Mure, Lord Provost, of Edinburgh, the estate passed by his heir female to John Cunninghame, of Caddel, and is now held by Colonel Cunninghame, of Thornton, the superiority being still with Caldwell. In the year 1611, occurred the trial of the ferocious LAIRD OF AUCHENDEIRN, chief of an ancient branch of the Mures, in Carrick, whose crimes have been immortalized by the pen of Sir Walter Scott. He was, according to the fashion of the time, supported in his adversity by those of the name, throughout the west of Scotland; and when summoned to Edinburgh by the council, was escorted by the Lairds of Rowallan, Caldwell, Glanderstoun, and other gentlemen of rank connected with them. They abandoned him afterwards, however, when upon a fuller investigation, the infamy of his character was displayed in its true colours. The Laird of Caldwell when charged for having knowingly harboured and concealed an accomplice, or an important witness for the prosecutor pleaded that he could not be expected to do otherwise, in the case of a clansman, and this excuse was deemed sufficient. Sir Robert was s. at his decease by his grandson,

WILLIAM, of whom presently, as representative of the family,

Robert Mure, it seems, fell in battle about 1640: for in August, 1641, the marriage of the Laird of Caldwell, "whose father died in his country's service," is ordered by the parliament to be passed gratis. Hence it would appear that he was one of the few Scotchmen who perished in the only military transaction of that period, the first revolutionary campaign against CHARLES I. which ended in the rout of the English army at Newburn. He was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT MURE, of Caldwell, who d. in 1644, and was s. by his younger brother,

The mansion house at Coham having been destroyed by fire in the reign of Queen ANNE, and the family records lost in the conflagration, we have now traditional authority alone for the early abode of the Cohams on their patrimonial estate, but that establishes the fact beyond doubt, and proves the existence there since the CONQUEST. In the registers of the parish which commence in 1520, we find the name of

STEPHEN COHAM, of Coham, who was succeeded by his son,

STEPHEN COHAM, of Coham, father of LEWIS COHAM, of Coham, esq. who was at the beginning of the seventeenth century. To this gentleman succeeded his son,

The family of HOLLAND, one of the most ancient and illustrious in England, derived its descent from ROBERT DE HOLLAND, a gallant soldier and Scottish warrior of EDWARD I. who obtained territorial grants from the crown, and was elected to parliament as a BARON, in the 8th year of EDWARD II. His lordship joining the insurrection of Thomas, Earl of Lancaster, suffered execution in 1328. He had wedded (as stated in the text) Maude, one of the daughters and co-heiress of Alan, Lord Zouch, by whom he had with him several sons,

ROBERT DE HOLLAND, who married Elinor, daughter and heir of Sir Andrew de Metsted, of Upcott Avenel, in the county of Devon, by his wife, Maude, of Bathie, of Weare, and thus acquired that estate; where this branch of the Holland family have ever since resided. This John Holland having made an avowry in certain lands, a question was pleaded against him that the lands, in question, were seized unto the king's use because that Robert de Holland, father of the late John, did aid and assist Thomas, Earl of Lancaster, against King EDWARD II. (lib. 3rd of the 13th. folio 10th.) He was s. by his son, ROBERT HOLLAND, of Upcott Avenel, living in the reign of EDWARD III. who espoused Lucy, daughter and heiress of John de Holsworthy; and from thence lineally sprang, through a long line of legitimate progenitors,

About this time, COHAM, as before mentioned, was destroyed by fire, and the family, in consequence, removed to their seat at Upcott Avenel. By the heiress of Holland, Mr. Coham had two sons,

BYRNE, OF CABINTEELY.

BYRNE, CLARINDA-MARY, of Cabinteely, in the county of Dub
Byrne inherited the estates at the decease of her sister in 1810.

Lineage.

From the earliest era of Irish History, to the invasion of CROMWELL, the family of O'Broin, O'Byrne or O' Birne, was amongst the most powerful and distinguished in the province of Leinster. It traces its descent from Hermon, the youngest son of Milesius, through Ugane More and Cathire More, two of the most renowned warriors that swayed the Irish sceptre.

The O'Byrnes derive their name from BROIN or BRAN, one of the Kings of Leinster, who defeated the Mononians in a pitched battle, and redeemed Leinster from a tax, called Borne or Boiromhe. Many other progenitors of the O'Byrnes, being likewise Kings of Leinster, distinguished themselves in the wars concerning this tax and against the common enemy, the Dane. Of the English, the O'Byrnes were at once the most constant and formidable enemies. Located upon their mountain heights in the wild and singularly beautiful country, which owned their sway, they could watch their opportunity, and at the favourable moment pounce down upon their victims, like the eagle on his prey. Thus on Easter Monday, in the year 1209, they fell upon an immense crowd of Dublin citizens who were celebrating a rural fete, at a place called Cullens Wood, and with the aid of the O'Tooles, another potent tribe seated in their immediate neighbourhood, left three hundred dead upon the spot. Henceforward over a space of several centuries we find the O'Byrnes never relaxing in their resistance and hostility to the English settlers. In 1395 Roger Mortim March, then Lord Deputy of Ir O'Byrne's country waste, and s Castle of Wicklow. In 1414 Jo Lord Furnival, marched an arm the territories of the O'Byrnes, a ous and frequent were the forces sequent Viceroys found it ne oppose to these bold and restless When the civil contentions in 1 the first time assumed a religious the House of O'Byrne acted a m ment part, and in the confederacy formed in defence of the ancient leaders were the Earl of Desmo Mac Hugh O'Byrne, chief of th James Eustace, Viscount Balting one of the Fitzgeralds. This it rendered futile all the victories of MONDS, O'Neills, and O'Byrnes.

In 1588, when O'Neill, earl of raised his standard, he was join principal catholic chiefs, and am rest, by the head of the O'Byrn daring sept, in the long and s contests that ensued, bore a most ous part.

On the accession of JAMES to th in 1603, all Ireland, for the first t mitted to the English rule. 1

thern chiefs, in common with the rest of ancient Irish nobility, did homage; by passing over to England to render service in person. They were well served, but within a brief period, treaty accomplished against them, that which could never effect. Hugh O'Neill, Donnell, and many others were compelled to leave Ireland, as banished men; and the broad and fertile lands were conferred on mercantile companies and ignoble mechanics. The O'Byrnes, amongst the most powerful, suffered severely. All that remained of them was afterwards seized upon by Cromwell, during his devastating progress through their country in 1646, and the history of the O'Byrnes, as chiefs of numerous powerful tribes, is no longer interwoven in the annals of their country.

ancient family deduces its descent from FITZARDINGE, a younger son of one of the Kings of Denmark, who came over to England with WILLIAM the Conqueror, and fought at the battle of Hastings. His son,

ROBERT FITZARDINGE, obtained for his castle the CASTLE OF BERKELEY, wrested from Roger de Berkeley-Dursley, a partisan of STEPHEN, and became one of the feudal barons of the reign of King Henry II. He married Eva, niece of William the Conqueror, and founded the monastery of St. Augustine, at Bristol, in the year 1140, and was buried there in 1170. He was s. by his eldest son, ROBERT DE BERKELEY, who strengthened the defences of Berkeley Castle, by marrying Alice, the instigation of HENRY II. This baron m. Margaret, daughter of Roger Mortimer, Earl of March, and from him we pass to his descendant, of the judges of the Court of King's Bench. "As Sir Robert Berkeley," says "lived in an age when the government had a strong tendency to despotism, when the prerogative had become upon almost every emergency, and the judges held their places during the pleasure of the king, he, with eleven of his brethren, gave his opinion for ship-money; he may judge from the tenor of his private life as well as on the best and most honest motives. For this decision he was impeached of high treason, and ordered to pay a fine of £20,000, to be deprived of his office of judge, and rendered incapable of holding any place, or receiving any honor in the state or commonwealth: he was ordered to be imprisoned in the Tower at the pleasure of the House of Lords. Robert Berkeley afterwards plundered the parliament forces; and a little before the battle of Worcester, the Scotch Parliament, though engaged in the king's service, retaining their ancient animosity, seized his house at Spetchley. He was thus obliged to convert the stables into a dwelling, where he resided with dignity on the ruins of his fortune.* A splendid monument

"I rank this reverend judge next to the great because as a judge he weareth often the crown, and in parliament is to assist in the house of commons, from one of the antientest of which (viz. the Lord Berkeley) he is descended. James Lord Berkeley had by the Lady last of the two co-heirs of Thomas Mowbray, first Duke of Norfolk, Thomas Berkeley his fourth son, who had issue Richard Berkeley, his third son, who sometime lived, and had a small freehold at Spetchley, in Gloucestershire) whose fourth son was Berkeley, was father of Rowland Berkeley, of the judge, which said Rowland being the son of the said William, though extracted from nobility, yet seemed in the world not to be for a while, until by God's blessing, and his industry, he became eminent in wealth and nobility. My warrant for this pedigree I received from the best authority which England in matters of honor affordeth.

"Now before I attende the judge to his death, I will accompanie his father to his death: whomme if I should comment best as was my ancient friend, and left me not (as the world forsooke me) in my stormy troubles, lastly, not only refused to make a prey of me, being offered him, and lying most contrary to his interest, but also instantly warned me to prevent my ruine, it might be thought that, blinded by affection, I were partial. Passing, therefore, my private particulars, to matters more public, he was a man of very good witt, which he chiefly gained out of stolen hours, and spared from his continual business in his

 the degree of Doctor of Divinity by both self immediately to the study of the English language, and soon attained therein an extraordinary degree of perfection. In 1690, he was appointed treasurer of the church of Salisbury, and he produced works of so much utility, that he acquired within a very short time as high a reputation here, as he had previously enjoyed in his native country. He was consulted by the most eminent scholars on the most abstruse subjects, and his genius was acknowledged by those whom the world esteemed not only the ablest but the most impartial judges. His sermons mark the orator—his works the scholar—and his entire life, zeal for the Protestant reli-

GURNEY, OF KESWICK.

GURNEY, HUDSON, esq. of Keswick, in the county of Norfolk, fellow of the Royal Society, and vice-president of the Antiquarian Society, b. 19th January m. in 1809, Margaret, daughter of the late Robert Barday, esq. of Wrydoneshire, M.P. for that county, by Sarah, daughter of James Allardice, of Ayr, and heiress of Wie to the Earls of Airth and Menteith. Mr. Gurney was member of parliament for Shaftesbury, in 1812, and for Newtown, Hants, and in six successive parliaments.

Lineage.

The name of GURNEY or GOURNAY is derived from the town of Gournay in Normandy. HUGH DE GOURNAY, Lord of Gournay and the adjacent territory of Le Brai, was one of the Norman Barons who commanded at the Battle of Mortimer against the French in 1054. He came over to England with DUKE WILLIAM, and was present at the Battle of Hastings. HUGH, his son, held manors in Essex at the survey, and GERARD DE GOURNAY, son of the latter, married Editha, daughter of William de Warren, first Earl of Warren, by GUNDRÉD,* daughter of the CONQUEROR, and possessed great estates in Norfolk. These Norman Barons of Gournay deduced their lineage from EUDES, a follower of Rollo, to whom that chieftain assigned the fortress of Gournay, when he divided Neustria among his dependants; they continued to retain these Norman fiefs until the reign of JOHN, when they were seized by PHILIP-AUGUSTUS; and another branch of Gournay then in possession, retired to England, and died in 1223, leaving HUGH, whose only daughter, JANE GOURNAY, espoused William, Lord of Dolph, of Wirmegay, in Norfolk; the elder male line of the Norman Gournays became extinct.†

Two younger branches of the family continued, however, to exist after the Conquest. The one which was the most numerous was seated at Barew-Gu, near Englishcombe, in Somersetshire, at the survey, and retaining the name of Gournay, through two female heiresses added to their territory the estates of Harpetrees and other considerable manors, and became powerful feudal barons in the West of England. The most illustrious member of this family of the Gournays was Sir Thomas de Gournay, one of the favorites of EDWARD II. and his son, Andrew de Gournay, frequently mentioned in Froissart, who died in 1406, at the age of ninety-six, after having fought in all the great battles of EDWARD III. the Black Prince. This gallant knight appears to have been the last male of the Somersetshire Gurneys.‡

The other younger branch of the Gurneys held certain manors in Somersetshire as mesne lords under the Barons the capital tenants, by whom they subenfeoffed. Of this line was

WILLIAM DE GOURNAY, knt. lord of manor of Runhall, in Norfolk, temp. RY II. and of Swathings in Hardingham Hingham, whose son,

MATTHEW DE GOURNAY, obtained from Heline Plantagenet, Earl of Warren, nobleman's kinswoman, Rose de Burnor de Warren, in marriage, and with the manor of Harpley came to the folk Gurneys. The grandson of this age,

JOHN DE GURNEY, was in arms with HENRY III. at the Battles of Lewes and Besham, but having received a pardon, fled Prince EDWARD (EDWARD I.) in to the Holy Land. This Sir John de Gurney bore for arms, "argent a cross en- gules;" a coat borne by his des- cendants ever since: from him sprang HUND GURNEY, living in the reigns of EDWARD III. and RICHARD II. a lawyer of fame, who held the situation of stand- counsel or recorder, as it would now be called, of the city of Norwich. He wedded the heiress of the De Wauncys, of West Ham, in Norfolk, at which place the Gurneys were subsequently seated. His

JOHN GURNEY, was sheriff of Norfolk and Suffolk, in the 1st of HENRY IV. and one of the knights of the shire for the county in the parliament held at Bury, anno 1404. He had no children, and was therefore succeeded by his nephew, the grandson, WILLIAM GURNEY, is frequently mentioned in the Paston Letters. His descendant,

ANTHONY GURNEY, lived in the reign of RY VIII. He m. Margaret, daughter of Robert Lovel, and one of the co-heiresses of the Lords Mortimer, of Attleborough. His family continued at Great Ellingham West Barsham until the year 1661, when it became extinct in the elder male line and the estates devolved to co-heiresses. From a younger branch of the West Ham line descended

JOHN GOURNEY OR GURNEY, of Norwich, knight, b. in 1655, who embraced the religion of the Quakers. This gentleman died in 1721, leaving, with two younger sons, JOHN, whose descendants in the male line became extinct, on the death of Bartlett Gurney, esq. of Coltishall, in Norfolk, in 1802.

second son,

SPENCER THOMAS VASSALL, being designed a military life, obtained an ensigncy in 60th regiment of foot, at the early age twelve. He soon afterwards embarked for Gibraltar, where he served during the memorable siege, and from that period until gallant career closed on the ramparts of Monte Video, he was uninterruptedly engaged upon active service in almost every part of the globe. He was twice with the army in Flanders, once in the West Indies, several times on the coast of France, and once on that of Spain. He was the first man to land in the Isle Dieu, and planted the British colours there. He formed part both expeditions to Holland; in the last of which he was ordered by the Duke of York to attend General Don to the enemy's camp with a flag of truce. On that occasion, when Brun, the French commander in chief, in a fit of rage, pretending to suspect the motives of the mission, declared to General Don that he was determined to treat him as a spy, he turned round to Major Vassall, and said with a contemptuous smile, "Pour vous, monsieur, je vous plains," Vassall receiving the proffered sympathy with merited contempt, immediately replied, "Sir, I disdain your pity, and am ready to share the fate of my general." After experiencing every kind of indignity, and having been twice led out for execution, these brave men were at length released, and allowed to return to England. Shortly afterwards Major Vassall purchased the lieutenant-colonelcy of the 38th regiment, and was for some years stationed in Ireland, where it was his fortune to be the field officer, of the day in Dublin, on the memorable 23rd July, when Lord Kilwarden, and many others were killed by the insurgent populace. His cool determined conduct upon that occasion obtained for him the high commendation of the Irish Government, and of the commander in chief. He subsequently embarked with his regiment for the Cape of Good Hope, and assisted at the capture of that important settlement; of the town and fortress of which he was appointed commandant. This lucrative and honorable post he resigned to embark with his regiment in the second expedition dispatched to the coast of Spanish America, and there he found a soldier's grave in gallantly leading his troops to the assault of Monte Video. His conduct, his courage, his fate are so faithfully depicted in the following letter from his orderly serjeant, to Sir Home Popham, that we know not how we could better close this summary of his valiant achievements.

Monte Video, 10 Feb. 1807.

SIR,

Pardon the liberty I am taking, as the gratitude I owe to my everlamented and best friend, Colonel Vassall, obliges me to give you and his friends an authentic account of his last; I being his orderly serjeant, and the chief person to witness his bravery, and the gallant manner in which he acquitted himself in doing his duty, in that unfortunate hour in which he fell. On our approach to the wall we missed the breach; the grape and musketry flew so hot it drove the men into confusion, and would have made numbers of them retreat but for his exertions. When he observed any of the men stoop or flinch, he cried out as loud as possible, "Brave 38th, my brave men, don't flinch; every bullet has its billet. Push on, follow me, thirty eighth!" He rallied them repeatedly in this manner, until he got them inside the breach. He immediately directed a party to take possession of the corner battery next the sea, which was done in a few minutes, and another, under the command of Major Ross, to advance to the great church, and he was advancing himself to the main battery on the right, when a grape shot broke his leg, and as soon as he fell he cried out, "Push on,

RICHARD VASSALL, of Jamaica, whose daughter and heiress,

ELIZABETH VASSALL, espoused, first, the late Sir Godfrey Webster, bart. and, secondly, LORD HOLLAND, who has assumed the additional name of VASSALL.

ELIZABETH VASSALL, who wedded Major General the Hon. John Barrington, son of the first Viscount Barrington, and was grandmother of the present Lord.

somebody will take me up, my good soldiers, charge them, never mind me; it's only the loss of a leg in the service." He sat up, and helped to tie on a handkerchief to stop the blood, and cried out all the time of the action, "I care not for my leg, if my regiment do their duty, and I hope they will." As soon as the town surrendered he heard the men cheer, he joined them with as great spirits as if nothing had happened, and called to me to have him carried to the head of his regiment. I feel to the heart for his family. I could wish to have fallen with him, sooner than part with a man who was so good a friend to me. At half-past three on the morning of the 3rd, he received his wound; at one o'clock on the morning of the 7th, he departed, and at eight the evening he was interred at the entrance of the great church, with all military honours.

I am, sir,

Your very humble obedient servant

B. MATTHEWS

The remains of this gallant soldier at first interred in the grand church at Monte Video, with military honors, but were afterwards removed to England, and deposited in the family vault in the church of St. Paul's, Bristol, where a monument signed by Flaxman, executed by Ross, erected by Colonel Vassall's widow, bears the following inscription.

Sacred to the Memory of SPENCER THOMAS VASSALL, esq.
Lieutenant-colonel of the 38th regiment, who,
After twenty-eight years of active and unremitting service,
During which he had acquired a high military reputation,
Was mortally wounded at the storming of Monte Video, in South America,
On the 3rd of February, 1807,
At the moment he had conducted his intrepid followers within the walls of the fortress,
And expired on the 7th of the same month,
Aged 40.
His beloved remains, brought to England by the companions of his victory, are deposited near this spot,
Where, to record her own, her children's, and her country's loss,
She, who was the wedded and happy witness of his private worth,
Has caused this monument to be erected.

"Stranger, if e'er you honor'd Sidney's fame,
If e'er you lov'd Bayard's reproachless name,
Then on this marble gaze with tearful eyes,
For kindred merit here with VASSALL lies!
But far more blest than France or England's pride,
In the great hour of conquest VASSALL died;
While still undaunted in the glorious strife,
Content he purchased victory with life,
And nobly careless of his own distress,
He bade his mourning comrades onward press;
Bade them (the hero victor o'er the man,)
Complete the conquest which his sword began;
Then proudly smil'd amidst the pangs of death,
While thanks for victory fill'd his parting breath."†

He was, subsequently, nominated clerk register of Scotland, and in 1622, appointed lord chancellor of that kingdom. Sir George was advanced to the peerage by King Charles I. in the titles of Baron Hay, of Kinfauns, and Viscount Duplin, with reversion to his heirs general whatsoever, and created 25th May, 1633, EARL OF KINNOUL, with the same reversionary clause in the patent. His lordship died in 1634, and was s. by his eldest surviving son, GEORGE HAY, second earl, whose grandson, William, fifth earl, dying unmarried in 1709, the peerage devolved, according to the clause of the patent, upon his kinsman and heir at law,

The laird of Melginch died prior to the year 1606, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR PETER HAY, of Melginch, who received the honor of knighthood from King CHARLES I. His male line having failed, the representation devolved upon his half brother,

Seat—Seggieden, upon the left bank of the Tay, about four miles below Perth, and Killieranky Cottage, in the pass of Killieranky. About the time of JOHN BALIOL, SEGGIEDEN and the hospital there belonged to the monks of St. Augustine; an order, which first appeared in Britain in 1250. Spottiswood has subjoined to "Hopes minor pratiques," in his account of hospitals belonging to the popish clergy, that "these hospitals were erected either for receiving strangers, or for maintaining poor and infirm people, and they were governed by a superior who was called Magister." Among the hospitals which he enumerates is that of "Seggieden," and Cardonnel in his picturesque antiquities of Scotland gives a list of twenty nine hospitals, one of which is Seggieden.

SEGGIEDEN afterwards belonged to George Hay, first Earl of Kinnoull, Lord High Chancellor of Scotland, who died in 1634, and was succeeded by George, the second Earl, who adhering to the fortunes of King CHARLES I. during the civil wars, contracted so much debt that he found it necessary to execute a deed of division, dated 1647, by which the lands and Barony of Seggieden were assigned, with others, to Sir Thomas Blair, of Balthayock. These lands were subsequently in 1652, purchased from the Blairs, by JOHN NAIRN.

HICKES, OF SILTON HALL.

HICKES, FOWLER, esq. A. M. Un. Oxon, of Silton Hall, in the county of York. b. in April, 1765, barrister-at-law, and deputy-lieutenant for the North Riding of Yorkshire.

Lineage.

The family of HICKES, appears by Thoresby's Ducatus Lediensis, to have held the manor of Nunnington, in the North Riding of Yorkshire, so early as the fourteenth century.

JOHN HICKES, Lord of Nunnington, about the year 1580, had two sons,

2. Robert, who remained at Nunnington. This gentleman, b. in 1680, married in 1619, Frances Wright and had several children. His grandson, Marmaduke, was mayor of Leeds in 1666—1681, and 1694.

The elder son,

— HICKES, who took up his abode at Nesse, near Nunnington, had two sons, Ralph, who continued at Nesse, and

WILLIAM, who migrated to Newsham Hall, near Kirby Wisk, in the North Riding of Yorkshire. He married Elizabeth Kaye, and had issue,

GEORGE, b. 20th June, 1640, the celebrated Dr. GEORGE HICKES, Dean of Worcester 1679, and Suffragan, Bishop of Thetford, a man of universal learning, deeply read in the primitive fathers of the church, and particularly erudite in the old northern languages and antiquities, of which his "Linguarum veterum Septentrionalium Thesaurus," and the "Grammatica Anglo-Saxonica" are splendid proofs, and held in high estimation in this country, and throughout Europe.

The death of CHARLES II. to whom Dr. George Hickes was chaplain, and his high church principles deprived him of the see of Bristol. At the revolution he was an uncompromising non juror, and therefore bereft, in 1690, of his benefices and other church dignities. Subsequently he espoused the cause of the CHEVALIER, and was actively engaged in the service of that unfortunate prince. Dr. George Hickes died in 1715, in the 75th year of his age.*

JOHN, brother of George, was of different religious principles, and became eminent as a nonconformist. In the year 1675, having published a pamphlet complaining of the conventicle act, and of the oppression of many honest men in Devonshire, where he was incumbent of Stoke, two king's messengers were sent to apprehend him as a state criminal. "It happened," continues Dr. Calamy in his nonconformist's memorial, "that upon the road Dr. J. HICKES fell into the company of these messengers, having no suspicion of them. He travelled all the morning and dined with them, when they talked with great freedom against one John Hickes as an ill man and a great enemy to the government. He bore with their scurrility till dinner was over, and then going to the stable to his horse, of which he was always tender, he there gave them to understand he was the person that they had so vilified, and to teach them to govern their tongues better in time to come took his cane and corrected them till they begged his pardon. He then mounted his horse and rode to London." Upon his arrival, he procured by means of a friend in power an introduction to the King, with whom he so successfully pleaded, that he not only obtained indemnity for himself, but for all the Devonshire nonconformists. In the ensuing reign joining the standard of the illfated Duke of Monmouth, to whom he was chaplain, he suffered death as a traitor, A. D. 1685.*

Glost. His lordship died in 1629, and was succeeded by (the husband of his eldest daughter) Edward Noel, esq. (See Burke's Extinct and Dormant Peerage).

The Viscount's elder brother Sir Michael Hickes, knt. bred to the bar, was secretary to the Lord High Treasurer Burghley. FAMILIES OF BOTELER AND BOSVILLE.

The BOSVILLS were originally from Yorkshire, where several distinct branches formerly flourished, and where some still remain. In the course of a long and unbroken descent they allied with families of high distinction through whom they became connected with many of the princely and noble houses of Europe.

SIR RALPH BOSVILLE, of Bradburne, (second son of John Bosville, of Gunthwaite, in Yorkshire) appears to have been the first of this family who settled in Kent. Sir Ralph, who was clerk of the court of wards and liveries, espoused Anne, daughter of Sir Richard Clement, of the Moat, in Ightham, (by Anne, his wife, relict of John Grey, brother of Thomas, second marquess of Dorset, and grandson to ELIZABETH WIDVILLE, queen consort of EDWARD IV.) and dying in 1580, left, with other issue,

SIR ROBERT BOSVILLE (his second son). This gentleman espousing Elizabeth, only daughter and heiress of John Sybil, of Eynsford, acquired that estate, and settled there about the year 1586. Sir Robert died in 1623, and was s. by his son,

The following lines by SAVAGE, entitled the "Portraiture of a Gentleman," are known to have been intended for Mr. Jolliffe:

A graceful mien, engaging in address;
Looks which at once each winning charm express;
A life, where love, by wisdom polish'd, shines,
Where wisdom's self again, by love, refines;
Where we to chance for friendship never trust,
Nor ever dread from sudden whim disgust;
To social manners, and the heart humane;
A nature ever great, and never vain;
A wit that no licentious coarseness knows:
The sense, that unassuming candour shows:
Reason, by narrow principles uncheck'd,
SLAVE TO NO PARTY, BIGOT TO NO SECT;
Knowledge of various life, of learning too;
Thence taste, thence truth, which will from taste ensue;

Unwilling censure, though a judgment clear;
A smile indulgent, and that smile sincere!
An humble, though an elevated mind;
A pride, its pleasure but to serve mankind:
If these esteem and admiration raise,
Give true delight and gain unflatt'ring praise;
In one bright view the accomplished man we see:—

These graces all were thine, and thou wert he.

Mr. Jolliffe was succeeded, at his decease, in 1771, by his son,

THOMAS-SAMUEL JOLLIFFE, esq. M. P. for Petersfield, who wedded, in 1778, Mary-

Mr. Jolliffe died on the 6th June, 1824, at the close of the seventy-eighth year of his age. The following particulars of this excellent country gentleman appeared in the Bath Herald of that period.

"Descended from an ancient family, which dates its origin from the incursion of the Norman Conqueror, and collaterally allied to some of the chief nobles of the Kingdom, Mr. Jolliffe filled an elevated station in society with distinguished ability and credit. Of late years he resided almost entirely in the country; but he formerly mingled in the brilliant circles of the Metropolis, and sat in several parliaments, during the government of Lord North, and the first period of Mr. Pitt's administration. In the House of Commons, as in every other situation, he sustained the character of a high minded and scrupulously honorable gentleman. Of the disinterested and upright principle which universally governed his conduct, he early in life gave an eminent proof, by resisting a very flattering overture, which embraced high hereditary rank, as well as pecuniary emolument, rather than desert those connexions whose political views he had conscientiously adopted. Mr. Jolliffe had considerable property in various parts of England; but his chief estates were in Somersetshire, for which county he was several years since, appointed high-sheriff, and served the office with a degree of splendour, which has seldom been equalled; the whole of his retinue on that occasion being selected from his principal tenantry. As a magistrate, he was acute, active, humane, upright, intrepid, and intelligent; his opinions were received with the sincerest deference, and his decisions heard with respectful acquiescence. On the institution of the Fencible Dragoons, at an important crisis of the late war, he was appointed to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel; a situation for which he was peculiarly qualified by his habits of activity, his address in the management of his horse, and his personal accomplishments. Since the reduction of the regiment, he has resided almost exclusively on his extensive domain; where in the calm scenes of domestic retirement, he became the centre of a grateful and admiring circle."

Mr. Jolliffe was s. by his elder son, the present JOHN TWYFORD JOLLIFFE, esq. of Ammerdown Park.

In the 17th HENRY VIII. we find Sir Stephen Hamerton in the train of Henry de Clifford, first earl of Cumberland, and in favor at court, but afterwards being involved in the great Northern insurrection, (anno 1537) he received his majesty's pardon. Rebelling* a second time with the Lord Darcy, and his brother-in-law, Sir Francis de Bigod, he was taken prisoner, conveyed to London, and executed and attainted. The estates of this unfortunate gentleman falling under the attainder, HELLIFIELD PEEL remained vested in the crown, until granted (in the 37th HENRY VIII.) by the name of "the manor of Hellifield, with its appurtenances, part of the possession of

Stephen Hamerton, knt. attainted treason," to George Browne, and to be held of the King in capite for consideration of £296. 9s. 2d. The tradition is that "Sir Matthew Palmer, of Southwell, won him at bowls of Robert Hington, servant to Earl Roger, who gave him to that gentleman in 1604, and when he, the said Sir Matthew had him, he married him to his sister Frances. By this marriage (who married for her second husband Robert Waring, of Wilford), he had a son and successor,

ROBERT THORNTON, M.A. rector of Birkin, in that shire, was eminently distinguished during the civil conflicts of the reign of CHARLES I. for his loyalty to his king and attachment to the church of England. His great and manifold privations in those distressing times are fully related in "Walker's Sufferings of the Clergy." Mr. Thornton, who was removed from his rectory during the Protectorate, but reinstated at the Restoration, died in 1665, and lies interred in the church of Birkin, where a monument is erected to his memory. His son,

THE REV. ROBERT THORNTON, A.M. rector of Birkin, "who," as the inscription on his tomb relates, "having lived happily about forty-five years with his wife, Mrs. Clare Thornton, a virtuous charitable and hospitable house-keeper, by whom he had nine children, buried her 3rd December, 1696, aged 65 years, and himself was laid with her, 2nd February, 1697, in the 74th year of his age." Mr. Delafield is the second son of the late Joseph Delafield, esq. but his elder brother, Count Delafield, established himself abroad, he is now the representative of the family in England. The Count appears to be the undoubted heir to the ancient BARONY OF FITZWARINE, which has been suspended for more than four centuries.

Lineage.

This family derives its descent from the COUNTS DE LA FELD, the once powerful proprietors of the demesnes and castle near Colmar, of which the latter still bears their name. These Lords had large possessions in Alsace and Lorraine, and are frequently mentioned in the wars of those countries. The Croix d'or of La Feld, their ancient badge, is still the coat armour of the house immediately before us.

It is probable that HUBERTUS DE LA FELD was the first of his race that emigrated to England; and that he came over amongst the crowd of foreigners who attended the conqueror hither, his name appearing enrolled as the owner of lands in the county of Lancaster, in the third of WILLIAM I. The name of JOHN DE LA FELD occurs in the 12th of HENRY I. as a proprietor in the counties of Lancaster and Bucks; of ROBERT DE LA FELD, without a date, and of JOHN DE LA FELD, in the 38th and 43rd of HENRY III. The last mentioned person,

JOHN DE LA FELD, witnessed two deeds in the same years on the marriages of his son and daughter, viz.

JOHN, of whom presently.

on account of a great pestilence then raging in England, and not returning for several

he had perished; and ISABEL, his only sis-Alloone (descended from Maurice, first Knight of Kerry, and son of John, fourth Lord of Offaley), took the lordship of Culfamily of CRAWFURD is of Norman descent and appears to descend from one of the knights who accompanied Malcolm from England, and encouraged by the grant of land from that prince, settled in Scotland.

In the Chartularies, Advocates of Edinburgh, mention is made of a de Crawfurd in the beginning of the 12th century. He assumed his name to the practice of the age) from the name of Crawfurd, in Clydesdale, signifying in Gaelic, "the pass of blood."* Here were two knights (brothers, most probably of this Reginald) and Sir Gregan Crawfurd, both in the reign of King DAVID I. In commemoration of that monarch's life, having been killed when hunting in Holyrood Park, his younger brother, the abbot of Holyrood, founded, and Sir Gregan's arms were retained.

A Dominus GALFREDUS DE CRAWFURD frequently occurs among the Magna Charta, as a witness to the charters of King John. He wedded — sister of John earl of Chester, and daughter of the earl of Huntingdon, second son of King David of Scotland, by his Queen Maud, daughter of Valdosius, earl of Northumberland.

Judith, niece of WILLIAM the Lion King. From this Galfred sprang the first CRAWFURD, of Crawfurd, who died in 1248, and was buried in Melrose Abbey, leaving two daughters, his co-heirs, who conveyed the greater portion of the Crawfurd estates to the families of their husbands, Douglas, ancestor of the dukes of Douglas, and Lindsay, ancestor of the earls of Crawford and Lindsay. The territory thus divided was afterwards called Crawfurd Lindsay, and Crawfurd Douglas. But a third portion subsequently, for distinction, denominated Crawfurd John Barony, remained in the possession of John Crawfurd, the male representative of Sir John. From Galfred de Crawfurd also sprang

SIR REGINALD DE CRAWFURD, a personage of great eminence, who espoused, about the year 1200, the heiress of the extensive barony of Loudoun, in Ayrshire (which afterwards gave the title of earl to its possessors) and he became the first vicecomes or lord lieutenant of the county, the office being made hereditary in his family. The fifth in descent from this Sir Reginald, was another

Sir Reginald dying thus without male issue, the representation of the house of CRAWFURD reverted to his cousin,

HUGH CRAWFURD, second son of Sir Reginald Crawford, of Loudoun, who was treacherously murdered at Ayr in 1297. This Hugh, who appears to have inherited from Loudoun the lands of Monoch, of which his grandfather had a charter in 1226, and also CROSBY, near Kilbride, an ancient tenure of Loudoun, was s. at his decease, by his son,

WILLIAM CRAWFURD, of Auchinames, who died from his father in 1498, a charter by and Monoch. To him succeeded

JAMES CRAWFURD, of Auchinames, lived 1535. This laird married Marion, daughter of Montgomery, of Hazlehead, by whom he had three sons, successive Lords of Auchinames, by the eldest of whom,

WILLIAM CRAWFURD, of Auchinames, he was slain at his decease. This gentleman died at the battle of Pinkie in 1547, leaving without issue, the estates devolved on his next brother,

JAMES CRAWFURD, of Auchinames, who married Annabel, daughter of Chalmers of Auchinames, and had one son,

JANE, who m. the Lady Elizabeth Cunningham, daughter of William, sixth Earl of Glencairn, by a daughter of Gordon of Lochinvar, and predeceasing his father, left an only child,

JANE, on whom he settled the lands of Crosby. This lady wedded, about the year 1606, PATRICK CRAWFURD, of Auchinames, and thus the ancient estates of the family were reunited.

WILLIAM CRAWFURD died in 1582, when the lands of Auchinames, according probably to the charter on which it was held, passed to his son,

JAMES CRAWFURD, of Auchinames, who was the son of John Frazer, third laird of Auchinames (by Margaret, his wife, only child of Sir John Stuart, of Glendertree, fourth son of John, first Earl of Lennox, and son of the celebrated Sir John Stewart, Count Devereux, field-marshal of France, and had a son and successor,

JAMES CRAWFURD, of Auchinames, who died in 1587, a daughter of Sir Patrick Craufurd, of that ilk, and was s. by his son,

JAMES CRAWFURD, of Auchinames, who died in 1606, Jane Craufurd, heiress of Crosby, and thus again united the ancient lands of Crosby and Auchinames. He had

Auchinames was s. by his eldest son,

ARCHIBALD CRAWFURD, of Auchinames, Crosby, &c. the sixteenth baron or chief of this family descended from Loudoun in a direct male line. He m. a daughter of Porterfield, of that ilk, and had a son, WILLIAM, who m. Helen, daughter of Sir Thomas Burnet, of Crimond, and dying vitâ patris left an only daughter, who wedded Patrick Edmonston, of Newton, and had several children.

The laird leaving no male issue, and having feued out and otherwise disposed of the lands of Auchinames, the superiority of that estate, together with the lands of Crosby in Cunninghame, was purchased by Patrick Craufurd, of Drumsoy, a descendant of the Craufurds of Kerse, who had married Jane, the second daughter of Archibald of Auchinames. Hence Drumsoy is styled of Auchinames, as having the superiority. Crosby, similarly acquired, is still in possession of his descendant, John Craufurd. Archibald Craufurd leaving no male issue, the representation of the family reverted to his uncle,

ROBERT CRAWFURD, designed by Nisbet, "Captain Robert Craufurd, of Nethermain;" and that the Nethermain so alluded to, was the Nethermain of Kilwinning, whence sprang the Craufurds of Newfield, is sufficiently attested by the will of Patrick Craufurd, of Auchinames, lately discovered among the records of the Commissary Court of Glasgow. This testament bears date at Crosby, parish of Largs, the XII day of December, 1648, and in it are enumerated his children by name; it is "witnessed by William Craufurd, younger, of Auchinames, my son; Robert Hunter, of Hunterston, my son-in-law; and Robert Craufurd, of Nay'mains, also my lawful son," and written by his son James, who was bred to the bar.*

Robert Craufurd married Christian, daughter and co-heiress of Robert Brown, of Nethermain and Burrowlands; which latter estate was conveyed by the younger sister to her husband, Alexander Blair, of Giffordland. He died in 1678, leaving three sons,

CAMPBELL, OF BARBRECK.

CAMPBELL, FREDERICK-WILLIAM, esq. b. 4th January, 1782, m. 21st July, 1820, Sophia, daughter of the late Sir Edward Winnington, bart. M.P. He has an only surviving child, SOPHIA-JANE. This gentleman, who was lieutenant and captain in the 1st regiment of Guards, s. his father in 1804. He was magistrate and deputy-lieutenant for the county of Suffolk.

Lineage.

The family of CAMPBELL, is one of the most distinguished in Scotland; and its head, ARGYLL, in feudal times, was perhaps the most powerful subject in the kingdom.

SIR COLIN CAMPBELL, of Lochow, (grandson of Sir Colin, distinguished for his warlike achievements by the surname of More or the Great.) was lineally descended from Gillespick Campbell, who eight centuries before, had obtained, by marriage with an heiress, the lordship of Lochow, in Argyllshire. Sir Colin acquired renown in the service of his uncle ROBERT BRUCE, and dying in 1340, left issue,

ARCHIBALD, from whom the ducal family of ARGYLL.

COLONEL CHARLES CAMPBELL, of Bar-which belonged to his mother; and his aunt Mary conveyed to him the remainder: the whole of which he subsequently sold to David Ross, esq. of Inverchasly (afterwards a Scotch judge, by the title of Lord Anker-ville). Colonel Campbell also possessed property in the Isle of Bute, held of the crown, and acquired, by purchase (principally in 1767), a considerable estate in Argyllshire. He wedded, in 1750, Miss D.

Morgan, and had (with two daughters, one of whom died single, and the other married, David Campbell, esq. of Combie) three sons, viz.

1. DONALD, his heir.
2. Laurence, b. in 1753, a captain in the army, originally of the Scots
Greys, and afterwards of the 71st Highlanders; in which latter regiment he served, and was wounded, during the American war. He died in 1824.
3. Charles, a major-general in the army, b. in 1762, and d. in 1822.

Colonel Campbell died in 1792, and was s.
by his eldest son,

DONALD CAMPBELL, esq. of Barbreck, b.
in 1751. This gentleman, having at an early age adopted the military profession, was distinguished, under General Mathews, in India, and, while a prisoner in Bidanore, acquired such an influence over the governor, that he hastened at a very critical moment the surrender of that important fortress. Captain Campbell wedded in 1778, Mary Campbell, a daughter of Lord Frederick Campbell, by whom he had issue,

FREDERICK-WILLIAM, his heir.

John, b. in 1786, who lost his life while serving with Lord Keith on board H. M. S. Queen Charlotte, which was burnt off Leghorn, 17th March, 1800.

Captain Campbell, who was sixteenth "of Barbreck," died in 1804, and was succeeded by his only surviving child, the present
FREDERICK-WILLIAM CAMPBELL, esq. of Barbreck, who has disposed of his estate in Argyllshire, retaining only a superiority, to connect him with the country where so many of his ancestors were actively en-

‡ His defence of this fortress against the forces of EDWARD IV. is thus noticed in the autobiography of the celebrated Lord Herbert of Cherbury. "Sir Richard Herbert being employed together with his brother William, Earl of Pembroke, to reduce certain rebels in North Wales, Sir Richard Herbert besieged a principal person of them at Harlech Castle in Merionethshire. The captain of this place had been a soldier in the wars of France, whereupon he said he had kept a castle in France so long, that he made the old women in Wales talk of him, and that he would keep this castle so long that he would make the old women in France talk of him; and indeed as the place was almost impregnable but by famine, Sir Richard Herbert was constrained to take him by composition, he surrend'ring himself upon condition that Sir Richard Herbert should do what he could to save his life; which being accepted, Sir Richard brought him to King EDWARD IV. desiring his Highness to give him a pardon, since he yielded up a place of importance, which he might have kept longer upon this hope; but the King replying to Sir Richard Herbert, that he had no power by his commission to pardon any, and therefore might after the representation hereof to his Majesty, safe deliver him up to justice, Sir Richard Herbert answered he had not yet done the best he could for him, and therefore most humbly desired his Highness to do one of two things, either to put him again in the castle where he was, and command some other to take him

The King finding himself urged thus far, gave Sir Richard Herbert the life of the said captain, but withal he bestowed no other reward for his service."

It is proved by the rolls of parliament, that David had continued to hold the fortress against the royal mandate to deliver it up, for the space of three years, and tradition assigns to him a much longer defence. Famine obliged him at length to surrender. During his custody of the castle (in 1463,) the virtuous but imbecile HENRY VI. and his high minded and spirited Queen found refuge within its walls.

Mr. Alington appears to have attended King HENRY VIII. as master of the ordnance at the siege of Bullogne, by the invention of a clock which he brought to that siege, and affixed over the entrance at Horseheath Hall, in which the alarm bell of the garrison of Bullogne. His direct descendant, WILLIAM, of Horseheath Hall, was elevated to the peerage of Ireland as BARON ALINGTON of Kildard, on the 28th July, 1642. Lord Alington was s. by his son,

Mr. Abney inherited the estates at the decease of his grandfather, in 1827.

Lineage.

The family of ABNEY, originally D'Aubigny, is of great antiquity in the county of Derby, where they were seated at Abney in the Peak, (to which doubtless they gave the name) about the time of the Conquest.

JOHN DE ABENEY, living at Wivelislie, in the year 1318, was father of

WILLIAM DE ABENEY, whose son,

JOHN DE ABENEY, espoused about the year 1400, the elder co-heir of William de Ingewardeby, of Willesley,* and acquired thereby, the manors of Willesley, and Potlock, in Derbyshire, with lands in Packing-

* The family of Wiveleslie, (the ancient name of Willesley) was possessed of the lordship at a very early period. In the year 1160, MICHAEL DE WIVELESIE was lord of the manor, and granted lands to John de Yagwereby, then living at Willesley. The son of this John,

WILLIAM DE INGWEREBY, wedded about the year 1290, ALBREDIA DE WIVELESIE, daughter of MICHAEL, and sister of ADO de Wiveleslie, and obtained the rest of the lands together with the lordship. They were succeeded by their son,

NICHOLAS DE INGWEREBY, whose grandson,

WILLIAM DE INGWARDENY, left two daughters, co-heirs to his estates. The elder married JOHN DE ABENEY, as in the text; the younger espoused THOMAS STOKES, esq. of Tamworth.

He was chosen by King WILLIAM, having during his life rendered important services to him in the protestant cause, and was one of the founders of the Bank of England. He died aged eighty-three, father of the City of London, president of St. Thomas's Hospital, and one of the directors of the Bank of England. ROBERT ABNEY, esq. born in 1672, who m. Mary, second daughter of W. Webb, esq. of Hamstal, Redware, in the county of Stafford, and had issue,

1. ROBERT, of Oldbury, near Birmingham, who left an only daughter and heiress, SUSANNAH, second wife of Roger Holmes, esq. of Walsall.

2. George, whose line is now EXTINCT.

3. WILLIAM, of whom presently.

The third son,

WILLIAM ABNEY, esq. of the Inner Temple, purchased the estate of MEASHAM, and erected the family mansion there. This gentleman b. 25th November, 1713, lived like many of his predecessors to an advanced period of life, and died, after filling all the duties of a country gentleman in the most exemplary manner, at the age of eighty-seven, in the year 1800. Mr. Abney was one of the last of that old fashioned race of English proprietors, who now only survive amongst the writers of Romance. After refusing a seat upon the BENCH, he resided constantly upon his estate in the country, performing all the duties of a magistrate firmly, humanely, and actively. His chief pleasure arose from expending little upon himself, and assisting his poorer neighbours, maintaining at the same time a most hospitable establishment; all within his immediate vicinity, tenantry and neighbours were alike welcomed with a truly patriarchal reception. His carriage, built at the coronation of George III. was drawn by four long tailed horses and driven by a coachman, above fifty years in the family. His domestics had grown grey in his service, and it was curious to see him waited upon by four or five tottering servants of nearly his own age, who regarded him more as a brother than a master. His liveries corresponded with the other parts of his establishment—long shoulder knots, with sleeves and waistcoat pockets of the fashion of the preceding century. He was a man of very vigorous mind, a Whig of the revolution, and in 1793, discoursed of the actors in that great event with the familiarity of a contemporary. His attachment to the House of Hanover was almost idolatrous, and his proudest boast was his having headed a party to oppose the Chevalier when at Derby on his advance southward. The utility of a personage in a local district endowed with so much public spirit, and gifted with a mind so liberally and nobly constructed is attested by the direction which he gave to the fortunes of two men who rose to considerable eminence, and whose course was attended by great national prosperity. The first, WILKES of Measham, distinguished as a cotton spinner, and the partner of the late Sir Robert Peel, was indebted to Mr. Abney for the means of bringing his abilities and industry into activity. The second, William Salt of Tottenham, was one of the children of a numerous family of a widowed tenant of Mr. Abney, whom he first educated, and subsequently apprenticed to the ribbon trade in Coventry. This gentleman, like Wilkes, accumulated a great and honorable fortune.

Mr. Abney,* espoused Catherine, daughter and heiress of Thomas Wotton, esq. of Little Cannons, in the county of Herts, and had four sons and two daughters, viz.

Lineage.

ARCHERS came over at the time of the first conquest, and the name is to be found in the Domesday Abbey Roll. A branch of the family was ennobled, anno 1747, in the person of THOMAS ARCHER, esq. M.P. for Cornwall, who was created BARON ARCHER, of Helston, in Warwickshire. (See Extinct and Dormant Peerage.) The name more immediately before us appears to have been settled in Cornwall for four hundred years, a John Archer represented Helston in parliament in the reign of HENRY VI. During the usurpation of CROMWELL, a pre-eminence at the bar, and was made in-law in 1658, preparatory to his appointment on the bench of the Common Pleas the next year. The elder branch of the family, which was seated near Helston, became extinct in the reign of CHARLES IV. when the heiress wedded LEONARD ST. BURIAN, in the church whereof the family signs are constantly traced in old records amongst the quarterings of the family. Upon the extinction of this branch the representation devolved on the family of Trelaske.

ARCHER (whose father married — MARY, daughter of Modbury, in Devon) espoused the heiress of Samuel Addis, of Whitehaven, with other issue, at his death, 1726.

They have a stately castle-like seat; and from this family (increaseth vanity) I myself am descended by the mother's side."

This Gospatric was the first of the family who was Lord of WORKINGTON, having exchanged with his cousin, William de Lancaster, the lordship of Middleton in Westmorland for the lands of Lamplugh and Workington in Cumberland.

In this bargain De Lancaster sold himself and his heirs an annual rent of 6*l.* to be paid at the fair of Carlisle a pair of gilt spurs, binding Gospatric his heirs to do homage, and to do foreign service for the same to the earl or castle of Egremont. Gospatric had four younger sons (Gilbert, Alan, and Alexander), his successor.

his family, styled by Camden in his Britannia "the honorable and ancient house Tyrwhitts, knts.," has been seated for several centuries in the north of England. The first person of the name of whom we have any certain account is SIR HERCULUS, is said (on the authority of the Vincent Harleian MSS.) to have been knighted and settled in Northumberland 2nd WILLIAM Himself, or his son, bearing the same name, married a daughter of Sir Thomas Gill, knt. and was living A.D. 1109, 10th year I. This Sir Hercules is stated to have thus acquired the surname of TYRWHITT. Severely wounded in defending a single handed, against numerous assaults, at the moment he had succeeded in forcing them to retire, he fell exhausted against the flags and rushes of an adjoining camp, while the attention of his party, who in the interim had rallied, was fortunately directed to the spot where he lay by a flock of swallows (or as called in some counties chits) screaming and hovering above, as is customary with those birds when disturbed in the vicinity of their nests. Camden, however, in his Remains derives the name from a place so called. The son of Sir Hercules,

SIR ROBERT TYRWHITT, was Lord of Tyrwhitt and Assancke, in Northumberland. He wedded a daughter of Sir John Witherington, and from this marriage descended, through a line of progenitors who allied with the Umfravilles, Lowthers, Harbottles, Ogles, Vauxes, of Gillesland, Nevilles, &c.

ROBERT TYRWHITT, grandson of Sir Oliver, who was grandson of Sir Hercules. This gentleman, who is described (Harl. MSS. 810) as "Robertus Tyrwhit arm de Ketilby, com. Linc. ac Tyrwhitt com. Northumbria," is mentioned in several of the MSS. sometimes as of Tyrwhitt and at others as of Ketilby. He m. Anne, daughter of William Wycliffe, esq. of Wycliffe, a (sister or cousin of the celebrated John Wycliffe, who was succeeded in the mastership of Baliol College, Oxford, by Thomas Tyrwhitt, a cadet of the family,) and had two sons, THOMAS, of Tyrwhitt, who m. a daughter of Alan de Boisterick, and was ancestor of the Tyrwhitts, of Northumberland.

WILLIAM (Sir).

The second son,

SIR WILLIAM TYRWHITT, of Ketilby, in the county of Lincoln, is described in the Harleian MSS. No. 1550, as "Primarius

Of this reverend and eminent person, Fuller, in his Worthies of Shropshire, thus speaks:—" Thomas Gataker was of an ancient family so planted, by Providence, at Gatacre Hall, in this (Shropshire) that they have four owners thereof, by a non-interruption, from the time of King Edm. Confessor. This Thomas, being a student for the law, was brought to Temple; where, in the reign of MARY, he was often present at the persecution of persecuted people. Their kindness made him pity their persons and patience, and to approve their religion. This was no sooner perceived by him (being of the old persuasion) but they sent him over to Louvaine in Flanders, to win him to a conversion to the popish religion, and for his encouragement, settled on him an one hundred pounds per annum. All would not do. Whereupon he recalled him home, and revoked the grant, to which his son did submit willingly to oppose the pleasure of his parents, though no such revocation had effect without his free consent. He afterwards devoted his mind from the most necessary study: to divinity; and finding friends to be in Oxford, he became the professed student of St. Edmund's, in Lombard Street, where he died anno 1593, leaving Gataker, his learned son, heir to him and piety."—The said

MORAY, OF ABERCAIRNY.

MORAY, JAMES, esq. of Abercairny, in the county of Perth, a justice of the peace and deputy-lieutenant for that shire, formerly captain of the 15th Dragoons, afterwards lieutenant-colonel of the Perthshire Local Militia, espoused Elizabeth, daughter of General Sir William Erskine, bart. of Torrie. He succeeded to the estates on the decease of his father in 1810.

Lineage.

The great house of MORAY, or MURRAY, whose acknowledged chieftainship is now seated in ABERCAIRNY, derives from FRESKINE, a Fleming, who settled in Scotland during the reign of DAVID I., and acquired from that monarch the lands of Craithbrock, in the county of Linlithgow. Soon after the insurrection of the Moraymen in 1130," says Chalmers, "Freskine, who probably contributed by his skill and bravery to the subduement of those ancient people, obtained from the same prince some of the most fertile districts of the Lowlands of MORAY," including Duffies, Inshkiel, &c., and erected a fortalice at Craithbrock, where he resided, and where the ruins of the castle are still to be seen. He was s. in 1158, by his only son,

WILLIAM DE MORAVIA, as appears from a charter, granted under the great seal, by WILLIAM the Lion, "Willielmo, filio Freskini, scilicet terras quas Freskine, pater suus, tenuit, tempore regis David avi mei." He left two sons, namely,

WILLIAM, his heir.

Hugh, who obtained from his father the lands of Duffus. He had a son, Walter, who is frequently mistaken for Walter, the son of William. family boasts of Saxon blood, and distinction for a full century at least by conquest.

AND, the first of the Saxon Earls of Warwick, temp. ALFRED, the Great, left an only son and heir, and heiress,

LEONETTA, who espoused GUY, son of Siward of Wallingford, and conveying her name to her husband he became

EARL OF WARWICK, "the memory of whom," (saith Dugdale) "for his great valour ever since been, and yet is so that the vulgar are of opinion that he was a man of more than ordinary stature, and of a Welsh, taking notice of his brave and valiant will needs have him to be descended from a Welsh parentage." The achievements of this chivalrous earl, true or fabulous, are generally known, that it is almost unnecessary to refer to Dugdale's Warwickshire, which they are fully set forth. He died in 927, and was s. by his son,

LEONETTA, Earl of Warwick, who espoused "the beautiful Lady Leonetta, daughter of King ATHELSTAN," and was s. by his son,

LEONETTA, Earl of Warwick, a man renowned for his personal valour, and magnanimity. He was a benefactor to the monks of Eversham, and was s. by his son, EARL OF WARWICK. This nobleman distinguished for piety, granted in the reign of King EDGAR, the village of Whitlarford to the monks of Eversham. He died about the beginning of the reign of EDWARD, the Martyr, and was s. by his son,

LEONETTA, Earl of Warwick, who, Dugdale says, was deprived of his lands and honors, "for his wicked courses and oppressions." His hereditary successor, was

WIGOD, who married the sister of Earl Leofric, and was s. by his son,

ALWYNE, who in the general survey, is styled, Alwinus Vicecomes. "The reason whereof," observes Dugdale, "I conceive to be either, because that he did exercise the power and authority of the Earle of Mercia, (scil. Earl Leofrike, his uncle) here in Warwickshire as his ancestors had done, for which respect he and they have been reputed earls, as I have already showed, and have rancked them in that degree; or else that he hath the custody of the county to the king's immediate use." Alwine left issue, of CASSAN, or DE CASSAGNE, is of French lineage. Douglas, in his History of Scotland, page 296, under the name of Destignots, Lords of Destignot-Germain, (a branch of Spens, the descendants of the house of Macduff, Thane of Fife), on the documents in the archives of the Comte de Liancourt, names the "Lords de Montagu," and of which he calls them "a family of distinction in the province of Bearne," anterior to the year 1509, at which period we find the name of the Cassans connected with some of the most illustrious names of the French Noblesse, and especially the house of Spens.

TURCHILL DE WARWICK, whose name stands likewise in the catalogue of earls. This nobleman, a man of great power and note, was lord of vast landed possessions, at the time of the CONQUEST, as appears by the general survey. He married two wives, and had issue* by both:—by the first, three sons, viz.

CASSAN, of Montpellier, born in France, fled to Holland, and in 1689, being engaged in the foreign brigade, commanded by Schomberg, went to Ireland, where he married, as appears by the records in Ulster's Office, Elizabeth, sole heiress of Joseph Sheffield, of Navestock, in Essex, and of which the name called Sheffield, to mark the descent of the Cassans from the Sheffield family in the Queen's county, and in consequence of this alliance, the family of Cassan has authority and license from the quarter to quarter the armorial insignia of the families of St. Liz, Sheffield, and Navestock, and families of Sheffield and St. Liz.

Stephen Cassan died 1750-1, and of all the estates which had descended to his wife's father, Joseph Sheffield, the crown 22nd March, 1667, II. (refer to the 15th report of the Commissioners, respecting the public lands in Ireland, printed by order of the House of Commons, p. 102). He had an

Mr. Richard Sheffield Cassan died, — leaving four daughters only.

Mr. Cassan wedded secondly, Christian, daughter of John Walsh, esq. of Jamaica, and had further issue, Joseph, in holy orders, of Stradbally, born in 1742, rector of Timogue, and vicar of Tullamoy and Fosse. He died in 1830, aged 88, leaving issue.

bert Hoey, esq. of Danganstown, in the county of Wicklow, many years M.P. for that county.* The Rev. Mr. Howse died in 1804, and his widow in 1827, leaving, with other issue, BLAYDES, HUGH-MARVEL, esq. of High Paull, in the county of York, and of High Paull Hall, Notts. b. at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, 22nd October, 1806, baptized on the 12th December following, at St. John's Church, in the same place, s. his father on the 12th February, 1829.

Lineage.

This family, originally Danish, was settled in the county of Durham in the eleventh, twelfth, and thirteenth centuries. Hutchinson in his History, states that they had assumed the local name of Burse-blades, or Burs-blades, from residing at Burs-blades, in the parish of Lanchester, near Durham, as appears by Bolden Book, and that they enjoyed considerable possessions there until the time of the Bishop of Durham. The first mentioned in Bolden Book is RICHARD DE BULPHI, Count de Bursebred, or Bursel, whose son, RICHARD DE BURESLADES, was grandfather of HUGH DE BURESLADES, one of whose sons,

WILLIAM DE BURSBLADES, b. about 1550, having married Margaret Appleyard, daughter and heiress of — Appleyard, of Heslington, in Yorkshire, lord mayor of York,* acquired the manors Sutton, cum Bransholme, Sudcoates, Merflete, and Dripoole, in Holderness, and of part of the manor of Sculcoates, all in the county of York, became domiciled in that shire. This William is designated in old deeds "Gulielmus Blaides," and sometimes "Gulielmus Bleyds de Sutton." By the heiress of Appleyard (who espoused, secondly, 12th February, 1592, William Barber, esq.) he left at his decease, 3rd March, 1591, (he was buried in the family vault in the church at Scowscotes) a son and successor,

JOSEPH BLAIDES, of Sutton, in the county of York, b. 15th July, 1588, a justice of the peace, and mayor of Kingston upon Hull, anno 1636. This gentleman m. Anne Booth, by whom he had a daughter, Lydia, the wife of George Anson, esq. ancestor of the circumnavigator, afterwards Lord Anson, and a son, his successor,

JAMES BLAIDES or BLAYDES, of Sutton, b. about the year 1625, a justice of the peace, m. Anne, daughter of the Rev. Andrew Marvel, (born at, and of Mildred, in the county of Cambridge, vicar of the Holy Trinity, Kingston upon Hull), and sister of ROCHE, OF LIMERICK.

ROCHE, GEORGE, esq. of Granagh Castle, in the county of Kilkenny. This gentleman, who claims the ancient Irish peerage of FERMOY, inherited the estates and representation of the Roches of Limerick, at the decease of his brother, in 1825.

Lineage.

The family of ROCHE OF LIMERICK, has descended from that of Castletown-Roche, in the county of Cork.

JOHN ROCHE, of Castletown-Roche,* descended from the Viscounts Fermoy, was a member of the Catholic Parliament or Council held at Kilkenny during the civil war, and his name appears as such to the satisfaction of the Irish Roman Catholics in 1793.

His eldest son,

BERT ROCHE, espoused Juliana O'Connell, daughter of Alexander O'Moore, of Ballina, in the county of Kildare,† and was succeeded by his eldest son,

STEPHEN ROCHE, known by the designation of Dov, or Black, from his complexion,

* For the ROCHE FAMILY generally, see NICHOL'S Peerage of Great Britain, 8vo. 1726, article FERMOY, and its descent from the sovereign houses of France is deduced.

† A very ancient family, and allied by intermarriage with that of the Earls of Kildare. Alexander O'Moore was next brother to the celebrated Sir Roger O'Moore, who, according to tradition, was one of the chief promoters of the rebellion of 1641, but acquitted by the same his- tory of any participation in the massacre of that year.

His birth, influence, and talents are placed very conspicuous light by Doctor Lingard; also HUME, and Warner's History of the Irish Nation, (4to. 1767) page 25, where it is stated the popular adjuration at the time was— "Our Lady and Roger O'Moore help us!"

whose estate, already injured by composition in the time of CROMWELL, was entirely forfeited under WILLIAM III. Compelled in consequence to leave the county of Cork, he retired to Kilrush, in Clare, and afterwards took up his abode at Pallas, in the county of Limerick, in the vicinity of his brother-in-law, William Apjohn, esq. He m. Anastasia, elder daughter and co-heir of Thomas Lysaght, esq.† (the other co-heir, Catherine, was the wife of Mr. Apjohn) and was s. by his son,

JOHN ROCHE, esq. b. in 1688, who wedded Anne, youngest daughter of Philip Stacpole, esq.§ of Mountcashell (the fee of which estate is now in Thomas Roche, esq.) Kilneen, and Kilcoman, in the county of Clare, (by his wife, Christian, daughter of John Creagh, of Ballyvolane, in the same shire, colonel in the Irish army, anno 1642), and had, with other issue,

1. STEPHEN, his heir.

2. John, who m. Miss Harold, cousin of General Harold, of the Saxon service, and had a daughter, Mary-Anne, who wedded John Meade, esq. of Limerick, and was mother of Captain Roche Meade, of the 21st regiment, deputy-adjutant-general.

† This gentleman in his passage to England, on his route to the University of Oxford, during the short war of 1665, was captured by a French privateer, and carried into France, where he became a convert to the Roman Catholic religion. Incurring thus the displeasure of his father, he was disinherited, and the estate of the family left by that gentleman to a younger son, the grandfather of the first Lord Lisle (of Ireland).

§ Philip Stacpole was son of James Stacpole and Christian, daughter of Denis M'Mahon, of Clonagh, one of the most ancient families of Clare. Three of Philip Stacpole's brothers fell at the battle of Aughrim, fighting under the banner of their legitimate sovereign, JAMES II. He died himself in 1714, aged seventy years, after serving as high sheriff for the county of Clare, being the last Roman Catholic, prior to the penal laws, who filled that office. The present Earl of Limerick enjoys some of the estates of this family, acquired by the marriage of his ancestor with a co-heiress of the Stacpoles.

iv. WILLIAM, M.P. for his native city of Limerick, and its first catholic representative, since the repeal of the penal laws. Mr. Roche was an eminent banker, and his free and entirely unsought for election is the strongest attestation of homage that his fellow citizens could have paid to public virtue, and private worth. He resides in Limerick, and his gardens there, unique in design and construction, have long attracted the attention of travellers. (See FITZGERALD'S History of Limerick.)

* In the year 1724, this Doctor Ankettle was a student of medicine at Paris, when John Fitzgibbon, father of the Lord Chancellor Fitzgibbon, Earl of Clare, visited that capital to pursue a course, not of divinity, as Sir Jonah Barrington states, but of medicine. Young Fitzgibbon immediately sought his townsman, who was allowed a day to show Paris to his friend, and both traversed the city accordingly in all directions. At length they stopped at a late hour to visit the cathedral of NOTRE DAME, in the immediate vicinity of their college; and exhausted with fatigue, fell so soundly asleep on the benches of the choir, as to escape the sexton's closing the church at night. It was past midnight when the youths awoke, and finding themselves thus immured, touched in their groping about the bell-rope, and soon made the great chimes resound to the no small amazement of the worthy sexton, and alarm of the good city of Paris. They were, of course, quietly liberated. John Fitzgibbon subsequently relinquished his medical studies, and was called to the Irish bar in 1732, when he successfully laid the foundation of his prosperous house.

This document is in the possession of James Roche, esq. of Cork; special allusion is made to it in Brien's Irish Dictionary, and likewise in Ferri's History of Limerick, where the family of Roche is also referred to. The certificate bears date, 30th March, 1588, and is addressed to Queen ELIZABETH. Lady Morgan founds her story of "The O'BRIENS and the O'FLAHERTYS," on some circumstances recited in this document relative to the dissensions of these powerful septs.

family, ranking amongst the most

tion of the English into that kingdom, temp.
RICHARD II. when the monasteries of Mei-ros, Driburg, Newbottel, and Edinburgh, were burnt; and then states, that, after the departure of the invaders, Robert Stewart, Earl of Fife, second son of the King of Scotland, with James, Earl of Douglas, and Archibald, Earl of Galway, at the head of thirty thousand men, made reprisal by eu-

tering England by Solway Frith, wasting the rich and fertile lands, and carrying away abundant spoil. In the course of the foray this ancient deed was discovered and brought to the Scots commander, Robert, Duke of Albany, subsequently Regent of Scotland; who, whenever he afterwards heard of long charters and other similar writings, was wont to say, that in former times there was more probity, when our ancestors were unaccustomed to such minute prolixity in their conveyances; and supported his opinion by reciting from memory these letters patent of King ATHELSTANE.

Notwithstanding Roddam lies at a great distance from that part of England which the Scotch ravaged at their first entrance by Solway Frith; yet it is most likely that a detachment entered Northumberland at the same time (as was customary on such invasions), and finding the writing in question, brought it to Robert, while his head quarters were in Cumberland or Westmorland. It is a well-known fact that ATHELSTANE won a great victory* over the Scots and Danes in the country near Roddam, where he commanded in person, so that he probably rewarded Pauline's good services by this grant on the spot.

The following passage is to be found in Leland's Collectanea, vol. ii. p. 571. anno 1351.

'Gilbert Rodam having fifty-three gayves with him, and eighty archers, fought with Reynald de Gulion, Capitaine of Parys, near Stampes (now Etampes, in Normandy), that had seven hundred men of armes and four hundred brigantes with him. Gilbert was slayen there; yet the Englishman had the victory, and Reynald was there taken prisoner; but he, by the help of a false Englishman, was conveyed or ever he had payid his ranssom.'

Leland's Itinerary, written in the time of HENRY VIII. (vol. v. p. 93.) states that "The Roddams, or Rudhams, were men of fair landes in Northumbrelande, about Tylle river, ontyl one of them having to wife one of the Umfraville daughters, killed a man of name, and thereby lost the principale of eight hundred markes by yere; so that at this time Roddam, or otherwise Rudham, of Northumbrelande, is but a man of mene landes."

The greater part of the original estate was certainly forfeited during the sway of the Norman kings, but the lands of RODDAM, named in the grant of Athelstane, descended to the late ADMIRAL RODDAM, through an uninterrupted line of ancestors, intermarrying with the Greys of Chillingham; the

He was "slaine in the Sunday Ffielde with the Earl of Northumberland in bataille, anno 1491, the 10th of March." From this gallant passage he left no issue to pass to his lineal descendant.†

Collingwood, b. in 1734, a captain in the East India Company's service, m. Miss Buller, but d. s. p. in 1806.

This gentleman had a large quantity of old plate which he left to the Falder family,* amongst which were four candlesticks, said to have been presented to him by TIPPOO SAIB.

Roddam was s. by his eldest son, EDWARD RODDAM, esq. of Roddam, who in 1776 without issue, and was s. by his brother,

ROBERT RODDAM, esq. then an officer of the royal navy. This gallant sea-officer entered the service as a midshipman on board the Lowestoffe in the year 1735-6; in which capacity he subsequently served under the Russell, Cumberland, and Boyne, was upon the Antigue station with Captain Drummond, of the Lowestoffe, more than five years. On the 3rd November, 1741, he was made third lieutenant on board the Superb in Cumberland Harbour, from which the next year he was removed to the Smooth. In 1744 he was appointed second lieutenant, and in two years afterwards promoted to the command of the Sloop, of war. About this time Lord Anson (then Mr. Anson), one of the lords of the Admiralty, went to Portsmouth to command the western squadron, and expressing a strong wish to all the captains to prepare a fleet at that time lying at Portsmouth, he urged the impracticability of the undertaking in a high south wind, and stated any other concurring obstacles. Mr. Roddam, the youngest captain, however, instantly undertook to try the possibility of opposing them, though his sloop, being just out of the stocks, was in every way incomplete; and he eventually performed the arduous duty with so much steadiness, that Lord Anson wrote directly to the lords of the Admiralty for leave to take Captain Roddam under his own command. In 1755 he was appointed to the Greenwich, a fifty gun ship, and sailing to the West Indies, remained on the Jamaica station until 1757. At this period, being on a cruise off Hispaniola, on the 16th March, early in the morning, plying off Cape Cabroon, the Greenwich fell in with four French line of battle ships, two frigates, and a store ship, which the officers and crew of the Greenwich all fully supposed and asserted were merchantmen convoyed by two frigates; but Captain Roddam entertained a different opinion, and, though late, convinced his ship's company of their mistake, as those vessels proved to be the Tonnant, of 84 guns, commanded by Admiral Bofromont; the Desauncene, of 74, Captain Blonal; the Diadem, 74, Captain Rosele; L'Eveille, of 64, Captain Merville; Inflexible, of 64, and the Savage and Le Bronne, frigates, with a twenty gun storeship. This squadron being to windward dispatched one of the frigates to reconnoitre, which Captain Roddam perceiving, and seeing no possibility of effecting his own escape, endeavoured to draw to the Greenwich. That ship being painted after the manner of the French, he hoped to decoy the frigate, and he had already prepared a boarding party, determined if he succeeded to dispatch her immediately to Admiral Townshend, at Jamaica, with intelligence of the number and situation of the enemy; but the Frenchman, discovering the Greenwich to be a two-decked ship, made all sail to rejoin the squadron. The Diadem first began firing at nine o'clock, and from that hour until nine at night the Greenwich was incessantly assailed by one or other of the fleet. Captain Roddam again prepared to board the L'Eveille, a 64, being the best sailing ship; but several of the enemy renewing the action at the same time, the Greenwich became so much injured in her rigging, and in consequence so unmanageable that he was compelled to abandon the idea. He then called his ship's company together, and told them he had done all in his power to preserve his majesty's ship, but if any of them could point out the French admiral's ship, the Tonnant, he thought the Greenwich could yet divert her an hour or two. The officers and the whole ship's company answered, "They must obey their captain, but they had been unceasingly shot at for twelve hours, and supported an action they believed longer than any ship had ever before sustained." Captain Roddam struck his colours in consequence, but, even after doing so, resisted what he deemed a dishonorable condition on the part of his conqueror. The French ship, L'Eveille, hailed the English captain to hoist out a boat, and to go on board the 64, which he repeatedly

For cor- costume, beauty of description, and agination, it far surpasses all European and bears such marks of originality who have visited the East will find dity in believing it to be more than a As an Eastern tale, even Rasselas efore it; his "Happy Valley" will not arison with the "Hall of Eblis."

The elder son,

PETER BECKFORD, esq. Speaker of the House of Assembly of Jamaica, died in 1735. Having married Bathshua, daughter and co- heir of Colonel Julines Hering,† he had issue,

- i. PETER, his heir.
- ii. WILLIAM, successor to his brother.
- iii. Richard, M.P. for Bristol, died unmarried.
- iv. Nathaniel, died unmarried.
- v. Julines, of Stapleton, in the county of Dorset, M.P. for Salisbury, who was s. by his son,

† This gentleman, through the lines of Oxen- bridge, Throckmorton, Nevil, Beauchamp, and Le Despencer, was descended from EDMUND PLAN- TAGENET, of Langley, Duke of York, fifth son of EDWARD III.

* * It is a remarkable fact, that Mr. Beckford is, paternally or maternally, descended from all the Barons of Magna Charta, or the twenty five Conservators of the public liberties, elected under the provisions of the great charter, from whom there is any issue surviving.

Arms.—Per pale gules and azure, on a chevron argent, between three martlets or, an eagle displayed sable; within a bordure of the fourth, charged with a double tressure, flory and counter flory of the first. The grant of the double tressure, under the authority of the Earl Marshal of England, registered in the college of arms, and bearing date the 20th March 1810, was intended to commemorate, not only the extraordinary accumulation of descents of the grantee, through various noble families, from the blood royal of Scotland which are verified in the line of Hamilton, but also the remarkable facts, that his grandmother, on the paternal side, Bathshua, daughter and co-heir of Julines Hering esq., was through the lines above stated, of Oxenbridge, Throckmorton, Nevil, Beauchamp, Le Despencer and Plantagenet, descended from the said blood royal; and that his grandmother, on the maternal side, Bridget Hamilton, was by her grandfather, William Coward, esq. serjeant-at-law, and recorder and member of Parliament for the city of Wells, descended through the ancient families of Dodington, of Dodington, and Wyndham, and the illustrious houses of Howard, Mowbray, Fitzalan, Bohun, and Plantagenet, and also through those of Scrope, Nevil, Stafford, Audley, and Clare, from the said blood royal; and, by her mother, Mary, daughter of William Hastings, esq.; by her grandmother, Bridget, daughter and at length sole heir of Sir Thomas Hall; by her great-grandmother, Catherine, daughter of Sir Edward Seymour; and by her great-great-grandmother, Elizabeth, daughter of Henry Brune, esq. of Athelhampton, Dorset, through several distinct lines not participated by any of the other branches of the house of Hamilton, also descended from the said blood royal; and further, that the grantee having intermarried with the Lady Margaret Gordon, only daughter of Charles, late earl of Aboyne, his daughters by such marriage are likewise maternally descended, by numerous and direct lines, from the kings of Scotland, through many of the greatest families of that kingdom, as well as through the principal sovereign houses of Europe.

Crests.—First, a heron's head erased or, gorged with a collar flory counterflory gules, in the beak a fish argent. Second, issuant out of a ducal coronet or, an oak tree fructed ppr. the stem penetrated transversely by a frame-saw, also ppr. inscribed with the word "through," differenced with a shield, pendant from a branch of the tree, charged with the arms of Latimer, being gules, a cross flory or.

* * The second was a crest of Augmentation, assigned under the Earl Marshal's authority, to Mr. Beckford, in memory of his representation of a co-heir of the Abercorn branch of the house of Hamilton; with a distinction in allusion to his descent, through the ancient family of Mervyn, lords of the manor of Fonthill-Gifford, from William, the first Lord Latimer.

Motto.—De Dieu tout.

Seat.—Lansdown Crescent and Tower, near Bath.

DESCENT FROM THE LATIMERS.

WILLIAM, LORD LATIMER, summoned to parliament from 1299 to 1305, m. Alice, daughter and co-heir of Walter Ledet, by which alliance he acquired a moiety of the barony of Warden, and a moiety of the whole hundred of Corby, both in the county of Northampton, and had, with WILLIAM, his successor and second lord, a younger son.

SIR JOHN LATIMER, who wedded Joane, daughter and eventually heir of Sir William de Gouis, and by her acquired, amongst other estates, the manor of DUNTISH, in the county of Dorset. He was s. at his decease (10th Ed. III.) by his son,

SIR ROBERT LATIMER, of Duntwich, who m. Catherine Hall, and dying 35th EDWARD III. left a son and successor,

SIR ROBERT LATIMER, of Duntwich, who wedded Margaret Peche, and had a son,

JOHN LATIMER, esq. of East Pulham, whose son, by his wife Margaret Pipard, was

SIR NICHOLAS LATIMER, of Duntwich. This gentleman was attainted in the reign of EDWARD IV., but the attainder was subsequently reversed. He m. Joan Hody. His daughter and heir, EDITH LATIMER, m. first, John Green, esq. of Stotfould, in the county of Bedford. She wedded secondly, Sir John Mordaunt, and by him was mother of John, first Lord Mordaunt, ancestor of the extinct Earls of Peterborough. Her ladyship espoused, thirdly, Sir John Carew, but had no further issue. Her daughter, by Green, and one of the co-heirs of that gentleman,
